I saw some names that I know some of you are looking for. Hope it isn't too confusing with the same names being passed down generation to geration.Last Name First Name Birth Date Birth Place Death Date

Descendants of William^{20} Terrell (Richmond^{19} , Robert^{18} , William^{17} Tyrrell II, George^{16} , Humphrey^{15} Terrell, William^{14} Tyrrell I, Thomas^{13} , Thomas^{12} , John^{11} , Thomas^{10} , Walter^{9} , James^{8} , Hugh^{7} , Edmond^{6} , Lyonell^{5} , Edmond^{4} , Richard^{3} , Henry^{2} , Walter^{1}) was born Abt. 1659 in New Kent Co., VA, and died Abt. 1744 in Hanover Co., VA. He married Susannah Waters. She was born Abt. 1657 in Hanover Co., VA, and died 1734.

Notes for William Terrell: One record says this William Terrell that married (Martha) Susannah Waters is the son of Richmond Terrell, wife unknown. Another indicates he is the son of Robert Terrell (Tyrell) and Jane Baldwin. Only one of these MAY be right, so the family is recorded here where the dates of his children fit. A third record indicates that William Terrell II married Susannah Waters, son of William Terrell I and Martha.

"There does not appear to be conclusive evidence as to the ancestry of William Terrell. There are many Terrell descendants scattered throughout the United States and a number of family histories have been compiled. Some were undertaken at early dates, and the compilers did not have the benefit of more recent extensive research. The latest, and it seems, the most authoritative, has been written by Emma Dicken. She has corrected some earlier misconceptions and has provided some good insight as to the origins and relationships of the early Terrells. By her own admission, some of the relationships cannot be documented, and family tradition is the only source of information available.

Richmond Terrell patented 640 acres of land in November, 1656 in New Kent County. The land lay on the southwest side of the York River, running by a branch of Diascun Swamp, near Rickahock Path. He had transported Richmond Terrell and Robert Terrell, each three times. Richmond Terrell, this time very likely the son, patented 450 acres of new land in Hanover County adjacent to Captain Thomas Carr, in April, 1732.

No reference has been found which documents the relationship of father and son between Richmond I and William Terrell. It is generally accepted, within the Terrell family, that William was the son of Richmond I. Other sons were Timothy and Richmond II, who patented the new land in Hanover County in 1732. They were both in Hanover County at the same time William lived there. A tradition handed down among the descendants of several branches of the Joel Terrell family (a son of William) has claimed Richmond I, as the ancestor of Joel." Tidewater Virginia Families, 1989, Virginia Lee Hutcheson Davis, Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc.

Notes for Susannah Waters: She is often listed as a child of Edward Waters and Grace O'Neal, may be of a later generation. Edward Waters is listed as an "Ancient Planter" of Virginia, having arrived before 1616 and surviving the massacre of 1622. Edward died by 1630 and his widow remarried soon thereafter. Edward Waters's children were born many years before Susannah's presumed birth date, and she is not listed as a child in any published genealogies.

One source says the father of Susannah Waters that married William Terrell is Earl Waters. Another suggests John Waters, another William Waters son of Edward and Grace. Children of William Terrell and Susannah Waters are:

CHAPTER III

WILLIAM TERRELL AND SUSANNAH WATERS

A list of Terrell arrivals in Virginia shows William Terrell as coming in 1667 at the same time his brother, Robert, made one of his many trips from England. He is again listed in 1670, when his brother, Richmond brought 12 persons into the colony, one of whom was William. Richmond received "head rights" land for the 12 persons, of which 100 acres "was reserved for his brother, William;" the balance he sold.

Joseph Henry Tyrell, of England in his genealogy of the Terrell family in America, shows William with a wife, Martha, and a child. He merely inserted the data that had been sent to him from U. S., but offered no proof. ?

If William was a man of family when he came to Va., he did not bring them with him, at least they are not listed among the persons brought by Richmond, and we do not find any evidence of such persons.

Mr. Reginald M. Glencross London, Eng., made for Mrs. Sarah Wiggins and Mrs. John F. Barnhill, of Indianapolis, a diligent search for a marriage of William to Martha and found none. He sent other valuable data which was contributed by Mrs. Wiggins to the V. Mag. of Hist. and Biog.

William was probably in business in London when Robert made one of his return trips to England, in 1656, and said that he stayed at the house of "William Terrell, a kinsman."

He lived to be 98 years old. He had a grand-daughter who lived to be 103, Ann Lewis Terrell Willis.

the former tax list but in the latter Richard Tyler's estate is charged with 845 acres. Richard Tyler wrote a very good hand. The writer has seen an old paper, dated Dec. 28, 1763, in which he ordered Mr. Jas. Webb to pay Mr. Robt. Cole 7£-9s-6d. This is endorsed on the back "April 24, 1764, Recd. the within mentioned sum in full, Robt. Cole". This was likely some transaction relative to his wife's property since Robt. Cole was her stepfather. Richard and Catherine Tyler had no children. Catherine died 1816, and her will (Car. W. B. 19, p. 219), dated July 1, 1815, probated Aug. 12, 1816, sheds a good deal of light on Tyler relationships. In it she mentions kinsman Richd. Keeling Tyler (son of Wm. Tyler and Elizabeth Keeling); kinsman Philip Redd (son of Wm. Redd and Franky Tyler); kinsman Geo. Tyler (son of Wm. Tyler and Elizabeth Keeling). She gives "to Francis Howle a negro boy now in possession of Epaphroditus Howle, to kinsmen Nancy Howle, Caty and Richd. Howle, children of Nancy Howle, slaves". Caroline O. B. 1794-96, p. 105, June 9, 1795, "administration on estate of Francis Howle, decd. granted to Richd. Tyler". Caroline marriage bonds: Epaphroditus Howle and Mary Jones, Mar. 15, 1798. Anne Gatewood, Catharine Tyler's sister must have married the Francis Howle who died 1795, but this is only conjectural. "To kinsman Kemp Gatewood slaves" (her nephew, son of her brother Wm. Gatewood). "To kinsman Kemp Evans and to niece Kitty Mickelborough, slaves, to nieces Dorothy and Nancy Evans land whereon I now live, to Polly Hope wife of James Hope $250.00" (these may have been children of her sister Elizabeth Gatewood, but no proof of it has come to light). "Sisters Fanny and Lucy Cole" (half sisters, daus. of Franky Tyler and Robt. Cole) ""To sister Frances Smith my riding chair" (Frances Gatewood m. (1) Henry Allen, (2) .... Smith) "Residue of estate to sister Frances Smith, brother Philemon Gatewood, kinsmen Geo. Terrell and Chas. Terrell to be equally divided between them" (Geo. and Chas. Terrell married respectively Eliz. and Ann Tyler, daus. of Wm. Tyler and Eliz. Keeling).

Mary, the only recorded daughter of Wm. Tyler is said to have been born 1743. She married 1776 Henry Terrell (1735-1812), who had been a member of the Cedar Creek Quaker meeting. On Aug. 23, 1776, their minutes record that he had "married out of meeting". Henry & Mary Terrell are said to have moved in 1787 to Kentuckey where he died 1812. Henry Terrell was son of Henry Terrell by his first wife, Ann Chiles, hence half brother of Geo. and Chas. Terrell mentioned in the preceding paragraph. This information about Mary Tyler is in a booklet on the Terrell family by the late E. H. Terrell of San Antonio, Tex., a copy of which is in the State Library.

William, son of Wm. Tyler, must have been born about 1725 or 26 and was just coming of age when his father moved into Caroline.

William had son Henry

He was apparently popular in the county; in 1766, he was a justice (O. B. 1765-67, p. 350) and the next year Sheriff (O. B. 1767-70, p. 55) and later he was Clerk of the County. He married Elizabeth Keeling, daughter of Richd. Keeling, who is said to have been a son of Capt. Geo. Keeling (W. & M. Quar. Vol. 19, p. 282). Their children were (1) John, d. s. p. 1804 (Car. O. B. 1804-1805, p. 185). Sept. 1804, Richd. K. Tyler obtains letter of admn. on estate of John Tyler); (2) George (1755-1833), a Revolutionary officer, (3) Richard Keeling (b. 1760), also in the Rev., (4) Franky (1751-1813), (5) Elizabeth, (6) Anne & (7) Catharine. Wm. Tyler died 1794 and his land passed to John Tyler, showing he was the oldest son. Wm. Tyler did not serve in the Revolution, as far as the writer can discover, but he did furnish supplies, for on Jan. 4, 1781, Anthony Thornton gave him a receipt for 850 lbs. beef at 24sh., totalling the handsome sum in the inflated currency of the period of £540. (Public Claims, Caroline Co. Archives Dept., State Library, Richmond, Va.)

Franky, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Keeling) Tyler, born June 27, 1751, died August 11, 1813 in Caroline Co. She married William Redd (died 1802) son of Samuel Redd and Lucy Rogers. The dates of Franky Tyler's birth and death, and the statement that she was the daughter of William and Elizabeth Tyler are given in the Moncure Bible, now in the possession of Dr. Philip Moncure of Norfolk. The children as given in a fragmentary extant will of William Redd are, William, Philip, George, Elizabeth Tompkins, Frances Tompkins, Matilda, Ann and Harriet. Of these children, William married November 12, 1803, Fanny, daughter of Mrs. Mary Hackett (Caroline Marriage Bonds). Philip married Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel Temple (Caroline O. B. 1799-1802, page 357). Elizabeth (born May 16, 1773, died June 18, 1812) married December 24, 1793, Bennett Tompkins. Frances (born 1781, died March 25, 1868) married Bailey Tompkins, brother of her sister Elizabeth's husband (born 1778, died March 29, 1848) (W&M 2nd Series, Vol. 10, p. 41) Probably a further search of Caroline Marriage Bonds would trace the other three daughters, Matilda, Ann and Harriet Redd.

Richard Keeling Tyler, born Oct. 27, 1760, son of Wm. & Elizabeth Keeling Tyler, married July 1, 1790, Mary Cluverius Duke, born in Hanover Co. Aug. 3, 1767 (Letters & Times of the Tylers, Vol. 3, p. 227). Mary Cluverius Duke was the daughter of John Duke and Elizabeth Burnley, as is shown by the will of Mrs. Elizabeth Duke in Caroline W. B. 19, p. 265. Richard Keeling Tyler and Mary C. Duke had four children, all mentioned in their grandmother's will, Wm. Burnley Tyler, John Duke Tyler, Richard Keeling Tyler, Jr., and Mary Cluverius Tyler. The entire family is said to have moved to Tennessee in 1818.

William, son of Wm. Tyler, must have been born about 1725 or 26 and was just coming of age when his father moved into Caroline. He was apparently popular in the county. In 1788, he was a justice (O. Franky, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Keeling) Tyler, born June 27, 1755, died August 11, 1833 in Caroline Co. She married William Redd (died 1804), son of Samuel Redd and Lucy Rogers. Possibly a further search of Caroline Marriage Bonds would trace the other three daughters, Matilda, Ann and Harriet Redd.

Richard Keeling Tyler, born Oct. 27, 1760, son of Wm. & Elizabeth Keeling Tyler, married July 1, 1790, Mary Clevarius Duke, born in Hanover Co. Aug. 8, 1767 (Letters & Times of the Tylers, Vol. 1, p. 587). Mary Clevarius Duke was the daughter of John Duke and Elizabeth Burnley, as is shown by the will of Mrs. Elizabeth Duke in Caroline W. O B. 1777-1780, p. 40, Dec. 7, 1777) and later rose to be Captain. The children of Capt. Geo. Tyler and Judith Terrell, not given in the order of birth, are as follows: (1) William (d. 1860) married in Orange Co., Jan. 21, 1803, Mary Herndon; issue, one daughter, Mary Ann Tyler (b. Aug. 20, 1804) married Wm. Overton Harris, and eleven sons. After their daughter's marriage, the parents with their eleven sons moved to Missouri. Elizabeth, daughter of Wm. and Elizabeth Keeling Tyler, married Geo. Terrell (b. June 28, 1753, d. 1818), son of Henry Terrell and his second wife, Sarah Woodson. It seemed almost unthinkable that there should be so many marriages between Tylers and Terrells, but a Chancery suit in Car. O. B. 1804-05, p. 245, Dec. 11, 1804, between Richard K. Tyler, Geo. Tyler, Franky Redd widow of Wm. Redd, Geo. Terrell and Elizabeth his wife, Charles Terrell and Ann his wife, pltfs. and Catharine Mauldin, deft. is one of the documentary proofs of it. Geo. Terrell's name appears frequently in the Caroline Records, and in 1794 he was sheriff. His will, dated May, 1817, probated Jan. 12, 1818, is in Caroline Records, W. B. 19, p. 389. His son Tarleton predeceased him, apparently unmarried since no wife is named in his will (W. B. 19, p. 388). Geo. Terrell's surviving children who are named in his will were: Alfred, Fleming (b. 1778), Keeling, Lynch, Harriet Terrell and Judith Swann. Of these, Keeling Terrell married in Spotsylvania Co., Nov. 12, 1812, Frances Lewis, said to have been a daughter of John Lewis by his fourth wife, Mrs. Mary Ann (Fontaine) Armistead (W. & M. Quar. 1st series, Vol. 10, p. 50). Geo. Terrell b. Jan. 4, 1818 and his sisters, Nancy who married a Cooper and Ella who married a Reynolds, were likely of this family. The settlement of Keeling Terrell's estate is in Spotsylvania Records W. B. "O" p. 200. Fleming Terrell probably married a Conner. In 1815, he became guardian to his children Lucinda K. Terrell, Francis W. Terrell, E. Terrell, Geo. T. Terrell & Sarah W. Terrell (Car. Rec. 1st Guardians' Bonds Book, 1806-24, p. 146).

In the William & Mary article, Vol. 19, p. 282, Catharine is named as daughter of Wm. & Elizabeth Keeling Tyler. The Chancery suit previously mentioned in which the other children of Wm. Tyler sue her was apparently settled out of court, for there are no depositions in the tiny bundle of papers relating to it. Notice of the suit which the court had on Dec. 11, 1804, ordered "published in the Va. Express printed in the town of Fredericksburg for 8 weeks successively" has not been found, the Library of Congress having no copies of the Va. Express for this period. It is safe, however, to conclude that the suit was either for settlement of her father's or her brother John's estate. In the court order, it is stated that she is not an inhabitant of this state, but her exact residence is not given. In a deed to Johsua Swann in which she joins with Chas. Terrell and Nancy his wife, Frances Redd, Geo. Terrell and Elizabeth his wife, Geo. Tyler and Judith his wife and Richard Keeling Tyler and Mary his wife, she is represented by West Maulding her attorney. There are several other deeds from the same grantors to different grantees, and it is a great pity that the loss of the deed books prevent our knowing more about the transactions. Despite all efforts, no further information about Catharine Tyler Mauldin is available.

The writer offers these gleanings with apologies and will welcome any additional information on the Tyler family.

FAMILY OF GOVERNOR J. HOGE TYLER.

By Mrs. P. W. Hiden.

In the July issue of this magazine, the writer attempted some notes on the family of the late Gov. J. Hoge Tyler. Subsequent investigation has revealed errors in her statements, and corrections of them are now made. Wm.,^{2} third son of Richard^{1} Tyler of Essex has been the occasion of the trouble. Following the article in W. & M. Quarterly, 1st series, Vol. 19 and apparent inferences from the records, the writer gave him three children, Richard, Wm. and Mary, and allowed him to die in 1762 and his son Wm. to die in 1794. From a chancery suit deposition; which will be given in full, made by Francis Tompkins, May 7, 1819, at the house of Fleming Terrell, in the County of Caroline, it appears that the son, Wm.,^{3} died without issue in 1762, and that the father lived until 1794. There is no mention of the dau. Mary, hence she was not a child of Wm^{2} Tyler's, and the writer is unable to place her.

Francis Tompkins deposed as follows: "The Deponent being first sworn states that he was raised and lived near Wm. Tyler, the elder, nearly all his life, that he knew him well, that when Wm. Tyler, the elder, moved from Essex to Caroline, he had three children, Catherine, (who intermarried with James Mauldin), Richard and Wm; that he had no wife living when he came to Caroline; that some few years after moving up, he married Miss Miller by whom he had a daughter named Nancy, who intermarried with Charles Terrell of Caroline; that some time afterwards his wife died and Wm. Tyler the elder married Miss Keeling, by whom he had three sons and two daughters, George, John and Richard Keeling, Franky who intermarried with Wm. Redd, and Elizabeth who intermarried with George Terrell; Wm. Tyler, son of Wm. Tyler the elder, died some years before his father, leaving no issue; Wm. Tyler, the elder, died next; his son Richard, who intermarried with Catherine Gatewood, by whom he had no issue, died next; his son John died next, leaving no issue; his daughter, Franky Redd, died next, leaving children, their names not recollected; his daughter, Elizabeth Terrell, died next, leaving six children, Fleming, Keeling, Lynch and Alfred, sons, Harriet and Judith, daughters."

From the foregoing, therefore, we find that Wm^{2} Tyler, b. probably about 1710 or 1712, since he was of age and one of the exors of his father's will in 1734, married first in Essex Co. and came to Caroline about 1742, a widower with three small children. Of these, his eldest daughter 1. Catherine^{3} Tyler m. James Maulding, and had issue; (a) Ambrose^{4} b. Aug 1 1755 in Caroline Co. d. Aug 26, 1833 in Hamilton Co. Ill; (b) Richard,^{4} (c) Jane,^{4} m. Wm. Barker, (d) Mary^{4} m. ——————— White; (e) Frances^{4} m. Zachariah Askew; (f) Morton,^{4} (g) West^{4} 2. Richard^{3} Tyler m. his cousin Catharine^{4} Gatewood, and d. 1802. His will dated August 22, 1777, and probated

December 14, 1802, is in the Caroline Co. Miscellaneous Papers in the State Archives Dept. All his property with the exception of his sword and belt, which he gave to his half-brother, John^3 Tyler, he devised to his wife. In her will, ignoring the claims of his sisters and brothers, his wife bequeathed the land on which she lived to her nieces. This furnished one cause of the chancery suit previously mentioned.

3. Wm.^{3} Tyler Jr. d. 1762 without issue 4. Nancy,^{3} only child of Wm.^{2} Tyler by his second wife,—Miller, m. Charles Terrell and their children were given in the July number. In this connection the writer would correct an error on p. 59 of that issue where Garrett Scott and Sarah Ellen Nalle are given as grandparents of the late Dr. W. W. Scott, it should be parents. The writer intended phrasing her statement: Sarah^4 Terrell, dau. of Chas. Terrell and Nancy^3 Tyler, and John Scott were grandparents of Dr. W. W. Scott."

Wm^2 Tyler m. as his third wife, probably about 1750, Elizabeth Keeling and 5. Franky,^{3} their daughter, was b. June 27. 1751 d. Aug 11, 1813. In a deposition in this same suit, the heirs of Frances^3 Redd are given as follows: (a) Elizabeth^4 Redd who m. Bennett Tompkins and was now dead, leaving issue Edward,^{5} Augustus,^{5} Robert,^{5} Bennett,^{5} and George,^{5} (the last named now dead) Lucy,^{5} Matilda^5 and Harriet;^{5} (b) Lucy^4 Redd m. Robert Quarles d. s. p. before her mother; (c) Frances^4 Redd m. Bailey Tompkins; (d) Ann^4 Redd m. Frank Redford; (e) Matilda^4 Redd, unmarried at this date; (f) Harriet^4 Redd m. John D Tyler [From a later deposition it appears her children were: Quintus M,^{5} Marius M^5 and Mary F.^{5} Tyler] (g) Philip^4 Redd [In a later deposition his children are given as: Frances M,^{5} Lucy Q,^{5} Wm. F Maindebert,^{5} Edgar J^5] (h) George^4 Redd, d. s. p. before his mother, (i) Wm^4 Redd. 6. George^3 Tyler (1755-1833). His line stands as given in July issue.

7. John^3 Tyler, d. s. p. 1804 intestate. 8. Elizabeth^3 Tyler m. George Terrell and died before 1819 leaving six children: Fleming,^{4} Lynch,^{4} Alfred,^{4} Harriet,^{4} Judith,^{4} and Keeling.^{4} [From later depositions, it appears Harriet^4 Terrell m. Gray Boulware, Judith^4 Terrell m. Wilson Swann, and that the heirs of Keeling^4 Terrell were Narcissa W,^{5} Wm. A.,^{5} Mary F.,^{5} Melford,^{5} and Elizabeth^5]

9. Richd Keeling^3 Tyler b. 1760. His line stands as given in the July Magazine.

The occasion for the suit which gave this wealth of information began in the intestate death of John^3 Tyler in 1804 and was brought to a climax on the death of his sister-in-law, Catharine^4 (Gatewood) Tyler in 1816. In 1804, Catharine Maulding had instituted a suit to protect her and her children's rights in her father's and brother's property. In 1819, her children prosecuted the suit further, and the above data is the genealogical harvest.

Miss Ida Van Hon of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, a descendant of James and Catharine^3 (Tyler) Maulding supplements the information found in the suit about this branch of the family. Richd. Maulding of King Wm. Co. bought land in Spotsylvania Co. in 1727 (Crozier's Spots. Co. Rec. p. 101). He m. in 1732 or 1733 Jane, maiden name unknown. Their son James m. Catharine^3 Tyler and in 1782 moved to Logan Co. Ky, the first family to settle there. Their place of settlement was Red River Station, later called Maulding or New Station. James Maulding d. 1797. James and Catherine^3 (Tyler) Maulding had 7 children: Ambrose,^{4} Richard,^{4} Jane,^{4} Mary,^{4} Frances,^{4} Morton,^{4} Wesley^4 or West.^{4} [In Caroline Records, he is called West.]

Of these, no information about the three daughters has been found other than that given in the suit. Taking up the sons, Miss Van Hon states that Wesley^4 was at one time sheriff of Logan Co., Ky. and lived in Russellville, the county seat until his death in 1832. He is buried on Maulding Hill where the Courthouse now stands. Morton^4 moved to Livingston Co. Ky., and d. 1820. Richard^4 lived in Hamilton Co. Ill. from 1808 to 1821, then moved to Malden Mo. where he died. Ambrose^4 the oldest child, b. Aug. 1, 1775 in Caroline Co. Va. lived in several counties in Ky., moving to Hamilton Co. Ill. where he d. Aug. 26, 1833. He is buried at Ten Mile Church. In 1924, a monument was erected to him for his services in the Revolutionary War. He was twice married, by his first wife he had four children, James;^{5} Ennis^5 d. in Warren City, Ill; Lee^5 d. in Middleton, Ill; and Mourning.^{5} By his second wife, Guillema ————, (d. in Iowa 1835) he had nine children: 5. Alexander,^{5} m. Minnie Glover, d. Henry Co. Iowa; 6. Isabel;^{5} 7. Keeling Tyler,^{5} moved West; 8. William^5 moved to Kansas; 9. Laban^5 d. in Henry Co. Iowa; 10. Martha^5 m. ———— Garner, moved to Rock Falls, Co. Iowa; 11. Zilpha^5 m. Saml. Hollingsworth; 12. Sarah^5 m. Abraham Hollingsworth, d. in Henry Co. Iowa; 13. Rachel^5 m. ———— Hinkson, d. in Henry Co. Iowa.

Mourning^5 dau. of Ambrose^4 Maulding's first marriage b. Oct. 5 1786 d. Hamilton Co. Ill. Sept 14, 1846 m. in Illinois 1806, John Anderson b. 1780 in Amelia Co. Did you ever get a response. I have just begun to look at that line and I have found a problem. The Ancestral File on FamilySearch.org, links Elizabeth Moore to Augustine Moore (1620 Elizabeth City County) and Mary Wooley (1636 Elizabeth City County). I have found a transcipt of their wills. Elizabeth appears to be his niece not his daughter. He calls her "the daughter of my brother William". Also, do you have a source on Elizabeth's and Timothy's marriage. The ancestral file shows M 1686 at St Peter's Parish, New Kent County?

Nicholas Taliaferro died in January, 1812, and his will was probated in Bracken Co., Ky., court in March same year. It was witnessed by John King, Anderson Keith and James Boyd.

The Va Land Bounty Records show that Warrant #854 was issued to Nicholas Taliaferro for 2666 2/3 acres, on June 17, 1783; there is nothing to indicate that he ever took up the land. He was an original member of the Society of Cincinnati, in which he never had a successor.

He was present at Yorktown at the surrender of Cornwallis, the terms of which were arranged in the Moore House, which is still standing, which had belonged to his great-great-grandfather, Major Lawrence Smith, and which was then owned and occupied by Lucy, the great-grandaughter of Major Lawrence Smith and the wife of Col. Augustine Moore. This estate is now known as Temple Farm.

For those of you who are into spending big bucks for your genealogy research (this does not include me), here is an interesting item for descendants of Robert & Margaret PRICE DANIEL of Middlesex Co, VA: Hamilton Bookshop in Williamsburg, VA, has some very early Middlesex Co documents. One of interest is a document of the "Inventory of Robert Daniel" dated 1721 and signed twice by his wife Margaret Daniel. Robert DANIEL died in 1720/21. The inventory is probably from his will probate records, for it lists his belongings including slaves and pots etc. The price - $950. Genforum: Carter / from Lynda – 3 Mar 2002

William Carter appears about 1641 in Virginia and had a son also named William Carter born about 1660 in Christ Church Parish, Middlesex Co. Va. The second William married Mary Goodloe/Goodlow July 2nd 1691 in the same Parish. He died Feb. 5th, 1711. There were two Mary Carters born to the couple (one may have died as infant or at birth).

From George Prestnall ca 1667-1691 "The First American Pressnall?" p. 2
George Prestnal is listed on the Militia Roll, 23td day of November, 1687, in Middlesex County, Virginia. His name was followed by William Carter (? Is this the same William ?) of Carter's Grove, both of whom attended church services at the Episcopal Christ Church located at the hear of Carter's Creek (actually, there were three separate churches, the Great Church, the Upper and the Lower Church, all with the same name). It may be safe to assume that it is the Great Church, that still stands today in its more than two hundred years, although somewhat dilapidated.

6 Apr. 1714 Middlesex Co., Virginia (Will Book B, 1713-1734, Part I): (p. 11) Inventory of Estate of William Carter, decd., has an account with WILLIAM BRISTOW. (Hopkins, p. 71).

Some of the dates are questionable as some of the birth dates are within a few months of each other, however, could be the child was taken in by the couple and given the Carter name (maybe a relatives orphan child). According to the book "Southerners All" by F. N. Boney, the Carters came to Virginia from England in 1637. Robert Carter (son) and some of the other sibilings are mentioned in the books, "Golden Days In The Old Dominion", "Colonial Virginia", "Liberty and Slavery". Robert Carter grew up to be very political and was a plantation owner with over 300,000 acres in VA.

1. Thomas LACY(1) was born about 1650. Thomas Lacy I of New Kent and Hanover Counties, Virginia

Thomas Lacy, immigrant, reputed to have come from Wales to Virginia between 1680 and 1685 and to have settled in that part of New Kent County which years later was cut off into Hanover County, an area which was then on the very frontier of the early and somewhat scattered settlements.

It is this Thomas who is credited with being the progenitor of a long and prolific line of Lacys who resided in various parts of Virginia, principally the counties of Hanover, Louisa, Goochland, Albemarle, Powhatan, Chesterfield, Henrico, Buckingham, Bedford, and Halifax, spreading to the Carolinas and Georgia. With Virginia as the focal point, descendants spread fanlike to all points south, west and northwest. Today descendants of this line live in almost every state in the Union. This branch is by far the largest of any of the pioneer Lacy families of Virginia.

Due to the loss of the old New Kent and Hanover County records--lost in the tragic burning of Richmond toward the very end of the Civil War where, ironically, they had been taken for safe-keeping and also the loss of the Registers of the parishes in which the Lacys lived, very little is known of Thomas and his family. His year of birth is estimated to be about 1660 and his place of residence before coming to America to have been Wales, according to an old document in the family and according to tradition. Thomas Lacy (1800-1879) of St. Clair Co., Ill., a son of Lionel Lacey and a grandson of Elliott Lacy, a descendant, told his niece in 1863 -- Miss Pamelia Lacey -- that the Lacys came from Wales. What Thomas knew came to him from his father and his account of the family, as given to Miss Pamelia, has been corroborated in every instance where official records have been found.

By tradition, subject Thomas was of French Huguenot stock, perhaps a son of a Huguenot who had fled France and settled in Wales. This tradition of French Huguenot ancestry exists among widely separated branches of the family, some of whom have been out of contact with one another for generations. It has come down through the author's own line, the sire who left Virginia shortly after the ending of the Revolutionary War. Rev. William Henry Foote in his "Sketches of Virginia", published in 1850, in writing of Rev. Drury Lacey (1758-1815), states:

"His father, William Lacy, a grandson of the immigrant. . . of English descent and Norman-French extraction. His mother, Elizabeth Rice, was a cousin to Benjamin Rice of Bedford, the father of Rev. Doctors John H. and Benjamin H. Rice."

Prof. Austin W. Smith (b. 1885), then of Cookesville, Tenn., author of the "George-Lacey Genealogy" and himself a Lacy descendant, in his letter of Dec. 8, 1936 wrote:

"Dear Mr. Lacey:

I was delighted to hear from you. I have been engaged in the task for some time in collecting material for a book of the Lacy family. My great-grandmother, Susannah Lacy, daughter of Matthew Lacy of Goochland County, Va., son of Stephen Lacy of same county, married Robert George and came to Warren County, Tenn., after spending a number of years in KY. She lived to be 92 years of age. My father who died in 1929 at the age of 90 knew her well as did my mother who is still living at the age of 90. She was always proud of the fact that she was French, of the Huguenots who came to America. Her name was Susannah de Lacy, French, you will readily see, though she accepted the English 'Lacy' . Her grandson, who is now living in Texas, knew her as she lived with them the last few years of her life. His name is Law Lacy, or de Lacy. He says that there is no question that they were French. She certainly ought to have known as it was her great-grandfather who was the French Huguenot. There are Lacys in Virginia who are not French Huguenots.

1. Thomas LACY was born about 1630. Thomas Lacy I of New Kent and Hanover Counties, Virginia

Thomas Lacy, immigrant, reported to have come from Wales to Virginia between 1650 and 1683 and to have settled in that part of New Kent County which years later was cut off into Hanover County, an area which was then on the very frontier of the early and somewhat scattered settlements.

Thomas Lacy (1809-1879) of St. Clair Co., Ill., a son of Lionel Lacey and a grandson of Elliott Lacy, a descendant, told his niece in 1863 -- Miss Parcella Lacey -- that the Lacys came from Wales. What Thomas Lacey knew came to him from his father and his account of the family, as given to Miss Parcella, has been corroborated in every instance where official records have been found.

By tradition, subject Thomas was of French Huguenot stock, perhaps a son of a Huguenot who had fled France and settled in Wales. She certainly ought to have known as it was her great-grandfather who was the French Huguenot. There are Lacys in Virginia who are not French Huguenots.

I am sure that this bunch of Huguenots were in England for a time but that they were French in origin."

Persecution of the Huguenots in France preceded the edict of Jan. 29, 1535, ordering the "extermination of the heretics", but reached tragic and awful proportions from that date. A great many French Protestants fled the country to save their lives, rather than give up their freedom of conscience and their religious beliefs. Many of these settled in England and Holland. This migration continued until the middle of the 18th century. The Revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685 merely accentuated this mass migration, and France lost, to her detriment, over 400,000 of her best artisans and citizens. The family of Thomas de Lacy was already in England by 1680. Many of them settled in Wales and Ireland where they became very prominent.

We find in English Heraldry a seeming variation of the Lacy-Normandy coat-of-arms, which may signify a family of Norman extraction. In "Lacy of Walsham in the Willows, Counties of Norfolk and Suffolk" their coat-of-arms is:

"Quarterly, argent and sable, on a bend gules three martlets or, over all a label of five points the last, each charged with an ermine spot. Crest: Out of a ducal coronet gules a demi-eagle wings espanded or, in the beak an arrow of the first headed and feathered argent."

(Burke's "General Armory")

The Norman coat-of-arms is: "Quarterly or and gu, a bend sa. over all a label three points ar."

("A complete Book of Heraldry", London MDCCCXX. Jos. Edminston, Esq. F.S. A.)

Note the similarity of these coats of armor. However, it is unlikely that the Lacys of Suffolk and Norfolk are the parent family of subject Thomas Lacy, because these two counties are located on the far side east coast of England and thus some distance from Wales. However, they may have been an off-shoot of the same family. The names Thomas and Stephen are found in both.

From "Cavaliers & Pioneers", Abstracts of Virginia Land Grants (1623-1800), Virginia Land Office Patents, by Nell Marion Nugent (1924), Vol. 5, Land Office of Va., we find this item:

"Grant of 500 acres of land on Chowan River in the Isle of Wight was made to Thomas Mann in 1682 for the transportation of ten persons, among whom were Thomas Lacy, Richard Carter, Giles Thornberry, Ann Dowds, Elizabeth Croomer, and John Middleton."

It cannot be said that this Thomas is the same man as subject Thomas Lacy. but as the date of arrival corresponds with that of subject the possibility is very strong and should be given credence.

Statements have appeared in print at various times about the date of arrival in America of Thomas and some confusion as to Thomas himself. For instance in the Comp. of American Genealogy (Virkus), V. 1. p. 683, it states "Thomas Lacy from England to Va., 1702. Married Ann Burnley." The date of this edition was 1925 and the article is based on material submitted and not on research by Virkus. Subsequent research has proven this information incorrect, as it is now the conclusion that the Thomas who married Ann Burnley was the son of the immigrant Thomas. This conclusion has been arrived at principally from an old document written by Rev. William Sterling Lacy (1791-1881), relating a narrative told him by "old William Rice" about the year 1828 or 1829. Rev. Lacy put this narrative in writing probably sometime before 1850, probably having made some notes at the time of his interview with Mr. Rice. This treasured document is now in the possession of Mrs. Elizabeth (Lacy) Jones of Roanoke, VA., widow of Alfred Power Jones, M. D. This document definitely states that Thomas Lacy came from Wales, was engaged to Miss Rice in Wales, preceded the Rice family to Virginia, who followed a few years later, and he married Miss Rice, daughter of Thomas Rice, after their arrival in Virginia.

In order to assay the credibility of the family data in this article, it would be well to view the character and veracity of "old William Rice" and Rev. Lacy.

William Rice was born about 1742 or 1743, based on the statement that he was 85 or 86 years of age in 1828 or 1829. His place of birth would have been in Hanover County in the locale of the Rice and Lacey homesteads. He was a son of David Rice and Miss Searcy, and a brother of the noted Rev. David Rice (1733-1816), Presbyterian minister of Kentucky, and an uncle to the Elizabeth Rice who married William Lacy (1713-1775). He was a grandson of the immigrant, Thomas Rice. Surely, living in the same neighborhood and being personally in touch with the older members of the family, he would have known of the proper family relationship. He was, according to Rev. Wm. Lacy, a man whose "mind was unimpaired, his memory remarkable", and an "esteemed and consistent Christian man".

Rev. William Sterling Lacy, son of Rev. Drury Lacy, who was a son of the William Lacy who married Elizabeth Rice, mentioned previously, was a man of the highest integrity and retentive memory. He could recite from beginning to end the New Testament and many of the Psalms and portions of the Old Testament. There can be no question but that he wrote the narrative exactly as it was narrated to him.

This document is the only tangible bit of evidence known of the immigrants Thomas Lacy and Thomas Rice, relation to their old world background and their immigration to Virginia, and of the marriage of Thomas Lacey to the daughter of Thomas Rice.
All of the old New Kent and Hanover county records were destroyed by fire in 1865, and the Register of St. Paul's Parish is not in existence. The Vestry Book of this parish gives little data.

✓We learn from this narrative that Thomas Lacy lived to a very ripe old age and that he was an exceedingly tall man, which would tend to discount any Welsh ancestry since the Welsh are of very short stature. It would appear, from the statement of William Rice, that Thomas Lacy was living about the year 1750 since he states that he saw him "when a small boy". Thus Thomas Lacy must have been 85 or more years of age at his death, if born about 1665. His death would have occurred in Hanover County, the place of his residence.

The first documented evidence of the residence of subject Thomas is that contained in the official 1704 Rent Roll Record, which shows the following Lacys owing land in New Kent County: Thomas Lacy -- 100 acres, William Lacy -- 500 acres, and Emmanuel Lacy -- 180 acres.

Thomas must have purchased his land as no land grant record has been found. If he had paid his own way to America he would have received a headright of 50 acres and that would have been recorded in "Virginia Land Grants". Some information has been secured from the Vestry Book of St. Paul's Parish, which was located in that part of New Kent County cut off in 1720/1 into Hanover. In the Vestry Book covering the period from 1706 to 1766 the following references are found:

"Returns made to the Vestry of St. Paul's Parish, March 4, 1708/9, from the surveyor of the 39 Precincts that the said Parish was divided into for the Processioning of Lands by an order of the said Parish Vestry held Sept. 24, 1708/9, are here according to Law and an order of the said Vestry made on the said 14th of March, Registered Verbatim."

"No. 18. The lands of Haughton House, Thomas Lacy, Jeremiah Dumas , Robert Depriest, William England, Rice Hughes, William Stephens, John Hickman, John McCoy, lying adjacent to each other, being made one precinct, of which the said William England Haughton House were appointed overseers, who made this return on the Back of the Order (viz;) this order is executed, only one line with Rice Hughes did not appear.

In order to study the credibility of the family data in this article, it would be well to view the character and veracity of "old William Rice" and Rev. Lacy.

William Rice was born about 1742 or 1743, based on the statement that he was 85 or 86 years of age in 1828 or 1829. His place of birth would have been in Hanover County in the locale of the Rice and Lacey homesteads. He was a son of David Rice and Susan Searcy, and a brother of the noted Rev. David Rice (1733-1816), Presbyterian minister of Kentucky, and an uncle to the Elizabeth Rice who married William Lacy (1713-1775). He was a grandson of the immigrant Thomas Rice. Surely, living in the same neighborhood and being personally in touch with the older members of the family, he would have known of the proper family relationship. He was, according to Rev. Wm. Lacy, a man whose "mind was unimpaired, his memory remarkable", and an "esteemed and consistent Christian man".

Rev. William Sterling Lacy, son of Rev. Drury Lacy, who was a son of the William Lacy who married Elizabeth Rice, mentioned previously, was a man of the highest integrity and retentive memory. He could recite from beginning to end the New Testament and many of the Psalms and portions of the Old Testament. There can be no question but that he wrote the narrative exactly as it was narrated to him.

This document is the only tangible bit of evidence known of the immigrants Thomas Lacy and Thomas Rice, relation to their old world background and their immigration to Virginia, and of the marriage of Thomas Lacey to the daughter of Thomas Rice.
All of the old New Kent and Hanover county records were destroyed by fire in 1865, and the Register of St. Paul's Parish is not in existence. The Vestry Book of this parish gives little data.

We learn from this narrative that Thomas Lacy lived to a very ripe old age and that he was an exceedingly tall man, which would tend to discount any Welsh ancestry since the Welsh are of very short stature. It would appear, from the statement of William Rice, that Thomas Lacy was living about the year 1750 since he states that he saw him "when a small boy". Thus Thomas Lacy must have been 85 or more years of age at his death, if born about 1665. His death would have occurred in Hanover County, the place of his residence.

The first documentary evidence of the residence of subject Thomas is that contained in the official 1704 Rent Roll Record, which shows the following Lacys owning land in New Kent County: Thomas Lacy -- 160 acres, William Lacy -- 590 acres, and Emmanuel Lacy -- 180 acres.

Thomas must have purchased his land as no land grant record has been found. If he had paid his own way to America he would have received a headright of 50 acres and that would have been recorded in "Virginia Land Grants". Some information has been secured from the Vestry Book of St. Paul's Parish, which was located in that part of New Kent County cut off in 1720 to form Hanover. In the Vestry Book covering the period from 1706 to 1786 the following references are found:

"Returns made to the Vestry of St. Paul's Parish, March 4, 1708/9, from the surveyors of the 29 Precincts that the said Parish was divided into for the Processioning of Lands by an order of the said Parish Vestry held Sept. 24, 1708/9, are here according to Law and an order of the said Vestry made on the said 14th of March, Registered Verbatim:"

"No. 18. The lands of Haughton House, Thomas Lacy, Jeremiah Dumas, Robert Ingleton, William England, Rice Hughes, William Stephens, John Brickman, John McCoy, lying adjacent to each other, being made our precinct, of which the said William England, Haughton House were appointed overseers, who made this return on the back of the Order (viz.) this order is executed, only our line with Rice Hughes did not agree."

Subscribed: William England

Haughton House"

"No. 20. Thomas Lacy and Thomas Graham were appointed overseers in the Processioning of lands in St. Paul's Parish, Sept. 17, 1711. Among these lands was that of Emmanuel Richardson."

These two records would certainly apply to Thomas Lacy I, but subsequent ones may refer to the second generation and in the one instance -- that of Thomas Lacy, Jr. -- to the third generation.

"No. 22. Ordered into one Precinct for Processioning ye lands of Jeremiah Dumas, Thomas Prosser, James Wood, Col. Curtis, Mr. Brooks, James Rice, William Crossley, Thomas Lacy, Thomas Lacy, Jr., James Whitlock, Col. Thompson, Olivers, Nathaniel Hodgeskeson, James Hunt, ye Hughs, James Allen, George Straughan, David Tyree, James Anthony, and ye Carr's Lands, James Whitlock and James Allen to see the said processioning performed, who made the following return, viz: In Obedience to the within order, we the Subscribers has seen all the lands within mentioned procession'd except the land of George Straughan and Ellis, which nobody appeared for.

March ye 28th, 1732 James Allen

James Whitlock."

"No. 38. The Lands of Thomas Lacy, James Whitlock and Thomas Graham lying adjacent to each other, being made on Precinct, of which the said Thomas Lacy and James Whitlock were appointed overseers, who made this return on the Back of the order, viz: the within order complied with ... us.

Subscribed: Thomas Lacy James Whitlock"

Of a later date -- 1743 -- an entry shows for the first time the name of Stephen Lacy.

"At a Vestry held in St. Paul's Parish, Oct 18, 1743. No. 7. Ordered into one precinct for processioning the Lands of Thomas Johnson, Benjamin Johnson, Thomas Grant, John Price, John Williamson, Thomas Harlow, Charles Anderson, and that John Williamson and William Allen see the said processioning performed, who made the following report, -- we whose names are mentioned in ye within Order have met accordingly and none agreed & sent.

Thomas Grant, Stephen Lacy, Benjamin Johnson, Charles Anderson,

Thomas Harlow, Richard Allen John Williamson, William Allen"

[N.B. "Processioning" of lands was necessary in order to re-establish boundary lines between adjoining owners due to the destruction or removal of land marks which consisted in many cases of scrub oak or other trees, stones and creeks -- the latter often changing courses. Disputes would develop between property owners and the authority to adjudicate these matters was granted by the Council to the various parish vestrys of the Established Church.]

There is no evidence that subject Thomas Lacy lived anywhere except New Kent County, in that part which became Hanover County. He was already in Virginia when Oliver de la Muce arrived in 1700 with three ships of Huguenots. There is also no evidence that his son, Thomas, who married Ann Burnley, lived any place other than Hanover County. We know that Thomas Lacy's grandsons moved to Manikintowne and lived among the French Huguenots in Goochland County and the name of Lacy is included among the settlers of Manikintowne. This list appears to be about 1750. The parish serving Manikintowne was old King William and later St. James Northam.

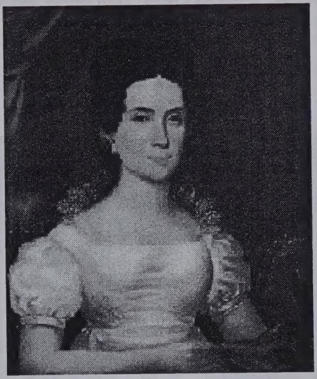
TYLER, LETITIA CHRISTIAN

(1790-1842)

First Lady, circa April 4, 1841-September 10, 1842



Biography: Letitia Tyler had been confined to an invalid's chair for two years when her husband unexpectedly became President. Nobody had thought of that possibility when he took his oath of office as Vice President on March 4, 1841; indeed, he had planned to fill his undemanding duties from his home in Williamsburg where his wife was most comfortable, her Bible, prayer book, and knitting at her side.

Born on a Tidewater Virginia plantation in the 18th century, Letitia was spiritually akin to Martha Washington and Martha Jefferson. Formal education was no part of this pattern of life, but Letitia learned all the skills of managing a plantation, rearing a family, and presiding over a home that would be John Tyler's refuge during an active political life. They were married on March 29, 1813--his twenty-third birthday. Thereafter, whether he served in Congress or as Governor of Virginia, she attended to domestic duties. Only once did she join him for the winter social season in Washington. Of the eight children she bore, seven survived; but after 1839 she was a cripple, though "still beautiful now in her declining years."

So her admiring new daughter-in-law, Priscilla Cooper Tyler, described her--"the most entirely unselfish person you can imagine...Notwithstanding her very delicate health, mother attends to and regulates all the household affairs and all so quietly that you can't tell when she does it."

In a second-floor room at the White House, Letitia Tyler kept her quiet but pivotal role in family activities. She did not attempt to take part in the social affairs of the administration. Her married daughters had their own homes; the others were too young for the full responsibility of official entertaining; Priscilla at age 24 assumed the position of White House hostess, met its demands with spirit and success, and enjoyed it.

Daughter of a well-known tragedian, Priscilla Cooper had gone on the stage herself at 17. Playing Desdemona to her father's Othello in Richmond, she won the instant interest of Robert Tyler, whom she married in 1839. Intelligent and beautiful, with dark brown hair, she charmed the President's guests--from visiting celebrities like Charles Dickens to enthusiastic countrymen. Once she noted ruefully: "such hearty shakes as they gave my poor little hand too!" She enjoyed the expert advice of Dolley Madison, and the companionship of her young sister-in-law Elizabeth until she married William N. Waller in 1842.

For this wedding Letitia made her only appearance at a White House social function. "Lizzie looked surpassingly lovely," said Priscilla, and "our dear mother" was "far more attractive to me...than any other lady in the room," greeting her guests "in her sweet, gentle, self-possessed manner."

The first President's wife to die in the White House, Letitia Tyler ended her days peacefully on September 10, 1842, holding a damask rose in her hand. She was taken to Virginia for burial at the plantation of her birth, deeply mourned by her family. "She had everything about her," said Priscilla, "to awaken love...." Tyler, John

Born: 29 MAR 1790, Greenway, Charles City Co., Virginia
Died: 17 JAN 1862, Richmond, Virginia
Interred: Hollywood Cemetary, Richmond, Virginia
Notes: Was never elected to office; attained the presidency through the death of his predecessor William Henry Harrison, whose vice-president he was. Samuel L.Southard, president pro tempore of the Senate served as his vice-president.

Father: Tyler, John, b. 1747

Mother: Armistead, Mary Marot, b. 1761

Biography: Dubbed "His Accidency" by his detractors, John Tyler was the first Vice President to be elevated to the office of President by the death of his predecessor.

Born in Virginia in 1790, he was raised believing that the Constitution must be strictly construed. He never wavered from this conviction. He attended the College of William and Mary and studied law.

Serving in the House of Representatives from 1816 to 1821, Tyler voted against most nationalist legislation and opposed the Missouri Compromise. After leaving the House he served twice as Governor of Virginia. As a Senator he reluctantly supported Jackson for President as a choice of evils. Tyler soon joined the states' rights Southerners in Congress who banded with Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, and their newly formed Whig party opposing President Jackson.

The Whigs nominated Tyler for Vice President in 1840, hoping for support from southern states'-righters who could not stomach Jacksonian Democracy. The slogan "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" implied flagwaving nationalism plus a dash of southern sectionalism.

Clay, intending to keep party leadership in his own hands, minimized his nationalist views temporarily; Webster proclaimed himself "a Jeffersonian Democrat." But after the election, both men tried to dominate "Old Tippecanoe."

Suddenly President Harrison was dead, and "Tyler too" was in the White House. At first the Whigs were not too disturbed, although Tyler insisted upon assuming the full powers of a duly elected President. He even delivered an Inaugural Address, but it seemed full of good Whig doctrine. Whigs, optimistic that Tyler would accept their program, soon were disillusioned.

Tyler was ready to compromise on the banking question, but Clay would not budge. He would not accept Tyler's "exchequer system," and Tyler vetoed Clay's bill to establish a National Bank with branches in several states. A similar bank bill was passed by Congress. But again, on states' rights grounds, Tyler vetoed it.

In retaliation, the Whigs expelled Tyler from their party. All the Cabinet resigned but Secretary of State Webster. A year later when Tyler vetoed a tariff bill, the first impeachment resolution against a President was introduced in the House of Representatives. A committee headed by Representative John Quincy Adams reported that the President had misused the veto power, but the resolution failed.

Despite their differences, President Tyler and the Whig Congress enacted much positive legislation. The "Log-Cabin" bill enabled a settler to claim 160 acres of land before it was offered publicly for sale, and later pay $1.25 an acre for it.

In 1842 Tyler did sign a tariff bill protecting northern manufacturers. The Webster-Ashburton treaty ended a Canadian boundary dispute; in 1845 Texas was annexed.

The administration of this states'-righter strengthened the Presidency. But it also increased sectional cleavage that led toward civil war. By the end of his term, Tyler had replaced the original Whig Cabinet with southern conservatives. In 1844 Calhoun became Secretary of State. Later these men returned to the Democratic Party, committed to the preservation of states' rights, planter interests, and the institution of slavery. Whigs became more representative of northern business and farming interests.

When the first southern states seceded in 1861, Tyler led a compromise movement; failing, he worked to create the Southern Confederacy. He died in 1862, a member of the Confederate House of Representatives.

John Tyler was the most prolific of all American President: he had 15 children and two wives. In 1813, Tyler married Letitia Christian, the daughter of a Virginia planter. They had eight children. She was an invalid when Tyler became president and made only one public appearance, at her daughter Elizabeth's marriage in 1842. Letitia Christian Tyler, the President's first wife, died in the White House in September, 1842. A few months later, Tyler began courting 23-year-old Julia Gardiner, a beautiful and wealthy New Yorker. When they were married in New York City on June 26, 1844, Tyler became the first president to be wed while in office. He was 30 years older than his bride. As FIRST LADY, the new Mrs. Tyler captivated Washington with the size and brilliance of her White House receptions.

Surname: Willis

Decendents of John Willis, SR. d. 1715 Richmond Co. VA would be interested in the book, The Willis Family of the Northern Neck in Virginia by Peggy Francis Rush. Published by Heritage Books, Inc., Bowie, MD. The decendents of William Willis, son of John Willis,Sr. moved from King George County, VA to Orange County, VA by 1738.

The book I referred to is available from: Heritage Books, Inc 1540-E Pointer Ridge Place Bowie, MD 20716
It can be ordered at www.heritagebooks.com or 1-800-398-7709 for $19 + $4 s&h. It appears you are interested in the same group covered by this book but have the various Johns and Williams confused, which is easy to do.
Full title of book is THE WILLIS FAMILY OF THE NORTHERN NECK OF VIRGINIA, 1669-1737

WILLIS FAMILY

The line we are tracing gives Barbara O. Winston (Oct. 1, 1799, d. Aug. 20, 1881), dau. of John (1757) and Mary (Johnson) Winston of "Roundabout Castle", Louisa Co., Va., mar. Apr. 24, 1817, Joshua Willis (Mch. 29, 1796), son of Reuben (1754) and Ann (Garnett) Willis. Marriage is recorded in Louisa Co. Marriage bond is given in Valentine Papers, Vol. III, p. 1714 by E. P. Valentine. Thomas Johnson was her guardian, a first cousin. Barbara is mentioned in her father's & her mother's wills. The Willis line:

John Willis (ca. 1648, W. 1715), of Hanover Parish, Richmond Co., later King George Co., seems the immigrant ancestor. He acquired land in Richmond Co. by patent & by grant; 261 acres Oct. 7, 1669, next to land patented by John Washington and 185 acres jointly with John Parsons, Feb. 27, 1690. This land referred to in his will, and in a deed to his gr. son, John Willis (d. 1762), as land by patent & by grant. The Parsons land went first to John Willis, Jr. (d. 1728, D.S.P.) & then to John Willis (d. 1762). This land fell into King George Co. when it was formed from Richmond in 1721. Name of his first wife is thought by Mr. H. H. Harvey to have been Matilda Thornton & that they mar. ca. 1672. She was the mother of his children: John, William, Charles, Mary, Susanna, Catherine, one other, name not known, who mar. Isaac Arnold. John Willis mar. 2nd, in 1693, Matilda, widow of Henry Thacker. William mar. Sarah., Charles mar. Matilda Thacker, step-sister. Mary mar. Thomas James. Catherine mar. William Pullin. John Willis (d. 1715), made a marriage agreement with Matilda in 1693 before they were married in July, regarding his son Charles' share of the estate, which had not been deeded to him when the older sons, John & William had theirs deeded to them. She died shortly before he wrote his will June 6, 1715, Pr. 7-7-1715, in which he stated he had made certain promises to Matilda & was keeping faith with her. Record in D.B. 3, p. 68, Richmond Co., Va., date Apr. 26, 1701, John Willis of Richmond Co., Va., to my son William Willis for the natural love & affection which I do bear unto my loving son, William Willis, I give all that part of a patent of land -- except 100 acres formerly given by me to my eldest son, John Willis, as shown by record in Richmond Co., Va. - and if the said William Willis should die without issue, then the said land to revert to my son John Willis and his heirs forever - - - after the death of her whom the said William should intermarry with, shall enjoy the same during her liftetime and the said John Willis, only having to himself the right & liberty to timber - - - during his lifetime - - - land contains 161 acres which is deeded herein to said Wm. Willis - - - part of a grant for 261 acres - - - out of which 100 acres has previously been given to John Willis, Jr. (The 100 acres given by deed of Dec. 10, 1694). John Willis died without issue; the 100 acres went to William & later to his son, John Willis (d. 1762). Land deeded by John Willis (d. 1715) was re-deeded by his children & gr. children. Deed of Apr. 1, 1742 from William James of Spottsylvania Co. to Jeremiah Murdock of King George Co. - - 200 acres formerly bequeathed by John Willis, the elder, June 7, 1715, to Thomas James & wife, Mary (Willis) James.

Possibly the daughter of Joshua Hudson and Elizabeth Rush. Reported in LDS search site as Sarah Hudson born 1689, Hanover Parrish, King George Co. VA. or Recieved from Mitch3505@aol.com 9/25/00 Since E-Ming you I have discovered that Sara married Willis, Wood, Hudson and Turberville. Thus Hudson was simply another married name. Probably her maiden name was Sarah Hawksford. She married Rush Hudson c 1722. (Note: Rush Hudson, per LDS site, is son of Joshua Hudson and Elizabeth Rush.)

Introduction

Traditionally, there have been important similarities and differences between a genealogist and a family historian. While both searched records and gathered information, the primary goal of the genealogist was to prove a person's lineage or descendants. The goal of the historian was to tell the story of a particular family in order to preserve that family's history. In recent times, however, the differences have narrowed, and the final product has become more than a lineage chart on the one hand or an anthology of personal recollections on the other hand. The rewards of sharing the strengths of each approach have resulted in personal, yet credible, accounts which go beyond dates to portray the everyday lives of people.

The resources which genealogists and family historians use include both public and private information. Public records range from court records and censuses to land records, estate files, vital statistics, cemetery records, and other documents which are generally available for public examination. Private records include family bibles, diaries, letters, personal interviews, family stories passed on from one generation to the next, and pictures. Distinctions between the two types of records vary and are not as important as the validity of the record itself. Either type may provide new insights about the family which the researcher or historian is attempting to trace or to describe.

This is neither a novel nor a compilation of family group sheets for the descendants of John Willis Sr. My original goal was to create a factual, historical account of his life and his known family based on extant documents, and I hope that element has been preserved.

However, during the twelve years in which I have been researching the Willis family, I made an important discovery. In order for the records to become living documents which tell a story about real people, I had to learn how to interact with the facts, because without that interaction the records were merely a collection of impersonal names and numbers. Novelist Wallace Stegner defines this process eloquently by saying that it is only with the reader's participation that history becomes what he calls "a usable human memory." He describes this phenomenon as follows:

> Like any other part of the human tradition, history is an artifact. It does not exist until it is remembered and written down; and it is not truly remembered or written down until it has been vividly imagined. We become our past, and it becomes part of us, by our reliving of our beginnings.[1]

So, for me, what began as a search to find one family evolved into a quest to understand more about my ancestors as part of a community which no longer exists except in the records and the past. Questions began to spring from a sentence or paragraph or name in a document, taking me beyond the bare facts and luring me in Plat of John Washington's 1,700-acre patent and John Willis Sr.'s 261-acre adjoining patent.

John Washington's 1,700-acre patent (1) dated 1 June 1664 which included 300 acres (3) which Washington assigned to William Freake in 1674. Freake willed this 300 acres to his wife Martha Freake. Martha married Robert Vincent, and they sold the tract to Thomas Tippett and John Hauxford. In 1675 John Washington willed the remainder of this patent (plus another patent of 1,200 acres not shown here) to his daughter Ann Washington, later the wife of Maj. Francis Wright. In 1705 Francis Wright and John Wright, husband and son of Ann Washington Wright, sold 1,000 acres of this tract to Francis Thornton Sr. In 1716 Thornton bought an additional 171.5 acres (4) directly north of John Willis's patent; the deed said that it was partly in Westmoreland County and partly in Richmond County (i.e., on the ridge which was the boundary between the two counties). In 1726 Thornton willed the lower half of his 1,000 acres on Crowes Swamp to his son Rowland and the upper half plus the 171.5 acres to George Riding, his stepson. Rowland Thornton willed his interest to his son Francis (d. 1766–67). It then descended to his son Francis (d. 1780), then to his nephew Francis, and finally to this nephew Francis's daughters, Mary (Taylor), Sarah (Woodford), and Elizabeth (Chevis), who sold it to Nathaniel H. Hooe in 1818.

John Willis Sr.'s 261-acre patent (2) dated 21 October 1669. John deeded 100 acres of his patent to his son John Jr. in 1694 and the remaining 161 acres to his son William in 1701. In 1709 John Hauxford and Thomas Tippett exchanged land (acreage not given, but part of the 300 acres which Freake had purchased from Washington); William Willis sold 12 acres of his father's patent to Hauxford; and Hauxford sold 12 acres of Washington's patent to John Willis, Jr. (although it was called an "exchange" in John Willis Jr.'s will in 1728). John Willis Sr. died testate in 1715. William Willis died intestate in 1716. John Willis Jr. d.s.p. testate in 1728, and his interest in the patent reverted to his nephew John, the eldest son of William. In 1737 John Willis (son of William and grandson of John Sr.) sold the patent to the Church Wardens of Hanover Parish to be used as the church glebe. In 1767 the Church Wardens sold the tract to William Thornton.

Chapter I

John Willis Sr.

The first reunion of what would become the Willis–Gordon–Garnett and Allied Families Association was held on 11 August 1935 at "Locust Grove," the Willis family home on the north side of the Rapidan River in Culpeper County.[1] The original section of "Locust Grove" was built in the 1730s and is probably the oldest existing home in Culpeper County.[2] The Association was founded by the descendants of Capt. Isaac Willis of Culpeper County and his wife, Ann Garnett. Prior to World War II the Association met every year. Since 1950 it has met every two years in August, usually in Culpeper, Orange, or Spotsylvania County.

In 1962 the Association began publishing a Journal which recorded family stories, tradition, and research. Probably the most meticulous and prolific researcher who contributed to the Journal was the late George B. Loeffler.[3]

Capt. Isaac Willis was the great-great-grandson of John Willis Sr. (who died testate in what was then Richmond County, Virginia, in 1715), the great-grandson of William Willis (who died intestate in 1716 in Richmond County), the grandson of John Willis (who died testate in 1761–1762 in Orange County), and the son of William Willis Sr. and his wife, Elizabeth Garnett (who died in 1833 and 1835 respectively in Boone County, Kentucky). As later generations have been extensively reviewed in the Journal and elsewhere, this account will focus upon John Willis Sr. who died in 1715 in that part of Richmond County which became King George County.

During his research, Mr. Loeffler did not find any documents which identified the parents of John Willis Sr. and consequently concluded that he was the earliest known ancestor.[4] The recovery of King George County Will Book A-1 and other documents which are noted at the end of this chapter, however, provide new areas of consideration, especially as they relate to John Willis Sr.'s neighbors and known maternal lines, because Mr. Loeffler did not extend his research to those particular areas. This manuscript will take a more global view toward analyzing the records from a "community" viewpoint and with greater emphasis on the extended family.

[illegible] William Wells [illegible] Colonial [illegible] to summarize them in a comprehensive, understandable manner was a challenge. After experimenting with various methods, I decided to group the records chronologically within a topical format.

The first chapter of this manuscript will focus upon the documents which directly prove the relationship between John Willis Sr. and his grandson John Willis who died in 1761–1762 in Orange County, Virginia, and whose descendants founded the Willis–Gordon–Garnett and Allied Families Association. Because those records are so important, many will be given in their entirety.

Additional land patents and supporting data, including efforts to locate John's land in present King George County, will be discussed in succeeding chapters, followed by sketches of his known neighbors and information on his children. Later chapters explore other Willis families whose possible connections to John Willis Sr. are still undetermined.

The documents which are given in this chapter were transcribed from microfilmed copies of the originals and include the following:

1. John Willis Sr.'s 1669 patent for 261 acres adjoining a patent to John Washington.
2. His deeds to sons John Willis Jr. and William Willis in 1694 and 1701.
3. His will and estate inventories in 1715 and 1716.
4. His prenuptial deed of gift to Matilda Thacker in 1693.
5. John Willis's (son of William) deeds to the Church Wardens of Hanover Parish in King George County in 1737.
6. The Hanover Parish Vestry's deed to William Thornton in 1767 for the tract which was John Willis Sr.'s 1669 patent.

The earliest record which I found for John Willis Sr. that can be traced directly to subsequent generations was a patent for 261 acres signed by Governor William Berkeley on 21 October 1669. It is given here with its original spelling and punctuation.[5]

While John's will in 1715 does not mention the 261 acre tract or the deeds to his sons, it provides important supporting proofs. His will, as copied from microfilm, is given with the original spelling and punctuation retained.

Proved in Richmond County the sixth day of July 1715 by the oaths of Thomas Parker, Augustine Blake and Elliner Welsh, witnesses thereto, and admitted to record. Teste: M: Beckwith, Clerk (of) Court

An appraisal of John Willis's estate was recorded in court on 7 September 1715.[9] The microfilm is in poor condition, but data which can be read is as follows:

Whereas in obedience to an Order of Richmond County Court bearing date the sixth day of July 1715 we(e) Francis Slaughter and Richard Tutt and John Combs being () the said Order to Appraise the estate of John Willis, Sr., deceased did on the 15th day of July 1715 meet at the house of said John Willis, deceased, and (appraised) all and every part of his estate brought by the executors to our view.

The lengthy inventory includes such items as livestock, furniture, household utensils (including pewterware), Indian corn, tobacco, two pairs of spectacles, a parcel of old books, looking glass, pictures, a Vallins rug, spinning wheel, grindstone, two bushels of salt, several ells of cloth (including serge, sheeting, linen, cambridge, dimity, and flannel), scissors, nine dozen pipes, and many items relating to iron, brass, and pewter. The unusually large quantity of fabrics and metalware suggests that John may have been involved in merchandising in a limited way, although he was never identified as a merchant in the records. The appraisers listed specific items which were inventoried and given to Charles Willis, Mary Cullins, and Thomas James according to specific provisions in John's will.

To Charles Willis as a legatee: 1 old cow, 2 yearlings and 2 young calves, 1 young steer and 2 heifers, 4 sheep, 16 hogs, 12 small pigs, and 1 young cow to Thomas James.

To Mary Cullins as a legatee: 1 ewe and 1 lamb, 1 old chest, 1 iron pot and a dozen pewter spoons, 1 spice mortar and pestle and 1 pewter basin, 1 rug and 1 pair blankets, 1 feather bed and 1 trunk, 1 heifer, and 1 Bright Bay mare with a star in her forehead.

An additional, short inventory in the amount of 33 pounds 9 shillings 9 pence was presented in Court by the same men on 27 April 1716 and recorded on 2 May 1716.[10] While much of it is unreadable because of the deterioration of the record, it appears to include tobacco and a bull. Neither inventory was reported in previous research, and no estate settlement has been found.

According to George B. Loeffler and George H. S. King, John's last wife was Matilda Thacker widow of Henry Thacker who died testate in Richmond County by 2 August 1693 when his will was presented in court by Matilda Thacker, his executor, and proved by Joshua Davis who was undoubtedly one of the witnesses.[11] Richmond County Will Book 1 is missing, but the recording of Henry Thacker's will is proved in Order Book 1.[12] The relationship, if any, between Henry Thacker and the Thackers of Gloucester, Middlesex, and Lancaster counties has not been established as yet. However, in 1671 Henry was living in Abbington Parish, Gloucester County, and owned land on the south side of the Rappahannock River. By 1686 Henry and Matilda Thacker were living in Rappahannock County when they sold 600 acres on the south side of the Rappahannock River to John Powell and John Battaile with Matilda giving her Power of Attorney to Joshua Davis to acknowledge it in Court.[13]

On 22 July 1693 John Willis made the following prenuptial deed of gift to Matilda.[14]

Be it known unto all persons to whom these presents shall come I John Willis of the aforesaid County for Love & Affection I have unto Matilda Thacker whom I desire to make my Wife, do give & bequeath unto the aforesd. Matilda Thacker her heirs Executrs: Admistrs: or assignes forever one bed & furniture which she shall make choice of & foure breeding cattle not under three years nor above six years old, & one young mare not under three years old & not above six years old, and all her cloathes, And in case I the said John Willis should out live my said Intended Wife, Matilda Thacker, shee to dispose of the aforesaid goods & cattle according as she pleases. And in case I should die before her then these goods & cattle to be first taken out of my Estate & delivered (to) my Wife and she to have her proporcon of my Estate according to Law over & above the goods & cattle aforemenconed. Returning to John's 1669 patent of 261 acres, the above records show that he deeded part of it (100 acres) to his son John, Jr., in 1694 and the balance (161 acres) to his son William in 1701. Both tracts were entailed and gave the widows of his sons lifetime occupancy rights if his sons married.

William Willis died intestate in 1716 leaving a widow named Sarah, sons John and William, and probably a daughter Sarah (who later married Benjamin Hawkins).[15] As John was William's eldest son, he became heir to his father's entailed portion of his grandfather's patent.

John Willis Sr.'s eldest son, John Jr., died testate and without surviving issue in 1728.[16] The 100 acres which John Jr. received from his father in 1694 then reverted to his nephew, John Willis, eldest son and heir of his brother William. Consequently, Williams's son John could sell the 100 acres which he held in fee simple from his uncle John Jr.'s estate (because it was not entailed to John Sr.'s reversionary heirs), but he could not sell the entailed 161 acres which he inherited from his father without petitioning the legislature.

In 1734 the Virginia Assembly passed an Act allowing entailed lands of less than 200 pounds in value, and which were not part of or adjoining to other entailed lands, to be sold if a writ of ad quod damnum was filed with the sheriff. This Act cleared the way for John, who then moved to Orange County, to sell the entire 261 acres, but the procedure involved three deeds and his stepfather's (Edward Turberville) release. Those documents, which conclusively prove the lineage of John Willis of King George and Orange counties (son of William Willis and grandson of John Willis Sr.), are very lengthy, so many repetitions found in the originals have been deleted here for brevity.[17]

The first deed from John Willis of Hanover Parish to William Robinson was dated 31 May 1737 and pertained to the entailed 161 acres.

...Whereas John Willis, deceased, grandfather of the above John Willis party to these presents, was in his lifetime seized in fee of 261 acres of land...lying or being in the aforesaid Parish of Hanover in the said County of King George granted unto him by Letters Pattent bearing date the 21st day of October 1669 and being so seized by deed or assignment endorsed on the back of the said Letters Pattent bearing date the 26th day of April 1701 did give and grant unto his son William Willis, now deceased, and his heirs lawfully begotten of his body 161 acres of land, part of the said 261 acres, (by) the same of all the remaining of the within Pattent of land except 100 acres formerly given to his eldest son John as by the said Letters Patent and assignment recorded in the County Court of Richmond...and whereas the said William Willis is dead and the said 161 acres of land are descended and come to the said John Willis, party to these presents, the eldest son and heir of the body of the said William Willis, whereby the said John Willis is seized of the said premises in fee tail, and whereas by an inquisition taken before Benjamin Berryman, Gent., Sheriff of the said County of King George, the 11th day of March last past by virtue of a Writ in the nature of an ad quod damnum to him directed persuant to the Act of Assembly in such cases made or proved it is found that the said 161 acres of the value of 60 pounds sterling and no more and that the same are a separate parcel and not parcel of or contiguous to other in(tailed) lands in the possession and seizen of the said John Willis...Now this indenture witnesseth that for and in consideration of the sum of 70 [sic] pounds current money of Virginia to the said John Willis in hand paid by the said William Robinson at or before the sealing and delivery of these premises the receipt whereof he doth hereby acknowledge and thereof dot release acquit and discharge the said William Robinson his heirs exrs and admrs forever by these presents, he the said John Willis hath granted bargained sold aliened released and confirmed ...unto the said William Robinson...the aforesaid 161 acres...

At a Court continued and held for King George County the 4th day of June 1737. Then came John Willis and acknowledged this Deed of bargain and sale together with the receipt for the consideration and money thereon endorsed to William Robinson Gent. which on the motion of the said William was admitted to record. Signed: Thomas Turner [Clerk of King George County Court]

The second document, dated 1 June 1737, was the first part of the typical lease/release of that time whereby John Willis and William Robinson leased the entire 261 acres for one year to Joseph Strother and Maximilian Robinson, Gent., Church Wardens of Hanover Parish.

Following this deed was a receipt for 120 pounds which was signed by John Willis and witnessed by the same men. The deed was recorded by T. Turner, Clerk of King George Court, on 4 June 1737 with Elizabeth Willis's release and consent, and John Willis acknowledged his bond in the amount of 200 pounds for good title. Those details indicate that John and Elizabeth were in King George in June 1737 and suggest that they had not yet migrated to Orange County. It is noted that the lifetime occupancy rights of Mary Coghill Willis Jennings, the widow of John Willis Jr., were protected. The difference in the acreage will be discussed in Chapter V.

On the same day that John and Elizabeth (Plunkett) Willis and William Robinson released the tract to the Church Wardens, Edward Turberville gave his Power of Attorney to Joseph Berry to relinquish any interest which he had in his wife's dower rights. Sarah (—) Willis Wood HudsonTurberville, the wife of Edmund Turberville, was the widow of William Willis and mother of John Willis of the above deeds.

Churchwarden of the said Parish was admitted to record. Teste T. Turner, Clerk*

County Orders show that on 4 June 1737 John Willis appeared in Court and acknowledged his Deed of Bargain and Sale to William Robinson on behalf of the Parish of Hanover which on his motion was admitted to record. John, his wife Elizabeth, and William Robinson also acknowledged the above deeds to the Church Wardens of Hanover Parish.[18] John acknowledged his bond to the Church Wardens, and it was admitted to record. Sarah Turberville, his mother, also came into Court and acknowledged her release of dower rights.[19]

Having disposed of their lands in King George County, John and Elizabeth (Plunkett) Willis, Edward and Sarah (Willis Wood Hudson) Turberville, and members of their families moved to Orange County where Edward Turberville died intestate by 6 October 1750.[20] Sarah Turberville died testate between 18 June 1760 and 28 May 1761.[21] Her son John Willis died testate in Orange County between 25 November 1761 and 25 March 1762.[22] These families will be discussed in the chapters on William Willis and the family's transition to Orange County.

John Willis Sr.'s 261-acre patent was the glebe for Hanover Parish for thirty years. In 1767 the Vestry of Hanover Parish sold it to William Thornton for 200 pounds.[23]

> *This indenture made the sixth day of August in the year of our Lord 1767 between Charles Carter, William Robinson, John Triplett, Thomas Jett, Thomas Hodge, Max. Robinson, Jos. While not directly related to this research, it is noted that on the same date the Vestry replaced this glebe tract with 339 acres which they purchased for 624 pounds 10 shillings from the estate of Richard Tutt.[24] The deed for the new glebe mentions that Tutt's tract joined a parcel which had been purchased by Joseph Murdock, Gent., from John Jett, to a swamp, down the meanders of the swamp to the Rappahannock River, down the river to the sand hole branch, and to the beginning. Richard Tutt's will, which was written in January 1766 and proved in March 1767, referred to a bargain he had made with the Church Wardens for the land.[25]

A few comments regarding additions or corrections to earlier research reports will be offered at this point. As stated above, a considerable amount of research on the descendants of John Willis Sr. was done by George B. Loeffler, now deceased. After reviewing the records, my findings agree with his conclusions with few exceptions.

I concur with Loeffler that John Willis's will specifically proves only five children: John Willis Jr.; William Willis; Charles Willis (who in 1715 had a wife Matilda and a son John); Mary (the wife of Thomas James and who in 1715 had a son named David); and Susannah. However, there may have been other children who were unnamed but included in the statement, "all and every one of my children Sons and Daughters," which was given three times in John's will. Mary Cullins was the daughter of Catherine Cullins Pullen, but Catherine was not the daughter of John Willis.[26] I found no evidence that either Mary Gardener or Mary Cullins was a granddaughter. Although John's will names only one son of his daughter Mary and son-in-law Thomas James, a later deed given in Chapter VIII proves that they also had a son named William. Mary Willis James, Thomas James, and their eldest son, David James, were deceased by 1742.[27] It is likely that John Willis Sr.'s daughters Mary [James] and Susannah also left other children, although they have not been identified as of this date.

Earlier undocumented claims by Maud Potter and others that Isaac Arnold was John's son-in-law are incorrect.[28] Isaac Arnold married Margaret Goff(e), daughter of Thomas Goffe.[29] Proofs for Potters's claims that John Willis Sr. was the son of William Willis (brother of Col. Francis Willis) of Crany (or Craney) Creek and the brother of Thomas and William Willis have not been found, but inconclusive evidence is given in Chapter XII.

The estate inventories for John Willis Sr. and his son William and the names of their appraisers are new information not previously reported. According to Richmond County Court Orders, William Willis died by December 5, 1716, not in 1717 as given in prior accounts (see Chapter VI).

When Loeffler wrote his article on John Willis Sr., he did not include the information from King George County Will Book A-1.[30] This will book disappeared during the Civil War, was recovered in 1976, transcribed by George H. S. King, and published in 1978. Because it contains the wills of John Willis Jr. and his wife, Mary Coghill Willis Jennings, it has added greatly to our knowledge of the Willis family in Richmond and King George counties.

Family researchers have repeatedly assumed that Charles' wife Matilda was the daughter of Henry Thacker and Matilda (—) Thacker (who became the last wife of John Willis Sr.), but I did not find any evidence to prove that she was. Contrary to earlier reports, there is no mention of either Charles or Matilda in John's prenuptial deed of gift to his last wife, Matilda Thacker, which is given above. While Charles' wife may have been the daughter of Henry Thacker, other possibilities should not be dismissed.

There has been much confusion between John Willis Sr.'s grandsons John Willis (son of William) and John Willis (son of Charles). Charles Willis was deceased by 1725 when his son John petitioned the Court for his uncle, John Willis Jr., to be named as his guardian.[31] After John Willis Jr. died in 1728, Charles' son John again petitioned the Court for Thomas Goffe to be named as his guardian, indicating that this John, who was a first cousin of our direct ancestor also named John, was born between 1707 and 1711, a birthdate formerly assigned to John, son of William.[32] In order to minimize the ambiguity between the various men named John Willis in this manuscript, John Willis Sr. will refer to the eldest man who died in 1715, John Willis Jr. will refer to his son who died in 1728, and the two grandsons named John will be identified in the text as either the son of William or the son of Charles. Another John Willis who died in 1682 in Westmoreland County (and who may have been the father of John Willis Sr.) is given in Chapter X.

No other previous histories have comprehensively reviewed John Willis Sr.'s land records or have given his 1669 patent from the original patent book. To my knowledge no other researchers have attempted to trace this patent or reported the sale of the tract by the Hanover Parish Vestry to William Thornton in 1767. Information from these and related land documents provide Willis family researchers with new data not included by Loeffler. Also no one has attempted to trace John Willis's ancestors by examining his immediate community which almost assuredly included unknown relatives.

John Willis's land holdings were greater than as reported by Loeffler. Between 1669 and 1696/97 John acquired four tracts by patent, grant, or deed for a total of approximately 684 acres depending upon his share of a joint purchase with Thomas Goff and Thomas Kendall in 1687/88. The history of John's 1669 grant will be discussed in Chapter II, and his other land records will be given in Chapter III.

The co-owner of John's 1690/91 grant who was named in the above deed to his son John Jr. in 1694 was John Persons [sic], not John Powers as reported elsewhere. According to subsequent records, his name was actually John Parsons which will be used in this manuscript. The acreage of that parcel was 158 acres in the original grant, not 154 as stated in Gray and not 185 as given in Loeffler's article, the first probably a transcription error and the last undoubtedly due to a transposition of numbers.

Chapter IV will present an overview of the community where John Willis's family lived on the Northern Neck. This is followed by records for his children in Richmond/King George County and a brief discussion of their migration to Orange County.

Finally, in his articles Loeffler did not include the Willis families of early Westmoreland County who are reviewed in Chapters X and XI, Col. Francis Willis (Chapter XII), or Col. Henry Willis (Chapter XIII).

Chapter II

Tracing John Willis Sr.'s 1669 Patent

The primary goal of my research was to learn more about John Willis Sr. and to find the names of his parents. The evidence given in Chapter I proves that John Willis who died in 1761–1762 in Orange County, Virginia, was the grandson of John Willis Sr. and identifies some of their neighbors in King George County. However, it does not provide any insights about the parents of John Sr.

As I progressed through the old documents, I became increasingly aware of the importance of land records as being one way to trace events in John's life. Consequently, this chapter will focus on his first patent and finding the specific location of the tract because that knowledge might hold the key to identifying his family. In what part of King George County was it located? Was in above or below present Bristol Mines Run? On which side of the ridge or fall line was it? Did any part of his patent lie within what was then Westmoreland County, but which later became King George County? Who were his neighbors, and was John related to any of them?

My focus in this chapter is to provide some basic data about the men who either owned or lived on land which adjoined John Willis's 1669 patent so that the reader has a general framework for the other data which is given below. John's later grants and deeds will be given in Chapter III, and a summary of his neighbors will be found in Chapter IV.

Attempting to trace land which was obtained by early patents or grants in the Northern Neck is challenging, and finding the location of specific tracts is often impossible. Boundaries were described in metes, bounds, current landholders, and streams whose names changed, sometimes several times. Counties were being created and re-created, or, as in the case of Old Rappahannock County, discontinued. Parishes were formed and later re-created or dissolved.

It is assumed that John Willis Sr. was at least twenty-one when he received his first patent and was therefore born by 1648. During his lifetime dramatic changes occurred on the Northern Neck, and many of those changes involved land ownership. In 1648 an Act which prohibited settlement north of the York River was repealed. Immigrants who had been pressing for the opening of lands responded immediately, especially in the unsettled, upper regions between the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers. By 1650 some had received patents for tracts in that part of Northumberland County which in 1653 became Westmoreland County. One group of immigrants chose land in the Potomac watershed which was drained by Hallowes Creek, first named for John Hallowes and later called Appomattox Creek, then simply Mattox Creek. (As shown above, John Willis's patent was described as being on the falling branches of Appomattox Creek between the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers.) An early list of landowners in this area dating sometime between 1648 and 1652 included Nathaniel Pope, William Freake, John Hollis (Hallowes), and a James Willis.[1] The first three settled on Mattox Creek, while James Willis lived on Yeocomoco Neck where he died in 1655.[2]

In April 1652 settlers were required to take an Oath of Loyalty to the Cromwell government. Names on that list include John Hallowes and James Willis.[3]

John Hallowes received two patents in 1650/51—one for 600 acres for transporting twelve people to the colonies, including an unknown Richard Willis and William Freake, and the other for 1,600 acres for thirty-two headrights, again including William Freake. That year William Freake and Nathaniel Pope began patenting land on Mattox Creek.[4]

John Washington, great-grandfather of the President, and his brother Lawrence arrived on the Northern Neck around 1657. John married Nathaniel Pope Sr.'s daughter, Ann. Nathaniel Pope Sr. died in 1660 in Westmoreland County, his daughter Ann Pope Washington died before 1675, and John Washington died in 1677.[5] The reader must be careful not to confuse Ann Pope, who married John Washington the immigrant, with their daughter Ann Washington, who married Francis Wright. As cited in Chapter I, John Washington owned land adjoining John Willis' 1669 patent, and the heirs or assignees of John Washington, Nathaniel Pope, and William Freake were neighbors to John Willis Sr.

One aspect which I found interesting was that John Willis was probably the first immigrant to till the land which was included in his 1669 patent. No record has been found to indicate that someone had lived on the tract before John or that he got the patent by assignment.

Many patentees received their land through the headright system by which they were given 50 acres for each person they transported or for whom they paid passage to the colonies (see Introduction). According to Nugent, the patentee was supposed to pay a quitrent of one shilling for each 50 acres beginning seven years after the first grant or seating and not before.[6] However, if the patentee or his assignee did not seat his land or plant on the tract within three years, the land was subject to escheat and could be patented by someone else. As a result, the records include first patents, second or third patents (of all or part of the original patent or incorporating the first patent w new land), assignments, wills devising patented lands or parts thereof (with new patents being issued to the heirs), and a web of intermingled claims.

In May 1662 the following proclamation was issued:

> Whereas the remoteness of Westmoreland makes one unable effectually to settle the revenue due to the King from his tenants in those parts as also would be troublesome to the inhabitants to bring their patents to one, I, Peter Jennings, Deputy Treasurer, have appointed Mr. William Horton to take an account of what lands is held in the said county to be entered in the Treasurer's Office as also to receive what monies or tobacco is due as well for rent as entries for my use and the last year's rent.[7]

Clues suggest that John Willis was one of the youngest patentholders in this area. His known neighboring landowners in October 1669 were John Washington, Robert Nurse, Phillip Browne, John Piper, John Foxhall, Nathaniel Pope (Jr.), John Watts, John Wilsford, and some nonresidents. Of these, three men died around 1670—Nathaniel Pope (Jr.), Phillip Browne (who did not seat his land with the tract escheating), and John Piper. Robert Nurse died by 1673, John Washington died in 1677, John Foxhall died in 1678, and John Watts died by 1679.[8] It is likely that John Willis Sr. was somehow related to one of these men or that his family had a previous connection to one of them.

My search for John Willis's 1669 tract began with his patent in Virginia Land Patents.[9] I did not find any connection between John Willis and the people who were listed as headrights in his patent, and their names did not appear in other documents which I reviewed, so John may have purchased the headrights from someone which was a common practice. John Willis was the only man named "Willis" in this specific area in 1669, although others with that surname were found in early Northumberland and Westmoreland counties.[10]

Results of my review of immigrant and headright lists were inconclusive because several men and women named "Willis" were given. However, the most promising entries which were found in Nugent and on microfilm will be noted. George Read was given a patent in 1648 which was renewed in 1650. Among the headrights were John Willis (as given in the original record with Nugent reporting it as John Wilks) and John Fryer. In 1651 a patent was given to James Willis of Northumberland County for 50 acres for the transportation of Jack(?) Willis (which is a common nickname for John), and James assigned it to John Earle according to Northumberland County Orders. In 1653 John Willis and Anne Willis were among the headrights on a patent for John Gillett. Robert Newman, as assignee of Robert Branch, received a patent in 1654 in which John Willis was listed as a headright according to Northumberland County Orders. In 1656 Richard Gibble's patent, which joined Newman's tract, named John Willis as a headright with several others who had been listed in Newman's patent. (It was not unusual for more than one person to claim the same list of headrights. The person paying the passage was entitled to headrights, and often the ship captain or another man involved in transporting the immigrant would also apply.) In 1658 a John Willis was listed as a headright on a patent issued to Capt. Augustine Warner.

No records were found to definitely prove that any of these men were John Willis Sr. As he was born by 1648 and died in 1715, it is doubtful that he was any of the above headrights. From data cited in Chapters X and XI, I suspect that one of these headrights was John Willis who died in 1682 in Westmoreland County although the evidence is circumstantial.

During the time these patents were issued, the boundary between the counties of Westmoreland (created from Northumberland in 1653) and Old Rappahannock (created from Lancaster in 1656) was the irregular and poorly defined ridge or fall line between the Potomac and Rappahannock watersheds.[11] Descriptions in the patents were often so vague that the land had to be traced through later deeds to determine where it was. Deeds were usually, but not always, recorded in the county where the land was located. If the tract lay on the ridge line, it might have been recorded in both counties or only one county. The fact that John's patent was for 261 acres, an unusual and odd number, made it much easier to trace than if it had been for an even number of acres, such as 200 or 300 acres.

In 1692 Old Rappahannock County was dissolved and divided into two counties with that portion of Rappahannock which lay on the north side of the river becoming Richmond County and the portion on the south side of the river becoming Essex County. Between 1692 and 1721 John Willis's tracts lay in that part of Richmond which eventually became King George County in 1721. Between 1721 and 1777 the dividing line between King George and Richmond counties was Brockenbrough Creek, and Westmoreland County did not abut the Rappahannock River. In 1777 the eastern border of King George was moved to Bristol Mines Run, and the land between Bristol Mines Run and Brockenbrough Creek was added to Westmoreland County, giving that county direct access to the Rappahannock River. Only by comparing the changes in county lines with the changes in parish lines was it possible to identify the location of John's land, and for that information and guidance I am greatly indebted to Merrill Hill Mosher.

When analyzing the old patents and deeds, it is important to know that Mattox (or Appomattox) Creek was in the Potomac watershed. The tracts which were described as being on Mattox were usually in Westmoreland County, although it appears that some of its headbranches lay on the south side of the ridge.[12] Likewise, when documents gave the location as being on the branches of the Rappahannock (on the north side of the river), those tracts were south of the ridge and in Old Rappahannock County. The terms "headbranches of Mattox and Rappa" or "falling branches" in the patents may have referred to streams whose meanders actually crossed the ridge or county line. Poultridges (Portridges, Portrages, etc.) Creek was frequently mentioned and was in the Rappahannock watershed south of the fall line even though a few early records imply that it was in Westmoreland County.

Because the following patents may be important in tracing John Willis' immigration and discovering any relationships between John Willis and his first known neighbors, they will be reported here as transcribed from the original patent books. It may be helpful for readers who are unfamiliar with those records to know that on the Northern Neck land certificates which were issued before 1690 were called patents because they originated from the Crown. After 1690 they were issued by the Proprietors and called grants.

Nugent's abstracts, which were taken from the patent books, do not include all of the data given in the original patent books which are available on microfilm. Both sources will be noted when used. The second page number given in parentheses refers to an earlier, now extinct, folio or patent book in which the patent had been recorded.

John Willis's patent was given in Chapter I. John Washington's patent which adjoined John Willis in 1669 is found in Virginia Patent Book 5, p. 168 (50) and is given here as transcribed from the original document:[13]

> *To all...the said William Berkeley Knight Governor, etc., give and grant unto Major John Washington seventeen hundred acres of land lying between the headbranches of Porotridge and Appomattox Creeks the one falling into the Rappahannock River and the other into Potomack River and Beginning at an oak by Wariscreek path being the corner tree that lyeth next to a tract of land belonging to Nathaniel Pope, from which oak (is extended) north three hundred perches over certain branches that fall into Appomattox Creek to an oak, thence west to and by a branch of Porotridge Creek (three) hundred and fifty six poles to a white oak, then over the said branch north eighty poles to a Pohickory, then west two hundred and ninety poles then south one hundred and forty poles then east one hundred and thirty poles then south two hundred and eighty poles to () oak by a branch of Porotridge Creek then west eighty nine(?) poles thence south one hundred and eighty poles then east four hundred and nine poles then north two hundred and twenty poles to an oak in (line of?) Freake assigned all 600 acres to John Washington on 26 March 1664.[15] In 1674 Washington sold back his interest in 300 acres in the southernmost part of this tract to Freake, the record stating that Freake's portion lay next to Portridge Creek in Rappahannock County.[16]

The importance of this data is that Freake was the original patentee of part of the tract, but he held no interest in it on 21 October 1669 when John Willis received his patent and therefore was not mentioned—perhaps a seemingly minor detail, but evidence that Freake owned land there before Willis received his patent (although Freake may not have actually been living on it at the time). In 1674 Freake bought part of Washington's patent back and was John Willis's immediate neighbor until Freake's death in 1684/85.

In 1661 John Washington and Thomas Pope (i.e., Jr., Washington's brother-in-law) had received another patent for 1,200 acres.

This patent is an example of land described as being in Westmoreland County when in reality it was partly in the Rappahannock watershed and therefore on both sides of the ridge line.

In September 1668 Governor Berkeley granted the same 1,200 acres to Col. Nicholas Spencer, the tract "being formerly granted to John Washington and Thomas Pope on 4 September 1661 and by them deserted for want of seating." Spencer's patent was recorded on 29 October 1668, and on the same day he assigned his interest in the tract back to Washington.[18]

Consequently, when John Willis received his patent in 1669, John Washington held title to both of the above tracts—one containing 1,700 acres and the other being 1,200 acres. It is not clear if these two parcels were contiguous, but when Washington wrote his will in 1675, he devised these tracts to his daughter, Ann, who later married Major Francis Wright.[19] In 1705 Francis and John Wright (husband and son of Ann Washington Wright) sold 1,000 acres of the 1,700-acre patent to Francis Thornton Sr. From that time until the Willis patent was sold to the Church Wardens in 1737, the Thorntons were neighbors to John Willis Sr. and his family.

The other important patents for land which either joined John Willis or were close to his land in 1669 will be given in chronological order as abstracted from the original books with assistance of Merrill Hill Mosher, C.G. The patent books are difficult to read and contain obsolete spellings (i.e., lyne for line, oake for oak, and forrest for forest), so spelling has been modernized and I have highlighted the name of the patentees for the reader's convenience.

Although one of the measurements given in Foxhall's patent is unclear, acreages of the other tracts can be computed from the information which is given. For those readers who are unfamiliar with the system used for land surveys in colonial times, one pole was equivalent to 16.5 feet.

The data given in these six patents, supplemented with later deeds and wills, provide several clues to the location of the patents relative to each other at the time the patents were issued.

It may be important that Browne's patent, which was dated nine days after John Willis's patent, stated that John's land had been surveyed but did not specifically say that John was living on it. By law John had three years in which to seat the tract. As it was not repatented and did not escheat, he was probably living on the 261-acre parcel by or before 1672. Browne's and Foxhall's patents did not mention any other landholder on their southern boundaries, so that land may not have been patented yet.

Consequently, in the fall of 1669 John Willis, John Washington, John Piper, John Foxhall, Phillip Browne, Nathaniel Pope, Robert Nurse, and John Watts owned tracts between the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers near Ned the Indian's path (possibly the same as Wariscreek or Warisquock path) and Powetridge (which was found with a variety of spellings in the records, including Portrages, Porotridge, Portridge, Poultridge, Partridge, and perhaps later as Portus or Portis) Creek. I suspect that it may have been named because it was a convenient route for portaging between the Rappahannock and Potomac rivers. Apparently several branches, including one called Bald Eagle, ran into Portrages Creek which joined Crows Swamp. A 1728 deed mentioned "Indian Ned's but formerly called Powetridge Creek." This may have been an earlier name for Jett's Creek./

One question which remains unanswered is why Westmoreland County was given as the location of the above tracts. Subsequent records place all of Willis's patent, Browne's patent, probably Foxhall's patent, and much of Washington's 1,700-acre patent south of the fall line in what was then Old Rappahannock County and later became Richmond County. I suspect that some of the patentees were residents of Westmoreland County in 1669 and that the ridge line was so indefinite that Westmoreland was used in the patents. According to Eaton, some creeks which flow into the Rappahannock River actually have their headwaters within a mile of the Potomac.[23] Eaton also reported that John Washington, the immigrant, built a hotel and residence called the "Court House" at Mattox Ferry where he held Justices' Court.[24] Although I have not tried to verify that statement, it may account for the fact the earliest records in this area were recorded in Westmoreland County which was more convenient than the Old Rappahannock Court which met several miles downstream. Another possibility which might be explored is that certain areas in this locale were not yet officially open for patenting, and the inference that the tracts were in Westmoreland County and the vagueness of the patents enabled these men to preempt the parcels.

Eaton placed the Washington-Pope patent of 1,200 acres of 4 September 1661 on Sheet #2 (p. 60) between a 1,000 acre patent to Nathaniel Pope (which Eaton said was sold to John Watts in 1665) and a 300 acre patent issued in 1654 to John Hallowes. Although I found some minor discrepancies to this data in the records, the approximate location which Eaton gave to John Piper's and Nathaniel Pope's patents on Sheet #2 compares favorably with what I found for Foxhall's 314 acre patent which seems to have been mostly south of the Piper grant (with the exception of a long, narrow strip which lay between Piper and Washington) and west and south of Pope's grant which Pope sold to Watts.

Nathaniel Pope Sr. died testate in Westmoreland County between 16 May 1659 and 20 April 1660.[25] He left his minor son Thomas his "Clifts" plantation, and his son Nathaniel both the land where Nathaniel Sr. lived and his patent of 1,050 acres at the head of Appomattox Creek. Thomas Pope willed his "Cliffs" land to his sons Richard and John in 1685. Nathaniel Pope Jr. repatented the 1,050-acre tract on 13 January 1661/62 and assigned it to John Watts on 1 November 1665 with Watts then selling half of it to Thomas Wilsford.[26]

Although this tract has not been fully traced, it is known that Wilsford died in 1666 leaving the 525 acres which he bought from John Watts to his son, Andrew Wilsford, stipulating that it would revert to his sons James and Thomas Wilsford if Andrew died without heirs.[27] John Watts was his executor, and Robert Nurse was one of the witnesses to his will. John Watts was deceased by 1679, his will being among the missing Westmoreland County records (see Chapter IV).

It appears that Andrew Wilsford, the son, died without heirs because in 1700 Thomas Wilsford (Andrew's brother?) willed all of his lands and estate to his friend, Richard Watts, who in 1707 sold the entire 1,050 acre Pope patent to Abraham Blagge.[28] Tracing this particular tract is difficult because of the missing deeds and wills, but I suspect the answer lies in a possible relationship between the Wilsford , Watts, and Blagg families.

In 1679 Abraham Blagg paid John Willis 450 pounds of tobacco out of the estate of Mr. Jno. Watts, deceased, by order of the sheriff.[29] The names Watts, Wilsford, and Blagg(e) were not found in later documents with the Willises in Richmond or King George counties, but Nathaniel Pope (alias Bridges, son of Nathaniel Pope Jr.) was called "my friend" by John Willis in a Power of Attorney in 1701 (see Chapter I). No significant references were found for Robert Nurse who died in Westmoreland County, but two of his estate appraisers were William Freake and John Watts which indicates that he probably lived in the Mattox Creek neighborhood.[30]

John Piper Sr. died testate between 25 January 1669/1670 and 17 September 1673 in Westmoreland County leaving his son John "my land which I tooke up this yeare." The records suggest that John Piper Jr. married Margaret Reeds, daughter of Samuel Reeds.[31] Both John Piper Jr. and Samuel Reeds (Sr.) died in 1698, the first intestate and the second testate. Under the law of primogeniture, John Piper Jr.'s land went to his eldest son, another John Piper, who was named as "my grandson" in Samuel Reed's will. John Piper Jr.'s widow, Margaret, then married Thomas Harper who died testate in 1737. Margaret Reeds Piper Harper died testate in 1744, her will naming her sons John Piper, Thomas Harper, George Harper, and Samuel Harper.[32]

In 1716 John Washington and wife Mary of Stafford County sold 171.5 acres, partly in St. Mary's Parish, Richmond County, and partly in Westmoreland County, to Francis Thornton Sr., the tract adjoining land of John Piper, deceased, Thomas

Marshall, Thomas Robins, Francis Thornton, and John Willis Sr.[33] Again, the missing Westmoreland records make it difficult to specifically trace this parcel, but the southern boundary of the 171.5 acre tract abutted the northern boundary of John Willis's 261-acre patent. Therefore, the 171.5 acres were probably in the northeastern part of Washington's 1,700-acre patent. As will be seen below, in 1726 Francis Thornton willed this tract to his wife's son, George Riding.

In 1737 John Piper (probably a descendant of the first John) received a grant for 37 acres in both counties on Mattox and Portridges creeks, adjoining John Marshall, George Riding, John Willis, John Jennings, Joshua Farguson, and his own land.[34] This John Willis, probably the son of William and the grandson of John Sr., sold his grandfather's patent to the Church Wardens of Hanover Parish in 1737. John Jennings was the second husband of Mary Coghill Willis Jennings, widow of John Willis Jr. who is discussed in Chapter V.

John Foxhall's 1669 patent is not shown on Eaton's plats of Westmoreland County because most of it was south of the ridge in Old Rappahannock. There has been confusion over Foxhall's land, partly because John Foxhall Sr. died in 1678 in Westmoreland and his will and estate records are among that county's missing records (see sketch in Chapter IV). Reconstruction of his holdings from later documents indicates that in 1670 he bought a 99-year lease on a mill, called Underwood's Mill, from William Underwood, the mill being about eight miles above Southers (or Southerns) Ferry on the Rappahannock. The lease became the property of his son John Foxhall Jr. who was a merchant and died testate in Washington Parish, Westmoreland County, in 1698. Foxhall left his "water mill" to (nephews?) James Vaulx and John Elliott Jr. The mill belonged to several leaseholders through the years, and finally in 1721 John Underwood (heir of William Underwood) and Richard and James Tutt (leaseholders) sold their interests in the mill and 50 acres to John King, Esq., and Company, merchants in Bristol, England.[35] Old maps show that the Bristol Ironworks and Furnace were just below present Bristol Mines Run. Eaton said that by 1729 the Bristol Mines furnace had ceased operations.

Much later (1762) John Jett of Hanover Parish in King George sold a water grist mill which was situated "a little above the place where the Bristol furnace formerly stood" to Jeremiah Murdock.[36] At that time the tract was in Hanover Parish. (In 1732 the upper part of Sittenburne Parish in lower King George County was incorporated into Hanover Parish.[37]) This mill is traced in Chapter IV through the Underwood and Foxhall families. John Willis's tract, which was always in St. Mary's Parish and then in Hanover Parish, and in Old Rappahannock, Richmond, and King George counties allowing that it would revert to his sons James and Thomas Wishford if Andrew died without heirs. John Watts was his executor, and Robert Norris was one of the witnesses to his will. John Watts was deceased by 1673, his will being among the missing Westmoreland County records (see Chapter IV).

Tracing this particular land is difficult because of the missing deeds and wills, but I suggest the sale of land in a possible relationship between the Wishford, Watts, and Blagg families.

In 1679 Abraham Blagg paid John Willis 150 pounds of tobacco out of the estate of Mr. [illegible] Watts, deceased, by order of the sheriff. The names Watts, Wishford, and Blagg were not found in later documents with the Willises in Richmond or King George counties, but Nathaniel Pope (alias Bridges, son of Nathaniel Pope Jr.) was called "my friend" by John Willis in a Power of Attorney in 1701 (see Chapter I). No significant references were found for Robert Norris who died in Westmoreland County, but two of his estate appraisers were William Franks and John Watts which indicates that he probably lived in the Mattox Creek neighborhood.

John Piper Sr. died testate between 25 January 1669/1670 and 17 September 1673 in Westmoreland County leaving his son John "my land which I tooke up this yeare." The records suggest that John Piper Jr. married Margaret Reeds, daughter of Samuel Reeds. Both John Piper Jr. and Samuel Reeds (Sr.) died in 1678, the first intestate and the second testate. Therefore the 171.5 acres were probably in the northeastern part of [illegible] 1,000-acre patent. As will be seen below, in 1726 Francis Thornton's land was next to his with a son, George Eskridge.

In 1727 John Piper (probably a descendant of the first John) received a grant for 77 acres in both counties on Mattox and Partridge creeks, adjoining John Marshall, George Eskridge, John Willis, John Jennings, Joshua Ferguson, and his own land. This John Piper, probably the son of William and the grandson of John Jr., sold his grandfather's patent to the Church Wardens of Hanover Parish in 1737. John Jennings was the second husband of Mary Coggill Willis Jennings, widow of John Willis Jr. who is discussed in Chapter V.

John Fushell's 1662 patent is not shown on Eaton's plat of Westmoreland County because most of it was south of the ridge in Old Rappahannock. There has been confusion over Fushell's land, partly because John Fushell Sr. died in 1678 in Westmoreland and his will and estate records are among that county's missing records (see Fushell in Chapter IV). Reconstruction of his holdings from later documents indicates that in 1670 he bought a 99-year lease on a mill called Underwood's Mill from William Underwood, the mill being about eight miles above Southerns (or Southerns') Ferry on the Rappahannock. The lease became the property of his son John Fushell Jr. who was a merchant and died testate in Washington Parish, Westmoreland County, in 1688. Fushell left his "water mill" to nephews James Veale and John Elliott Jr. The mill belonged to several leaseholders through the years, and finally in 1721 John Underwood (heir of William Underwood) and Richard and James Tayloe (Underwood) sold their interests in the mill and 50 acres to John King, Esq., and Company, merchants in Bristol, England. Old maps show that the Bristol Ironworks and Furnace were just below present Bristol Mines Run. Eaton said that by 1729 the Bristol Mines Furnace had ceased operations.

as boundaries changed, was west of Foxhall's mill and present Bristol Mines Run.

In 1675 a John Willis was ordered by the Westmoreland County Court to pay John Foxhall 973 pounds of tobacco which was "due by bill,"[38] and in 1687 John Willis was appointed as surveyor of the highways from Foxhall's Mill to Keyes Swamp in Rappahannock County.[39] (The first man may have been the John Willis who died in 1682 in Westmoreland although it is unclear, but the second man was undoubtedly John Willis Sr.) In addition, in 1685 William Underwood gave a performance bond to Nathaniel Pope (alias Bridges) to convey a tract "where Underwood lives near or upon line of John Willis running on outside line of said Underwood's line next to Potomac.[40] William Underwood Sr. acquired several large tracts on the north side of the Rappahannock River prior to the time that John Willis received his 1669 patent. As the only land which John Willis Sr. owned in 1685 was his 261-acre patent, it is assumed that this was the parcel which joined Underwood. Old Rappahannock County wills indicate that William Underwood Sr.'s widow, Elizabeth, married Archidale Coombes (or Archdale Combs) by 1675 and that they were the parents of John Combs, John Willis's adjoining neighbor (see Chapters III and IV).

As will be discussed in Chapter III, John Willis Sr. and John Parsons Sr. jointly received a grant of 158 acres in 1690/91, the tract described as being above (upstream from) Foxhall's mill. This tract appears to have overlapped with Phillip Browne's 1669 patent of 200 acres which escheated for lack of seating and which was later repatented by Randolph Kirk and John Fryer. According to the records, Kirke died before a division was made, and Fryer sold the patent to Thomas Crane. Crane sued for possession, but the Court ruled in favor of Willis and Parsons. The original 1690/91 grant to Willis and Parsons and John Willis's deed to his son John Jr. in 1694 stated that this tract adjoined John's 261-acre patent. The metes and bounds given in Browne's original patent imply that this land was just south of Washington's 1664 patent and Willis's 1669 patent, and west of Foxhall's 1669 patent.

Both Browne's and Foxhall's patents made reference to Ned the Indian's path. Ned (or Edmund) Gunstocker, Indian, received a patent for 150 acres from the Governor on 14 October 1665 in Rappahannock County.[41] Gunstocker's heirs sold it to Nathaniel Pope (alias Bridges, son of Nathaniel Pope Jr.) in 1697.[42] Land records confirm that Gunstocker's tract was later in Richmond (and then in King George) County.

The last and most complex land documents to be discussed here relate to John Washington's 1,700-acre patent. Washington received his patent in 1664 and was named as an adjoining landholder in the 1669 patents to Piper, Foxhall, Willis, and Browne.

In 1674 Washington deeded back 300 acres next to Portridge Creek in the lowermost part of his 1,700 acres to William Freake. In 1675 Washington (whose wife Ann Pope predeceased him) of Washington Parish, Westmoreland County, wrote his will. It was presented in Court in January, 1677/78. He left two tracts to his unmarried daughter Ann including 1,200 acres where Thomas Jordan was living (probably as a tenant) and 1,400 acres where John Frier (Fryer) was living "after Mr. Fricke (Freake) has his quantity out of it."

Consequently, by 1677/78 Washington's original 1,700-acre patent had been disposed of by William Freake's acquisition of 300 acres and Washington's devising the balance (1,400 acres) to his daughter who later became the wife of Major Francis Wright and the mother of John Wright, both of Westmoreland County. Freake's 300 acre parcel will be reviewed first, followed by Wright's 1,400 acres. Documentation and additional information about these men and their heirs will be found in Chapter IV.

William Freake (ffrack) died testate in 1684/85 in Rappahannock County leaving his entire estate to his wife Martha (whose maiden name is unknown) with provisions for "my man" Robert Vincent to have the right to lease his house and ground for seven years rent free.[43] Robert Vincent married the widow Martha, and in 1687 they sold 100 acres to Thomas Tippett. They sold the remaining 200 acres to Joshua Davis who then deeded the same 200 acres back to the Vincents a few days later, the reason for those deeds not being clear.[44]

In 1691 Thomas Tippett sold 100 acres to John Hauxford, and on 7 February 1694/95 the county surveyor was ordered to survey the tract as part of a dispute between Thomas Tippett and Robert Vincent, probably over the boundaries of the tract. At that time the Court ordered Francis Thornton to swear two neighbors to take part in the survey "as also John Willis who is ordered to be present at the time and place aforesaid to a true discovery of what he knows concerning the bounds of the said land."[45] Having lived in the area for twenty-five years, John was probably the oldest living original patentee in terms of years of residency and was knowledgeable about property lines in the neighborhood. (It is noted that in 1694 John Willis Sr. had also deeded part of his 1669 patent and his interest in the Willis–Parsons grant to his son John Willis Jr., so he probably had a vested interest in the survey.)

In March, 1700/01, William Hayberd, son of Ann (Freake) Hayberd (grandson and daughter of William Freake, deceased) sued John Hauxford for title to 300 acres which Freake had purchased from Washington on Portridges Creek (i.e., the southern portion of Washington's 1,700-acre patent). Hayberd claimed that the tract should have fallen to him as heir-at-law to his grandfather. Based upon Freake's will in which Freake specifically left all of his estate, including his land, to his wife Martha, the Court validated Martha's right to deed the tract and validated Hauxford's title.[46]

Four deeds involving this land were recorded in August and September of 1709. First, John Hauxford and Thomas Tippett traded (deeded to each other) an unspecified number of acres on the dividing line of their tracts. William Willis sold 12 acres of his father's 1669 patent (which John had deeded to him in 1701) to Hauxford. And finally Hauxford and his wife Saints sold 12 acres which were part of Washington's 1,700-acre patent dated 26 March 1664 (the date of Washington's assignment to Freake) to John Willis Jr.[47] When he wrote his will in 1727, John Willis Jr. referred to this as "that tract my brother William exchanged with John Hauxford" and willed it to William Wood (see Chapter V). As seen below, William Willis's son was able to sell the entire 261 acres in 1737, and Frederick Coghill Jr. (nephew of Mary Coghill Willis Jennings, widow of John Willis Jr.) sold the 12 acres to Francis Thornton in 1761. There was undoubtedly some in-house trading which was not properly recorded.

Hauxford received additional land by escheat in 1704. In 1717 he and his second wife Elizabeth sold this tract plus another parcel to Henry Wood who was then married to Sarah (—) Willis, widow of William Willis (see Chapter VI). William Wood (Henry's eldest son and heir-at-law) sold these two tracts to Rush Hudson Sr., the third husband of Sarah (—) Willis Wood Hudson, in 1734 after William Wood had moved to Orange County. In 1746 Rush Hudson Jr. of Orange County sold the two tracts plus two others (including 100 acres which his father had purchased from Richard Butler in 1723 and which was also part of Washington's patent) to Francis Thornton. In the 1746 deed all tracts were described as being on Portrages Creek or Bald Eagle in Hanover Parish, and the 1746 deed mentioned John Washington's patent for 1,700 acres.

In March 1718/19 Elizabeth Hauxford, the last wife of John Hauxford who was then deceased, sold 100 acres to Richard Butler. Hauxford had purchased this parcel from Robert Vincent.[48] In 1726 Butler sold the tract to Rowland Thornton (i.e., the son of Francis Thornton Sr.), the deed stating that it was part of Washington's 1664 patent for 1,700 acres and which was purchased by Butler from John Hauxford (given as Hansford by Sparacio).[49] This tract was part of the 300 acres which Freake had purchased from Washington in 1674 and which Freake's widow, Martha, and her second husband, Robert Vincent, sold to Tippett who sold to Hauxford.

On 5 September 1705 John Wright of Westmoreland County (son of Major Francis Wright and Ann Washington Wright) deeded 1,000 acres to Francis Thornton, the land being "part of a patent granted to Maj. John Washington for 1,700 acres dated 1 June 1664 beginning at the easternmost side of the land that was sold to Wm. Freake out of said patent and next to William Willis's, thence running north a straight course to the line of said patent, thence west and along the several courses of said patent till it comes to the land that did belong to Freake and now in possession of John Hawkford [Hauxford] and Thomas Tippett ... in St. Mary's Parish, Richmond County."[50] The deed was followed by a release by his father, Francis Wright, of Cople Parish, Westmoreland County. Apparently Ann Washington Wright was deceased at that time.

More detailed information about the Thornton family is found in Chapter IV. For purposes of tracing John Willis's land, it is noted that in 1726 Francis Thornton Sr. willed half of this 1,000 acres to his wife Ann (whose maiden name is unknown to me, but who was the widow of ___ Riding) for life with it to then go to her son, George Riding (in addition to the 171.5 acres discussed earlier) and the other half to his son, Rowland Thornton. His bequest mentioned John Hawxford [Hauxford], Thomas Tippett, and Crows Swamp.[51]

To place these events in context, in 1737 John Willis (son of William and Sarah, and grandson of John Willis Sr.) and his wife Elizabeth (Plunkett) sold his grandfather's 1669 patent to the Church Wardens of Hanover Parish for use as a glebe and moved to Orange County.

In 1741 Rowland Thornton wrote his will, leaving land in both Hanover Parish, King George County, and in Spotsylvania County to his son, Francis Thornton. Rowland's wife Elizabeth (nee Catlett) was to have a life interest in his tract on the upper side of Crows Swamp, and after her death it was also to belong to his son Francis.[52]

In 1766 this Francis Thornton (son of Rowland) willed part of his Crows Swamp land to his son William and the other part to his son Francis.[53] His will mentioned that an unidentified Francis Willis was living on one of the tracts which he left to William, the land lying "in the lowest side of Crows Swamp" and adjoining George Riding's line. Some Willis researchers believe this Francis Willis was the son of John Willis (son of Charles and Matilda Willis) and that Francis later moved to Culpeper County where he died intestate in 1789. Although no direct proofs have been found yet, circumstantial evidence supports this possibility (see Chapter VII).

As shown in Chapter I, in 1767 the Hanover Parish Vestry sold the Willis glebe tract of 261 acres to William Thornton who may have been the son of Francis Thornton who died in 1766.

In 1818 Reuben T. Taylor and wife Mary, Thomas Woodford and wife Sarah (all of Caroline County) and David T. Chevis and wife Elizabeth of King George County deeded 342 acres 3 rods and 12 poles to Nathaniel H. Hoe.[54] The deed described the descent of the tract to three women as heirs of Francis Thornton, deceased, back through Rowland Thornton who died in 1741 and Francis Thornton Sr. who purchased the tract from the Wrights (originally Washington's patent). The deed mentioned Crows Swamp and Portises [sic] Creek.

In 1840 Nathaniel H. Hooe sold his interest in the "Bald Eagle" tract which he bought from Francis Thornton's heirs at the head of Porteses [sic] Creek to the junction of Crow Swamp Creek to Charles Tayloe.[55]

Porteses (Portises, Portus) Creek is shown on a map (undated) by Warner as Glebe Creek, on the Fry–Jefferson 1775 map as Portus Creek, and on the 1968 USGS Rollins Fork (King George County, Virginia) map as Jett's Creek and was the first major creek above Bristol Mines Run.

In 1897 the Fredericksburg Circuit Court ruled in the matter of the estate of Charles Tayloe. The Bald Eagle tract was judged to be the property of Tayloe's daughter Ella who was then age 65 years, the widow of Thomas R. Waring, who had no living children.[56]

An earlier related deed was found showing that in 1758 Walter Anderson of Washington Parish, Westmoreland County, sold 90 acres in King George County to George Marshall of Hanover Parish, "a burying place of half an acre excepted, joining to the glebe land of Hanover Parish in said county."[57] At that time the glebe belonged to William Thornton and was John Willis's 261-acre patent. It may be that there was a cemetery on the old glebe property, and perhaps it is one of the marked cemeteries on the USGS Rollins Fork map of King George County.[58]

Later land records have not been researched, but there is certainly enough evidence at this point to find the location of John Willis's and John Washington's adjoining patents if someone is interested in pursuing it in depth. In Historical Atlas of Westmoreland County, Virginia, Eaton stated that Ann Washington, daughter of John Washington the immigrant and wife of Maj. Francis Wright, inherited a large tract which was patented by her father near Index, now in King George County.[59] This statement is supported by the patents and deeds and suggests that John Willis's 1669 patent, which abutted the southeastern corner of Washington's 1,700 acres, was probably south of present highway 3 and somewhere between present Index and Rollins Fork.

Chapter III

Other Grants and Deeds for John Willis Sr.

In addition to his 1669 patent John acquired three other tracts between January 1687/88 and March 1696/97 on the north side of the Rappahannock River. This chapter will discuss those documents, the possible location of the tracts, and later disposition of the land.

Although John's first patent was on the south side of the ridge line in Old Rappahannock County, his name was not found in that county's records until 1684, leaving a fifteen-year period when virtually nothing is known about him. Clues suggest that during that time John may have been more closely associated with the families on Mattox Creek. If that was the case, the loss of the Westmoreland County records between 1671 and 1691 may present problems in tracing his parents, his previous wife or wives, and the mother or mothers of his children.

Besides the 1684 performance bond of William Underwood to Nathaniel Pope for a tract adjoining John Willis as given in Chapter II, the following records were found in Old Rappahannock County for John Willis Sr.[1]

> 6 November 1684, reference granted between Jno. Willis, Plaintiff, and Walter Anderson til next court north side of the river.
> 4 May 1687, ordered that John Willis officiate as surveyor of the highways from Foxhall's Mill to Keys Swamps this ensuing year.
> 4 May 1687, ordered that John Willis, John Parsons, and Moses Hubbart be paid by the executrix of Josias (Josiah) Mason, deceased, for one day's attendance for proof of Mason's will.

Other connections between John Willis and Parsons, Anderson, Foxhall and Underwood are discussed below. Underwood was executor of Josias Mason's will. Saints Gay (or Jay), a legatee of Josias Mason, married John Hauxford who bought part of Washington's 1,700 acre patent from Thomas Tippett.

All of John Willis's later grants and deeds were for tracts in that part of Old Rappahannock which became Richmond and then King George County. For ease in referencing the different parcels, they will be numbered chronologically and identified by those numbers in the text.

Tract #1: On 21 October 1669 John Willis received his first patent for 261 acres as reported in Chapter I.

Crow/Swamp Creek to Charles Taylor.[55]

Portuus (Portous, Portus) Creek is shown on a map (undated) by Warner as Glebe Creek, on the Fry-Jefferson 1775 map as Portus Creek, and on the 1968 USGS Rollins Fork (King George County, Virginia) map as Jett's Creek and was the first major creek above Bryant Nanzo Run.

In 1859 the Fredericksburg Circuit Court ruled in the favor of the estate of Charles Taylor. The Hird Beale tract was judged to be the property of Taylor's daughter Eliza who was then age 65 years, the widow of Thomas H. Waring, who had no living children.[56]

An earlier related deed was found showing that in 1738 William Anderson of Washington Parish, Westmoreland County, sold 96 acres in King George County to George Marshall of Hanover Parish, "a certaine piece of land on acre excepted, joining to the glebe land of Hanover Parish in said county."[57] At that time the glebe belonged to William Thornton and was John Willis's 261-acre patent. Nearby on that glebe was a cemetery on the old glebe property, and perhaps it is one of the marked cemeteries on the USGS Rollins Fork map of King George County.[58]

Later land records have not been researched, but there is certainly enough evidence at this point to find the location of John Willis's and John Washington's adjoining patents if someone is interested in pursuing it in depth. Other Grants and Deeds for John Willis Sr.

In addition to the 1669 patent John accumulated other tracts between Totusky Creek and [illegible] which now lie on the north side of the Rappahannock River. This chapter will discuss those documents, the possible location of the tracts, and those who owned the land.

Although Willis's first patent was on the south side of the ridge line in Old Rappahannock County, his name was not found in that county's records until 1684, leaving a fifteen-year period when virtually nothing is known about him. Clues suggest that during that time John may have been more closely associated with the families on Pope's Creek. If that was the case, the loss of the Westmoreland County records between 1671 and 1681 now present problems in finding his parents, his previous wife or wives, and the identity of mothers of his children.

Besides the 1684 performance bond of William Underwood to Nathaniel Pope for a tract adjoining John Willis as given in Chapter I, the following records were found in Old Rappahannock County for John Willis Sr.:[60]

4 November 1686, reference granted between Jno. Willis, Plaintiff, and William Underwood defendant about [illegible] north side glebe [illegible].

4 November 1687, ordered that John Willis by [illegible] of the highways from [illegible] to [illegible] the ensuing year.

4 May 1687, ordered that John Willis, John Parsons and [illegible] be paid for the [illegible] of Isaias Mason, [illegible] for the [illegible] of Mason's will.

Other connections between John Willis and Parsons, Anderson, Parkhill and Underwood are discussed below. Underwood was executor of Isaias Mason's will. Sarah Ivy (or Ivy), a legatee of Isaias Mason, married John [illegible] who bought part of Washington's 1,700 acre patent from Thomas Tippett.

All of John Willis's later grants and deeds were for tracts in that part of Old Rappahannock which became Richmond and then King George County. For ease in referencing the different parcels, they will be numbered chronologically and identified by those numbers in the text.

Tract 1. On 21 October 1669 John Willis received his first patent for 261 acres as reported in Chapter I.

[60] Sparacio, (Old) Rappahannock County Deed Books.

Tract #2: On 27 January 1687/88 Mallachy Peal(e) of Stafford County, merchant, deeded 403 acres to John Willis, Thomas Kendall, and Thomas Goff jointly and acknowledged his deed at the March session of County Court.[2]

Tract #3: On 27 February 1690/91 John Willis and John Parsons, both of Rappahannock County, were granted 158 acres in that county adjacent to a tract which was surveyed for Henry Fleete above Foxhall's Mill.[3] A previous article in the Willis–Gordon–Garnett and Allied Families Association Journal erroneously states that it was 185 acres (probably due to transposition).[4]

Tract #4: On 19 March 1696/97 John Willis of Richmond County was granted 210 acres on the Rappahannock River adjoining Mary Gunstocker (Indian), Thomas Goff(e), and John Combs.[5]

No locators were given for tract #2, but later deeds suggested that both #2 and #4 were on or near the Rappahannock River and south of tract #3 and John's first patent, #1. Tracts #2 and #4 also adjoined a large parcel which was owned by Ralph Wormley whose tract was on the north side of the river and across from Port Tobacco.[6]

The grantor of tract #2, Mallachy Peal(e), was a prominent land broker in the Northern Neck whose named appears frequently in the records. He would buy random tracts and sometimes either break them up or combine them when he sold, so it is difficult to determine when and how he obtained this tract or combination of tracts.

In 1676 Mallachy Peale (who was about 28 years old, making him approximately the same age as John Willis) witnessed the will of a William Browne in Old Rappahannock County.[7] Browne left his land to his three sons (William, John, and Maxfield Browne) and named his wife Elizabeth and "the rest of my children." Elizabeth Browne and Evan Morgan were the executors of his will. Morgan married the widow Elizabeth and died testate in Old Rappahannock County. Morgan's will was witnessed by Josiah Mason, Thomas Jones, and Thomas Booth. His executors were "my loving wife Elizabeth and my loving friend Mallachy Peal." In June 1684 his estate appraisers were Thomas Arnold, Adam Woffendall, Francis Thornton, and William Strother.

Evan Morgan's will identified his residence as lying in the freshes of the Rappahannock River. He bequeathed 120 acres (which was part of a 220 acre tract) to "my Godson, Maxfield Browne, my wife's youngest son," livestock to his wife's other children—Elizabeth Browne, John Browne, and William Browne—and the balance of his estate to his wife and his friend Mallachy Peale.

Tract #2 which Willis, Kendall, and Goffe jointly purchased from Peale in 1687/88 was also in the freshes.[8] Maxfield Browne and William Browne (heirs of both their father and stepfather) later owned land which lay to the north of Washington's 1,700 acre patent. As those tracts which joined Washington's tract were not in the freshes, it may be that Elizabeth (—) Browne Morgan and Mallachy Peale sold the tract where Morgan lived.

In 1686 Henry Fleet (Jr.) and his wife Elizabeth of Northumberland County deeded a parcel in St. Mary's Parish, Rappahannock County, to Mallachy Peale of Stafford County, Gentleman. The land was on the north side of the Rappahannock River in the freshes bounded by Tankard's line to Indian Ned's corner, running with Indian Ned's line (but excluding Ned's 150 acres) up the river to the mouth of a small creek near Warasquick Indian Town, then up the creek and main branch to Mr. Underwood's line and corner to Underwood and Tankard, except 200 acres granted by said Henry Fleet to Joshua (Josiah) Mason and the land called Indian Ned's (Gunstocker).[9] The Fleets had deeded to Josiah Mason in 1684/85, the deed stating that the land had been granted to Henry Fleet, father of Henry (Jr.).[10]

The acreage in the above deed was not given, but in 1694 Henry Fleet of Christ Church Parish, Lancaster County, Gentleman, deeded 2,000 acres to Edwin Conway, also of Christ Church Parish, the land being in Richmond County (which was created in 1692) on the Rappahannock River near Warasquit Indian Town.[11] The tract was first granted in 1655 to Nicholas Meriwether who assigned it to Col. Henry Fleet (Sr.), father of the above Henry, "excepting 200 acres of said tract granted to Joshua Mason, 100 acres to Peter Butler, and 300 acres to Malachi [sic] Peale by the said Henry Fleet, party to these parts." Edwin Conway, who died in 1698, was the first husband of Elizabeth Thornton, eldest daughter of Francis Thornton Sr.[12] Conway's first wife was Sarah Walker, daughter of Col. John Walker and Mrs. Sarah Fleet, widow of Henry Fleet Sr. This 1694 deed from Fleet to Conway would later affect John Willis's title in tract #3.

When comparing these wills and deeds with other records for John Willis, Thomas Kendall, Thomas Goff(e), and John Combs, I believe that Peale may have combined

John Willis Jr.

As John Willis Jr. was the eldest son of John Willis Sr., his records will be reviewed first, followed by the records for his next eldest brother, William, and then for the rest of his siblings (or half-siblings). Assuming that John Jr. was at least twenty-one years old when his father deeded to him in 1694, he was born by or before 1673. This suggests that his father was approximately 25 years old when John Jr. was born. John Jr. was probably in his early forties when his father and brother William died and in his middle fifties when he himself died. During those thirteen years between 1715 and 1728 John Jr. was the "head" of the family in King George County although either or both of his known sisters could have been older than he was. He married Mary Coghill, daughter of James Coghill and his second wife, Mary, sometime before 1698. As will be shown, Mary Coghill was born before 1685, married secondly John Jennings, and died in 1748.

Our knowledge about John Willis Jr. was enhanced when King George County Will Book A-1, which had disappeared during the Civil War, was found, restored, and transcribed by George H. S. King in 1978. Family historian George B. Loeffler either did not know about this discovery or did not report it when he conducted his research for his article in the Willis–Gordon–Garnett and Allied Families Association Journal in 1982, so the wills of John Jr., his wife Mary (Coghill), and Mary Cullins provide new insights into the family.

John Jr. died testate in King George County between 6 February 1727/28 and 3 May 1728. He and Mary may have had children who predeceased them, but both his and Mary's wills indicate that they did not leave surviving issue. His will, as transcribed by George H. S. King, is given below.[1]

> In the name of God Amen I John Willis of the Parish of Hanover in the County of King George, being sick in body but of perfect sense and memory thanks be to God for the same, do make my last Will & Testament in manner and form following, that is to say ... I give unto William Wood that parcel of land my brother William Willis exchanged with John Hauxford to him and his heirs forever. I give and bequeath unto my loving wife Mary Willis all that parcel of land whereon my now dwelling plantation is to her and her heirs forever. I also give unto my wife Mary all and singular my other land & tenements for and during the term of her natural life, and as touching my personal estate my two slaves and all other movables I give unto my wife Mary Willis for and during her natural life. It is my will that after my wife Mary's death my two slaves and other movables then left be equally divided amongst both my Relations and her Relations as she shall think fit at that

An inventory of John's estate was presented in Court on 7 June 1728 by his widow, Mary Willis.[2]

By 20 February 1728/29 Mary Coghill Willis had married John Jennings, a widower with children. As she was born before 1685, Mary Coghill Willis was beyond her childbearing years when she married Jennings, and they left no issue. Jennings died testate in Orange County, Virginia, in 1735 and his will was probated in both counties.[3] It may be that Jennings accompanied William Wood to Orange County to look for land circa 1734 and died while he was there (see Chapter IX). His will is given here as abstracted by Ruth and Sam Sparacio.[4]

The names of the witnesses indicate that Jennings made his will in King George County. Inventories of his estate were recorded in both Orange and King George. In Orange County John Hawkins and Isaac Smith provided bond, and an appraisal was made of his estate there on 16 July 1735.[5] John Hawkins was probably the son of John and Elizabeth (Butler) Hawkins of Richmond County and the brother of Benjamin Hawkins who married Sarah Willis, assumed daughter of William and Sarah Willis.

Mary Coghill Willis Jennings (also given as Ginnings) wrote her will on 16 July 1745,

On 7 October 1748 Mary's will was presented by Frederick Coghill the Elder and proved by the oaths of John McCormic and Sarah McCormic (late Dickerson) and admitted to record. On the same date the Court ordered Mary's estate to be appraised and bond was posted by Frederick Coghill for his administration with Benjamin Strother as his security in the amount of 400 pounds. The inventory was taken by Francis Thornton, George Riding, and Henry Ware who listed six slaves (Hercules, Bob, Dick, Tom, Frank, and a girl), household items, four hives of bees, a large bible, and some old books with a total value of 195 pounds 6 shillings 3 pence.[8] It is noted that the Frederick Coghill, Jr. and Thomas Coghill who are named in Mary's will were not cousins, but nephews.

Returning to John Willis Jr., the first time he is named in the records was in 1694 when his father deeded his interest in the Willis–Parsons grant plus 100 acres of his 261-acre patent to him. The wording of the deed implies that John Jr. was unmarried at the time.

In 1715 John Willis Jr. and Isaac Arnold were executors of his father's estate in 1715. That year John and his brother-in-law Frederick Coghill were also executors of Mary (__) Coghill Ducksberry's will in Essex County, so in one year John and Mary each lost a parent. In December 1716 John and his brother Charles co-signed Sarah Willis's bond for her administration of their brother William's estate.

County Orders show that in 1718 John Willis and Christopher Edrington were appointed surveyors of roads from Gravelly Run to Crows Swamp.[9] In 1719 John was appointed surveyor of roads from Gingoteague (Chingoteague) to the lower end of the parish, and in 1720 he was reappointed to the same position.

John's brother Charles was deceased by 6 August 1725 and left at least one son who was also named John and who was close in age to William's son John. After Charles' death, his son John chose his uncle John Willis (Jr.) as his guardian; and after his uncle's death in 1728, Charles' son John chose Thomas Goff(e) as his guardian. Those records will be discussed in more detail in Chapter VII.

Because John Jr. did not leave any children, his line ended with his death. John Jr. is very important, however, in proving the lineage of his nephew John (son of William and Sarah) who sold John Willis Sr.'s patent to the Church Wardens in 1737 and moved to Orange County. In addition, the Coghill connection may account for later marriages between collateral lines and the Rucker and Hawkins families—connections which continued into Orange and Culpeper counties and then into Kentucky for several generations.

John's wife, Mary Coghill, was the daughter of Old Rappahannock (later Essex) County immigrant James Coghill whose will, dated 5 October 1684 and proved in September 1685, is briefly summarized below from Ruth and Sam Sparacio's transcription.[10]

> To my wife Mary Coghill, life interest in my plantation where I now live with all livestock and a horse; to my eldest son (William?) 225 acres and a mare with all coopers and carpenters tools to be divided between William and James; to son James, 225 acres, a gun, and a sword; to son David, 200 acres > and a gun; to son Frederick, 200 acres and a mare; to unborn child if a boy, 200 acres (otherwise to return to above four sons); land to be equally divided according to age; to daughters Margrett and Mary, 600 acres lying in another divident, 200 acres of this land to unborn child if a girl (otherwise to remain with Margarett and Mary, each of them (to have) one mare of one year old; I appoint David and Frederick to be at age at 18 and to enjoy their estate if their mother marryeth; my loving wife to be full and sole executor; witnesses Christopher Man, Thomas Fenley.

James Coghill's name is found in both Westmoreland and Old Rappahannock records, and he was married more than once. In 1665 his wife was Alice, and by 1673 he was married to Mary. It appears that Frederick and Mary were the children of James and his second wife, Mary, and that the other children named in James' will were children from a previous marriage.

After Coghill's death his widow, Mary, married Henry Duckberry and died testate in 1715. Mary Duckberry's will names her sons Frederick Coghill and George Duckberry, her daughter Mary Willis and son-in-law John Willis, and Susannah Coghill, Thomas Coghill, and Mary Coghill, the last three probably the children of her son Frederick. Frederick Coghill and John Willis were her executors.[11] George Duckberry died shortly after his mother. His will names his "brother" [stepbrother or half-brother] Frederick Coghill, Frederick's daughter Susannah, John Kendall, Hugh Crutcher, Richard Booker, John Willis, and John Pellow. Duckberry's executors were Frederick Coghill and Richard Booker.[12] I do not know if this John Kendall was related to the Kendalls who were neighbors to the Willises on the north side of the Rappahannock River.

Old Rappahannock County deeds suggest that James Coghill's sons William and James were living in Charles City, Maryland, in 1689 when they sold 250 acres on Portobaco Creek in Rappahannock County adjoining Coghill's plantation and all cattle, hogs, and household items to a Johanna Hudson.[13] In 1691 Johanna sold to Richard Booker of Gloucester County with Mary Ducksberry as one of the witnesses.[14] This is probably the same Richard Booker who was named in George Duckberry's will.

It is not known when John and Mary Willis married or how they met as James Coghill lived on the south side of the Rappahannock River. However, Coghill may have been the same man who witnessed deeds from Henry Brooks and wife Jane to their daughter Jane Higdon (who later was the mother-in-law of Nathaniel Pope alias Bridges) and Lawrence Abbington in 1662 in Westmoreland County, so prior connections to the Mattox group in Washington County are possible.[15] Clues were also found connecting the Coghills and Archdale Combs who witnessed Coghill deeds in 1665, 1666, and 1673.[16] As discussed in the sketch on the Combs family in Chapter IV, the name of an Abraham Combs of Maryland was found in Old Rappahannock records in 1665 and 1683. Considering that two of James Coghill's sons were living in Maryland in 1689, they may have been related in some way.

Two interesting entries were found in the Essex County records in 1698. First, John and Mary Willis (who are given as residents of Essex County although this was probably not the case) sold 289 acres which she inherited from her father to Thomas Ramsey.[17] John Willis (Jr.) gave his lands in Richmond County as collateral on the bond to Ramsey. Secondly, John Parsons (Jr.) of Essex County sold his share of the Willis–Parsons patent to Walter Anderson (who was John Parsons Jr.'s brother-in-law, half-brother, or stepbrother).[18] Other records clearly show that both John Willis Jr. and John Parsons Jr. were residents of Richmond County. John Parsons Jr. was the son of John Parsons Sr. (see Chapter III). Also named in related Essex County deeds in 1698 were Cornelius Noell and Bartholomew Vawter who owned land adjacent to Coghill's patent. The Noell and Vawter families married into the Rucker family, and Frederick Coghill and wife Susannah deeded land on Cockleshell Creek to the Ruckers in 1707.

In 1712 an unidentified William Willis of Westmoreland County and his wife Mary (daughter and heir of Thomas Kirk, deceased, of Essex County) sold a tract to Charles Brown adjoining Coghill's 1664 patent.[19] This tract appears to have been on Cockleshell Creek where Kirk was living in 1682. Although these records are still fragmented and inconclusive, they may be significant in our search for other members of John Willis Sr.'s siblings or family.

There are several records which name John Willis Jr. in Richmond and King George counties. In 1694 John Willis Sr. deeded 100 acres of his 261 acre patent plus his interest in the Willis–Parsons grant to his eldest son John. The two parcels adjoined and were located in what was then St. Mary's Parish, Richmond County, and which later became Hanover Parish, King George County. As noted in Chapter III, title to the Willis–Parsons tract was disputed by Crane, but the Court ruled for John Willis Jr. and Walter Anderson who divided it in 1706/07.

In 1709 George Green sold John Willis Jr. a lease for 100 acres in St. Mary's Parish for the lifetimes of John and his wife Mary.[20]

> 2 September 1709, George Green, Planter, of St. Mary's Parish to John Willis Jr., Planter, of St. Mary's Parish, a lifetime interest in 100 acres more or less in St. Mary's Parish on the north side of the Rappahannock River corner to Maxfill (Maxfield) Brown, south to line of Mr. Francis Thornton to line of William Thornton, to line of Thomas Newton, to Maxfill Brown, during the natural lives of John Willis Jr. and his wife Mary Willis and no longer—after death of John and Mary to return to me [George Green] and my heirs; witnesses Isaac Arnold, Charles Cullins, William Goffe.

George Green was issued a grant for 885 acres in Richmond County on 15 December 1708.[21] The original document states that it joined Major (Francis) Wright, Bald Eagle Neck, the estate of Esq. Wormely who was then deceased, Francis Slaughter, William Brown, Maxfield Brown, and land surveyed for William Thornton. The metes and bounds of Green's grant show that it lay directly west of Washington's 1,700-acre patent (which the Wrights sold to Francis Thornton) and confirms the approximate location of Bald Eagle Run as a branch of present Jett's Creek. The tract which Green leased to John was in the northeast corner of his grant. This lease is one of several documents which proves that Maxfield Brown (who was named in Evan Morgan's 1683 will in Old Rappahannock County) owned land adjacent to the Willises. After Mary (Coghill) Willis Jennings' death, this tract reverted to George Green's heirs, and John Green sold 70 acres out of it to William Dodgin in 1750.[22]

In 1709 William Willis sold 12 acres to John Hauxford, and the following day Hauxford sold 12 acres to John Willis Jr.[23] Those deeds intermingled John Washington's and John Willis Sr.'s early patents, and the "exchange" of these parcels is mentioned in John Willis Jr.'s will.

Consequently, in the fall of 1709 John Willis Jr. held by deed or lease a total of 291 acres in Richmond County. However, he and Walter Anderson lost most of their claim to the Willis–Parsons tract in 1719 to Edwin Conway (Jr.), and in 1719 Conway sold 117 acres of the tract, including most of the Willis–Parsons grant, to John Anderson, the brother of Walter Anderson. So after 1719 John Willis Jr. was left with whatever acreage was spared in Conway's resurvey plus 100 acres of his father's 261-acre patent (which eventually descended to William's son John), the 100 acres which he leased from George Green (which reverted to the Green heirs upon Mary's death), and the 12 acres which he bought from John Hauxford.

By the time that John Jr. wrote his will in 1727/28, many changes had taken place in the family. John's parents and his wife Mary's parents were deceased. His brother William had died, after which William's widow Sarah had married Henry Wood, become widowed a second time, and then married Rush Hudson. His brother Charles Willis was deceased, and John had been appointed guardian to Charles' son John. Mary Cullins was also deceased with her legacy from John Willis Sr. reverting to John Sr.'s heirs. It is not known if his sister Susannah was still living in 1727/28, but his sister Mary James seems to have been living in King George in 1736 (see Chapter VI).

John Jr. specifically named only two legatees in his will—his wife and William Wood who was the eldest son and heir-at-law of Henry Wood Sr. (the second husband of Sarah—Willis) by a previous marriage. Why John chose to leave land to William Wood is unknown. In Chapter IX, which reviews the transition from King George to Orange County, it will be seen that William Wood and John Jennings preceded the others to the Rapidan River area, and that William Wood sold his land in King George County to Rush Hudson Sr., his stepmother's third husband.

William and Catherine Pullen witnessed John's will, and William Pullen witnessed John Jennings' will. They also witnessed William Underwood's will in July 1717, and John Willis Jr. signed Underwood's estate inventory.[24] William Pullen and Samuel Wood proved the will of William Underwood's son John in 1723. William and John Underwood both lived in Sittenburne Parish, but various deeds and wills suggest that they owned land on both sides of present Bristol Mines Run.

Catherine (Cullins) Pullen was the mother of Mary Cullins as proved by Mary Cullin's will which was written on 12 February 1725/26 and proved on 1 April 1726.[25] Elizabeth Harly was a witness in John Willis's and Mary Coghill Willis Jennings' wills, and Elisha Harley was mentioned in both Mary's and John Jennings' wills.

In 1732 the General Court awarded John Willis 53 pounds 14 shillings in a judgment against John Jennings who, with William Grant as his security, posted bond to John Willis in the amount of 100 pounds and appealed. The reason for the judgment was not given, and it is unclear which John Willis was involved.[26] It may have been John (son of Charles) with the suit relating to John Willis Jr.'s guardianship account, or it may have been John (son of William) who was suing for another reason.

Mary Coghill Willis Jennings must have continued to live on John's home tract under the conditions of the 1694 deed from John Willis Sr. because her lifetime interest in 108 acres was noted in the 1737 deed from John (son of William and Sarah) to the Church Wardens.

In March 1736/37 the King George County Orders note a suit which was brought by John Willis (probably the son of Charles) against Mary Jennings at the same time that Edward and Sarah Turberville were administering the estate of her third husband Rush Hudson Sr. In April the following record appears in the Orders:

> In the action of account rendered between John Willis, plaintiff, and Mary Jennings, executrix of the last will and testament of John Willis, deceased, Capt. Joseph Strother, Samuel Skinner (Skinker?), and Thomas Turner, Gentlemen, or any two of the are appointed to audit and settle the accounts and differences and make their report to the next Court, and it is also ordered that the auditors settle the amount [or account] of the administration of the estate of John Jennings, deceased.

[26] Sparacio, King George County Deeds 1721–1735, p. 116 (Deed Book 1-A).

The Orders do not give the reason for the suit, but it was continued for lack of the auditors' report until October 1737 when the Court ruled that John Willis was to receive 3,288 pounds of tobacco from Mary Jennings, executrix of John Willis.[27] Again in February 1737/38 the Court ruled that John was to receive 3,288 pounds of tobacco, etc., from Mary Jennings, executrix of the last will of John Willis, with auditors Joseph Strother, Benjamin Strother, and Thomas Turner signing. John may have been attempting to recover some property which his uncle held for him when he was John's guardian, or it could have been over some undivided portion of the personal estate of John Willis Sr.[28]

In her will Mary Coghill Willis Jennings gave a life interest in her home farm to John Willis, son of Charles and grandson of John Sr., with the tract to become the property of her "cousin" [nephew] Frederick Coghill Jr. at John's death. As Mary left no children, her other legatees included her brother Frederick, nephews and nieces, Jennings heirs, and perhaps cousins and friends. Ann Ginnings [Jennings] was named in both Mary's will and John Jennings' will. She was probably John Jennings' daughter by his previous marriage and Mary's stepdaughter.

After Mary's death, her life interest in her first husband's share of John Willis Sr.'s 261-acre patent, her remaining life interest in the Willis–Parsons patent (which was divided with Anderson and then preempted by Conway), and the lease on 100 acres from George Green all expired. Thus it appears that the only Willis land which was included in Mary's estate was the 12-acre parcel which her nephew John Willis (son of Charles) held until his death in 1753, the tract then devolving to Mary's nephew, Frederick Coghill Jr. In 1761 Frederick Coghill sold the 12 acres to Francis Thornton.[29] The deed fully describes the descent of the land from John Hauxford to John Willis Jr. to his wife Mary to Frederick Coghill. According to the 1709 deed from Hauxford to John Willis Jr., this 12 acres was part of Washington's 1664 patent and seems to have been that part which Washington sold to William Freake and which Freake's widow Martha (who had married Robert Vincent) sold to Hauxford in 1691.

No attempt was made to trace this specific tract beyond 1761. However, I believe that the area of Washington's and Willis's adjoining patents could easily be identified by reviewing later deeds, especially those for William Thornton who purchased the glebe tract in 1767 (see Chapter I).

We are deeply indebted to the John Lee and Lillian Thomas Pratt Foundation of Fredericksburg, Virginia, who purchased the King George County Will Book A-1 perhaps I know because I keep a trunk for my grandchildren, too.

Since Sarah is such a fascinating person, I am confident that someone else will be motivated to continue the search to find her family so that her identity can eventually be known. My only advice to future historians is that they do not ignore Sarah's children by Henry Wood and Rush Hudson or the rich and complex relationships between this family and their neighbors in Old Rappahannock, Richmond, King George, Westmoreland, Orange, and Culpeper counties.

Charles Willis

Charles Willis, the younger brother of John Willis Jr. and William Willis, is something of a mystery. He is identified in his father's will, but beyond that his name appears only a few times in the records. Based on what clues are available, Charles was probably born between 1680 and 1690. He died after May 1719 and before 6 August 1725, but no records were found for his estate in either Richmond/King George or Westmoreland counties. Consequently, the data reported below is fragmented and incomplete.

Charles appears to have been the third son of John Willis Sr. and may have been a half-brother to John Jr. and William. To my knowledge the Christian name "Charles" was never used in the families who descended from William and Sarah Willis.

The earliest record I found for Charles was recorded in Westmoreland County and dated 1712 when Garrett Welch and wife Rebecca and Caleb Smith and wife Elizabeth, all of Washington Parish, sold 248 acres to William Duff. The land being deeded was "commonly called Hawkins old plantation" and was part of a patent to Robert Alexander, John Alexander, and Christopher Lunn (or Lund) on the south side of Rosier's dam between the land late belonging to David Rowland, deceased, the land now belonging to Charles Willis, and the land of Edward Taylor.[1] Another reference to this patent is found in the early Westmoreland County deeds when George Campden (or Campion/Campian) sold 244 acres to Thomas Rowland in 1672, it being one-sixth part of 1,464 acres to Alexander, Alexander, and Lund at the head of Attopin Creek dam.[2]

According to Eaton, Attopin was an earlier Indian name for the creek which was later called Rozier's (or Rosier's) Creek and that Attopin Creek dam became Rozier's dam although I have not verified that information. Eaton also stated that John Washington built a mill at the head of Attopin (Rozier's) Creek in 1662. The records suggest that this tract of Washington's was north of the dividing ridge in Westmoreland County, and the tract which Charles owned in 1712 was on the ridge. This land was not part of Charles' inheritance from his father because John Willis Sr. was still living in 1712 and the tracts which John Sr. willed to Charles were in Hanover Parish on the south side of the ridge.

On 19 January 1714/15 Charles Willis and wife Matildee [sic] of Hanover Parish,

ROSSER, PROSSER, SHERWOOD, JAMES

I am trying to find the daughters of David ROSSER and Sarah SHERWOOD. I believe that one daughter was named Sarah, and that she m. a Henry WOOD (in King George Co?). David Rosser d. 1698 and may have left a will. David Rosser was in Sittenbourne Parish in Richmond Co., per deeds, I am told. Is he in anyway related to the John ROSIER, who was in Richmond Co. at that time? Also, I need info on John PROSSER, of the same parish and county, who d. 1673. He first married a Martha ??, and secondly Margaret (widow of William GOFF(E)). Did he have a daughter Mary who married a John PLUNKETT? Did David Rosser have a daughter Mary that married a John PLUNKETT? KrothinVa@aol.com July 9, 1997

SHERWOOD

I have a Phillip Sherwood, d. old Rappahannock Co before Sep 4, 1685. A court record states, "Phillips Sherwood, late of this county, died possessed of a certain tract of land on the North Side of Rappahonnock." As Phillip is not listed in Cavaliers and Pioneers as recieving a land patent, he must have purchased the above land from someone. Can anyone with access to the deed books look for that purchase or purchases? At this time, I am more interested in the date of the deeds, as I am trying to narrow down the time frame he came to this country, or tie him to one of the other Sherwoods running around. The court record above was not referenced, but mentioned in Tyler's Quarterly, Vol 23 page 116. The date mentioned was September 4 1685. Anything else on Phillip would also be appreciated. In Reply to: Re: SHERWOOD. Phillip, VA by Richard Marshall 239 of 1357 Go

I have read the article that syas Thomas Marshall md Sarah, "one of the cohiers" of Phillip, but this appears to be a mistake of the original clerk, possibly. I say this because on FEBRUARY 8, 1685, six months before the court action, Thomas Marshall, and wife MARTHA sold land to FRANCIS JAMES (Essex co. deed book 7, page 443) Thomas also names a Martha as his wife in his will, which was probated in 1705, I think

24.) Thomas Plunkett according to http://www.appleberrys.com

In Greer's book, "Early Virginia Immigrants," he mentions a Thomas Plunckett transported to VA in 1654 by John Withers and Stephen Gary of Westmoreland County. The records of King George County, VA contain a will of a John Plunkett of Hanover Parish proved 12 Dec 1750 that mentioned sons John and William, son William to pay brother John on his arriving at age 21. Also mentions his wife Mary Plunkett.

The following is quoted in Ivy, "Ten Thousand Plunketts," vol. I, page 356: "The following information on Sarah Cordes was taken from an undated sketch 'Pertaining to the Genealogy of the DOWDEN Family" written by Miss Sarah Ann Pilcher who was born ca 1815-1820 and who was the daughter of Benjamin Pilcher and Alice Plunkett, the granddaughter of Reuben Plunkett and Nancy Purvis, and the great-granddaughter of William Plunkett and Sarah Cordes."

"Quotations from the writing of Miss Sarah Ann Pilcher: "Our great-great-grandfather Plunkett was an Episcopal Clergyman whose father, Lord Plunkett, was the first of the family that emigrated to America in the latter part of the 17th century. He settled in Caroline County, Virginia. "Lord Plunkett returned to England and our ancestor married a Miss Monroe who numbered a President of the United States amongst the descendants in her family. They had two sons, one of them, William was our great-grandfather. He held office of Tobacco Inspector for that part of the colony that now comprises Virginia and Maryland. His office was conferred by George III and was quite a sinecure in colonial times. He married a very elegant and accomplished lady, SARAH CORDES, (pronounced Korday); her grandfather was one of the many Huguenots who fled from Papal persecution in France and settled on the Ashley and Cooper Rivers in South Carolina, where our ancestor found and married her. They had seven sons and four daughters."

Notes:
There is controversy that this William is the first Logsdon ancestor to immigrate from England. One source indicates that William of Thomas Logsden was the immigrant but this could not be for there is a burial record for William of Thomas. ®2 ®8

Another source indicates that the William who married Honora O'Flynn was in fact the son of William the immigrant due to the fact that 1. He would have waited a long time to marry, despite the gender imbalance of more males to females in America at that time, 2. a record of Williams trip to America, 3. the land Captain Smith was to receive was 300 acres in Somerset County, Maryland, 4. William Laxtone was recorded as entitled to 50 acres for coming to America, 5. the will of William Langsden in 1709, with mention of his wife Izabell and son William existed. It is this William, it is suggested, that moved to Baltimore and married Honora O'Flynn. None of this has been proven. ®12

Another candidate for William the immigrant is William of Blunham, son of William of John of Edmund of Edward of John. This William was married to Alice Kennert and would have been alive at the time; however his wife was not listed as a passenger on the ship that carried William. No death record in England exists for Alice. She would have to have died, either in England or America, to allow William to remarry Honora O'Flynn. William would have been very old for the time to have remarried and started a family in America. This makes him a less than prime candidate for William the immigrant. (See the notes of William of John of Edmund for more information on this issue). ®2 ®4

It is William of John of Edmund of Edward who was probably William the laborer who died and was buried at St. John's. ®4 ®5

William the immigrant is said to have sailed to America, Entered the colonies in 1674. Jan. 21 (Based on information from the Maryland Hall of Records) on a sailing vessel commanded by Captain Samuel Smith. He sailed with six other young men whose names were: Robert Dewsberry, William Belcher, Thomas Humphries, George Young, Josiah Blackwell, and William Golden. They were bound for the Virginia colony. The ship was blown off course into the Chesapeake Bay. It finally cast anchor at the mouth of the Patapsco river in Maryland, in Baltimore county. He then served 4 years of indentureship. ®6 ®3 ®5

He was a tobacco planter. His residences included "Brotherly Love" tract of land of around 300 acres in Somerset County, MD (near Baltimore) and "Bedford". ®6

William, at one time owned tracts of land called: Bedford, Logsdon's Addition, Pleasant Green, and others. ®3

William and Honora were married by a Missionary Catholic priest from Fort Tobacco. ®3 ®5

[from Durbin-Logsdon Genealogy by Betty Jewell Durbin Carson]

One legend has it that William Logsdon was picked up as a lad on the coast of Ireland and brought over as an indentured slave. The ship was headed for Virginia but a storm changed its course and it sailed into Baltimore Harbor instead. Records show that a William Logsdon was transported to America in 1673 (Book 18, page 38, early records of Maryland). About 25 years later a shipload of young girls was gathered from the Irish Coast and brought over to be wives of the settlers. All legends and stories repeat that one Irish lass was named Honora O'Flynn.

Honora O'Flynn

Birth Date: 1686
Birth Place: Kerry County, Ireland ®6
Death Date: 1745
Death Place: Maryland
Burial Place: Maryland
Religion: Holy Roman Catholic Church

Spouse Notes:
Said to have been kidnapped on the Southern coast of Ireland and is known in Logsdon family lore as the "Captive Maiden" while William was known as the "Indentured Servant". ®3

Marriage Date: 1702
Marriage Place: Maryland ®6 ®5

Children: Ann
William
Honora
Thomas
Prudence
Edward
John

In the Hall of Records, Annapolis, Maryland, Vol. 15, we find: January 16, 1674 "Captain Samuel Smith of Virginia, proved his right to 300 acres of land, by Hanna, his wife, and Attorney, for transporting: Robert Dewsberry, William Belcher, Thomas Humphries, William Logsdon, George Young, Jesiah Blackwell, and William Golden, to this Province to inhabit." The indentured servant means that they did not have money to pay their passage so the Captain of the ship sold their services; in this case, William Logsdon was sold to a tobacco planter who would release him when he worked out the right amount. Several documents state that Honora O'Flynn was kidnapped from Ireland (b. County Derry or Kerry) and married William Logsdon 1702 by a missionary priest from Fort Tobacco, Maryland. He would have been close to 48 tears of age. The name Honora has been carried down by the Durbin and Logsdon families.

The Rent Rolls of Baltimore County, MD: "William Loftin is charged with rent for a tract called 'Brotherly Love' on 28 August, 1687." From the Hall of Records: Liber DD-5, p. 430, "On 12 May 1707 William Logsdon purchased 100 acres that had been assigned earlier to Gregory Davis of Baltimore County, and called 'Bedford' -- situated on the north side of the Patapsco River and on north side of Middle Branch, thereof . . ." This was located in what is now Carroll County, Maryland and is about 8 miles southeast of Westminster. Carroll County was formed in 1836 from a part of Baltimore and Frederick Counties.

William Logsdon must have a been a tobacco planter for on March 31, 1709 he sued Thomas Gwynn for breach of contract. Gwynn had signed a contract to build a 40-foot tobacco shed on the Island in Baltimore County (150-acre tract on Gunpowder River).

Liber IS-N, p. 336 (or 330), "I, William Logsdon, Baltimore County, . . . to my beloved daughter, Ann Durbin . . . tract of land called Pleasant Green, being part of tract called "Logsdon's Addition . . . being 97 1/2 acres more or less . . . the houses, outhouses, barns, stables, tobacco houses, orchards, etc. . . . and after the death of her husband, Samuel Durbin, the land to return freely and quietly to the heirs of William Logsdon. Dated 19 September, 1726 and signed William (his mark) Logsdon. And Honor Logsdon, his wife, released her dower rights to the property.

Moore Family. The Moore family begins with John(1) Moore, who patented 285 acres in Elizabeth City county in 1638. He came to Virginia in the Bona Nova in 1620, at the age of thirty-six. His wife Elizabeth Moore, came in the Abigail in 1622. They were living at Elizabeth City in 1625 (Hotten). In 1676, Augustine(2) Moore, of the Old Poquoson, Elizabeth City, patented the land formerly granted to his father, John. He married perhaps twice, first Anne, named in a land grant in 1652, and second, Elizabeth, named in Elizabeth City county records. Augustine Moore died before 1688. He had issue, (1) John, (2) Elizabeth, who married Capt. John Goodwin, (3) Capt. Daniel:

From: Jamie K. (Pettry) Wood`s Family from VA & WV: http://www.tribalpages.com/tribes/jamiekwood

William Daniel b. 8 Apr. 1625 Lancashire, England and died 1698 Middelesex Co., VA. He Immigrated: 1650, to Middlesex Co., VA., USA from England h is recorded with Military service on July 01, 1689, as Captain in the Middlesex County Militia Religion: June 02, 1684, Christ Church Parish, Middlesex Co., VA Residence: Platation `Jemeco` Middlesex County, VA Will: October 08, 1694, recorded in Middlesex Co., VA Book 1, pages 120-121.

William may be the son of Peter Daniel (B. 1584 - Tabely, Cheshire, England) and Christian Grosvenor (b. 4 nov 1587) But that William may have died as early as 1678 in Ma. Or by some references never even left England. Most likely it is that William who married Catherine Greneway and or Mary Vivian. According to a source a Genforum on the Daniel family page, the given names of Captain William DANIELL's children and grandchildren you would see they read almost verbatim that of the given names in the family of Peter DANIELL and Christina GROSVENOR. This source goes on to suggests that thus William is most likely a son of Peter and Christian ?

William married second Jochebed Smith (b 1642 England and d 1694 Middlesex Co., VA.) aft 1778. William and Jochebed had at least seven children.

> Robert and William may have been the sons of William and another woman (According to Rootsweb /Worldconnect site of cdan@mylink.net William and Daniel were the sons of Dorothy Forth who William married abt 1664 in England. But that William who married Dorothy Forth also appears to have died in England. Dorothy Forth as the mother of Robert is supported by Stephanie Langston whose email is gregsteph@earthlink.net who cites World Family Tree Vol. 3, Ed. 1, Brøderbund Software, Inc. Release date: February 9, 1996 Page: Tree #1379.
> A souce at Genforum suggests that William (I) married Dorothy Forth and had William and Robert who came to America. That William however is said to have died in his bed and be buried in Wigan of Lancashire, England. Another source suggests that William (I) came to the colonies as a British Col and later married Jochebed? Is my Roberts parents William (I) and Dorothy Forth who died ?

> Thomas Daniel at Genforum wrote on 12/19/1999: William Daniell b. 1625 Tabley Cheshire England died of old age in 1695 in England. He most certainly is not Capt. William Daniel of Va.

From: CAPTAIN WILLIAM DANIELL OF MIDDLESEX CO., VIRGINIA

http://paynedaniel.com/captainwm/index.htm#TOC

Reference: Judge W. B. Newman; "CAPTAIN WILLIAM DANIEL, of MIDDLESEX, some of his descendants and other Daniels of Virginia," and "GENEALOGIES OF VIRGINIA FAMILIES" from Tyler's Quarterly Historical and Genealogical Magazine, Vol.1. Many entries such as dates of birth, baptisms, and marriage dates have been verified in the Parish Register of Christ Church, Middlesex County, Virginia, 1650-1812.

William Daniell was the founder of the Daniel family in Middlesex County, Virginia. Apparently he survived two wives and amassed property that he shared with his sons, Robert Jr., William, and his grandson Robert. It has been suggested that Robert Daniel Jr., had two wives as well. It was a common practice for a father to acquire property and hand it down to his male heirs, whereupon, they would continue to add to the family holdings. There is no early reference to indicate where William Daniell got the title of Captain, but it was probably an honorary award for his service to Middlesex County? Ref: A Place in Time, Middlesex County, Virginia 1650-1750, by Darrett B. and Anita H. Rutman

William signed a will on 8 Oct 1694 in Middlesex Co., Va.. It is noted that the members of this family emigrated from England to the Northern Neck of Virginia in the 1640's. (Compilers note: In an article written about Richard Tivia Daniel, a grandson of John and Mary Keen Daniel, it is mentioned that one Peter Daniel, an ancestor, emigrated from Scotland to Middlesex County, Virginia, America, in 1656. It is more likely that William Daniell was the founder of the Daniel family in Middlesex County, Virginia in 1660. A Place in Time, Middlesex County, Virginia, 1650-1750) William Daniel, Sr. received land patent 1672 in Middlesex Co., Va. (SALTERR@aol.com). William appears in the records of Christ Church Parish Register with the birth of a son, Richard Daniel, 30 September1678. The will of William Daniel is dated 8 October 1694 and was presented in court, in Middlesex County, Virginia, on 3 October 1698, by Jno. Walker and Wm. Downing.

There is a significant lineage for Captain William Daniel in Broderbund's World Family Tree, Vol. 5, #873, but one must be careful with this file as it does not refer to a source and it appears to have inaccuracies. There is no connection of William's line with the Daniel line of Wigan, Lancaster Co., England. Several years of professional research has failed to turn up any proof of William's origins. Col. William Daniel of Wigan was married to Dorothy Forth. They had two sons, William and Henry, who died childless. These Daniels did not come over to America! The following is from Heinemann, Family 1, 1949: "William Daniel; 1673 et seq. a William Daniel continues of record in Middlesex Co., VA, where he died in 1698."

From: Joyce (Woodruff) Terrana, Burleson, Tx. ---- Any good genealogy dept., of any large city in the U. S. should have this book.
MANY, MANY of our Daniel family found in Middlesex Co, Va. in late 1600s thru 1800, appear in this Church Registry. It no longer existed by 1812 but by that time, courthouse records were being kept. The Christ Church of Middlesex Co, Va. attempted to record not only BIRTHS, DEATHS AND MARRIAGES of free whites, but also same data for many of their slaves. While it existed, it was more useful to those of us researching our family than courthouse records would have been. For example, it gave the name of child, date of child's birth and names of both parents...what a blessing that was for me, for late 1600s up to mid 1700s when my Daniel family lived in this County. This is how I was able to document the progenitor of my Daniel line: Capt Wm. Daniel (widow Jacobed), their son William Jr.,, William's son Obadiah, etc. Even with such a great book, supplementing this information with wills/deeds and such, is a must due to the Daniel family habit of naming their kids the same thing at each generation. We have to watch out for such stuff as Capt. William Daniel died not long before his son, William Daniel Jr. (both left wills, thank goodness). There were other 'William Daniel' men (and as our previous mail), also numerous men named Robert. My particular branch left for Goochland Co, Va. ca 1740s along with some Moseley "in-laws" too. William married (1) UNKNOWN about 1664.

Some researchers have assigned Dorothy Forth as the first wife of this William, but the William (William Daniel of Wigan Co.) who married Dorothy died and is buried in England. (Ref : Daniel charts from the "English Visitations of Lancashire, 1623 and 1664") Side Note: Theses visitations are very questionable and should be taken for what they are worth.

William and UNKNOWN had the following children:

+ 2 M i William , Jr. DANIEL was born before 1664. He died on 29 May 1723.

+ 3 M ii Captain Robert DANIEL Sr. was born before 1666. He died on 27 Dec 1720.

William married (2) Jochabed SMITH. Jochabed was born in 1646 in England/Virginia?. She died in 1694/1698 in Christ Church, Middlesex County, VA. The surname Smith is mostly unproven.
William and Jochabed had the following children:

4 F iii Mary DANIEL[1,2] was born[3,4] in 1651/1675 in England. She died[5,6] on 12 Sep 1678.

A plausible date of death from an unverified source: 12 September 1728 in Middlesex County, VA.

Mary married UNMARRIED.

+ 5 M iv Richard DANIEL was born on 30 Sep 1678. He died in 1727.

+ 6 M v James DANIEL was born about 1680. He died before 4 Oct 1748.

+ 7 F vi Agatha DANIEL was born on 6 Mar 1683/1684. She died on 22 Aug 1721.

8 F vii Katherine DANIEL[1,2,3,4] was born on 25 Oct 1685 in VA. . She died on 13 Dec 1737.

Katherine married Robert PERROTT son of Richard PERROTT on 25 Mar 1706. Robert was born in VA.

Robert's father, Richard Perrott, was the first male child born of English parents in the Rappahannock River Section of Virginia.

9 M viii John DANIEL[1,2,3,4] was born[5,6,7,8] on 20 Sep 1686. He died[9,10,11,12] on 20 Sep 1686 in Infancy.

Sorry but William (of Wigan) the Colonel who married Dorothy Forth died in his own bed in England of old age. He did not emigrate to the Colonies. See "William of Wigan" my site http://wkweb5.cableinet.co.uk/troy

William Daniell b. 1625 Tabley Cheshire England died of old age in 1695 in England. He most certainly is not Capt. William Daniel of Va. If you got this from the LDS I should tell you that the LDS is full of rubbish about the Daniell's of Tabley, Cheshire. Sorry.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM^{1} DANIEL was born Abt. 1625 (several Rootsweb – Worldconnect site's suggest specifically 08 APR) in England, (Some sources reference William's birth in Wigen Lancaster and others reference it as in Over Tabley, Cheshire. Some sources suggest that this William is the son of Peter Daniel and Christina Grosvenor) William died February 20, 1697/98 in Christ Church Parish, Middlesex County, VA. He married (1) JOCHABED SMITH. She was born 1646 in England/Virginia?, and died bet 1694 - 1698 in Christ Church, Middlesex County, VA. He married (2) UNKNOWN Abt. 1664.

Notes for CAPTAIN WILLIAM DANIEL: ID # I0697, I290, I1429

William Daniel, Sr. received land patent 1672 in Middlesex Co., Va. (SALTERR@aol.com). William appears in the records of Christ Church Parish Register with the birth of a son, Richard Daniel, 30 September 1678. The will of William Daniel is dated 8 October 1694 and was presented in court, in Middlesex County, Virginia, on 3 October 1698, by Jno. Walker and Wm. Downing.

There is a significant lineage for Captain William Daniel in Broderbund's World Family Tree, Vol. 5, #873, but one must be careful with this file as it does not refer to a source and it appears to have inaccuracies. There is no connection of William's line with the Daniel line of Wigan, Lancaster Co., England. Several years of professional research has failed to turn up any proof of William's origins.

Col. William Daniel of Wigan was married to Dorothy Forth. They had two sons, William and Henry, who died childless.

The following is from Heinemann, Family 1, 1949: "William Daniel; 1673 et seq. a William Daniel continues of record in Middlesex Co., VA, where he died in 1698." Many of our Daniel family found in Middlesex Co, Va. in late 1600s thru 1800, appear in this Church Registry. It no longer existed by 1812 but by that time, courthouse records were being kept. The Christ Church of Middlesex Co, Va. attempted to record not only BIRTHS, DEATHS AND MARRIAGES of free whites, but also same data for many of their slaves. While it existed, it was more useful to those of us researching our family than courthouse records would have been. For example, it gave the name of child, date of child's birth and names of both parents...what a blessing that was for me, for late 1600s up to mid 1700s when my Daniel family lived in this County. This is how I was able to document the progenitor of my Daniel line: Capt Wm. Daniel (widow Jacobed), their son William Jr, William's son Obadiah, etc. Even with such a great book, supplementing this information with wills/deeds and such, is a must due to the Daniel family habit of naming their kids the same thing at each generation. Have to watch out for such stuff as Capt William Daniel died not long before his son, William Daniel Jr (both left wills, thank goodness). There were other 'William Daniel' men (and as our previous email), also numerous men named Robert. My particular branch left for Goochland Co, Va. ca 1740s along with some Moseley "in-laws" too. . CAPTAIN WILLIAM DANIEL OF MIDDLESEX CO., VIRGINIA

W. B. Newman of Washington, D. C., states that Rev. Hayden, in his study of the families of Virginia, tried to connect the Daniels of Cumberland County, Va., with those of Middlesex County. Judge Newman believed that there was no ascertainable connection with the Middlesex family and wrote in his essay in Tyler's Quarterly, about some of the descendants of Captain William Daniel of Middlesex. He makes only passing mention of the Cumberland Daniel family. However, some Middlesex Daniel family members migrated to Cumberland County.

Charles Brunk Heinemann, in his book, Daniel Families of the Southern States, Vols. 1 & 2, that were privately published in 1949, expressed the belief that there was a kinship between the family headed by William Daniel and the York family headed by John. There was a hint that these families were related to Governor Robert Daniell's line in North Carolina and South Carolina. To add to the confusion, we have Hugh Daniel of Old Rappahannock, Virginia, and his possible connection with both the York and Middlesex families. Actually, Hugh Daniel is suspected to be in the lineage of Roger Daniell, Sr.

Some of the information used in the following pedigree of William Daniel was taken from Newman's study, but a more definite history of this family is outlined in the book, Middlesex, Virginia Daniel Descendants, by Robert Neville Mann and Catherine C. Mann. I portray this lineage through the Granville County, North Carolina members, in order to keep separate this line from the descendants of William Daniel of Caroline County, Virginia, This effort is to further dissuade any connection between the family of Chesley Daniel (d.1814) of Tranquillity Plantation, Granville County, with our ancestor, Ambrose Daniel of Halifax County, North Carolina (d.1795).

ne researchers have assigned Dorothy Ford as the first wife of this William, but the William (William Daniel of Wigan) who married Dorothy died and is buried in England. (Ref.) Daniel charts from the "English Visitations of Lancashire, 3 and 1664") Side Note: These visitations are very questionable and should be taken for what they are worth.

ildren of WILLIAM DANIEL and # 2 MARGARET [illegible] are:

ARY DANIEL, d. November 16, 1719; Stepchild m. CURTIS PERROTT, Sep 05, 1714, b. August 19, 1695, VA.

LIZABETH DANIEL, d. Dec 10, 1729; Stepchild; m. GEORGE CROWNING, Feb 06, 1714/15; d. December 18, 1728.

ATHERINE DANIEL, Stepchild; m. ROBERT PERROTT, Mar 25, 1706; b. Oct 25, 1685, VA; d. December 13, 1737.

s for ROBERT PERROTT: Robert's father, Richard Perrott, was the first male child born of English parents in the ppahannock River Section of Virginia.

MARY DANIEL, b. Bet. 1651 - 1653, England; d. September 12, 1672; Stepchild; m. UNMARRIED.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM DANIEL OF MIDDLESEX CO., VIRGINIA

B. Newman of Washington, D.C., states that Rev. Hayden, in his study of the families of Virginia, tried to connect the aniels of Cumberland County, Va., with those of Middlesex County. Judge Newman believed that there was no traceable connection with the Middlesex family, and wrote in his essay in Tyler's Quarterly, about some of the cendants of Captain William Daniel of Middlesex. He makes only passing mention of the Cumberland Daniel family. wever, some Middlesex Daniel family members migrated to Cumberland County.

me of the information used in the following pedigree of William Daniel was taken from Newman's study, but a more iled history of this family is outlined in the book, Middlesex, Virginia Daniel Descendants, by Robert Neville Mann and Charles C. This effort is to further dismantle any connection between the family of Chesley Daniel (d. 1814) of Tranquility Plantation, Granville County, with our ancestor, Ambrose Daniel of Halifax County, North Carolina (d.1795).

is apparent that Rev. Hayden overlooked or never heard of some of the early descendants of the Middlesex Daniels, and even Judge Newman remarks that the "accumulated data and comments shown therein may be of interest, and are given for what they are worth". Does he include the investigation of his own researchers as well?

Your writer has the benefit of hindsight, and trusts the readers of this report, will profit from all our care. We are also the beneficiaries of a recent compilation of the work of Brunk Heinemann by Sheryl Slaughter.

. As Church Warden, William Daniel was ordered to take possession of 100 acres of land devised by one William Gordon. This was ordered at the Vestry meeting of 05 Jan 1685. The land was to be applied toward the use of schools. The following year, 06 Dec 1686, he was paid 1,400 pounds of tobacco for railing in the communion table. This was the only time when he was referred to as William Daniel, Senior. He was serving as a Justice in Middlesex Co., 02 Jun 1684, and aided in taking the Military Census of that Co., 23 Dec 1686.
Whether the designation "Captain" Daniel, was honorary or official is not known, but it is of record that when certain supplies and equipment were ordered for the militia to that co. in 1678, they were ordered turned over to him, 01 Jul 1689, so there is reasonable grounds for believing the title was not an honorary one.

- He was a witness to the will of Thomas Williams in Middlesex Co. The will was made 30 Jul 1683; proved 06 Oct 1684 (Ref 73). His name is there spelled DANIELL.

- He was a witness to the will of Christ. Robinson, made 27 Jan 1692; proved 06 Mar 1693. Robinson had married the widow of Major Robert Beverley. In the will Robinson designates him as his ^{3}loving friend Captain William Daniel^2 and bequeathes him a ring and designates him as one of the executors. He (Robinson) refers, also, to his ^{3}loving God daughters, Agatha and Catherine Daniel, daughters of Captain William Daniel,^{2} bequeathing them one cow and one calf each.

The fact that he ceased his Church, Military and Political activities abt 1696, and that he did not appear as a witness to prove Robinson^{1}s will lends support to the belief that he may have become physically inactive about that time. His will was made 08 Oct 1694. In it he styles himself William Daniel, Senior (name spelled Daniell). The original was witnessed by William Saddler, John Walker, Benjamin Thatcher, Thomas Vaux and William Downing. Later (date not known) a codicil was added witnessed by Wm. Brooks, Wm. Lyall and Arthur Hancock. The will was brought into Court 03 Oct 1698. The original was proved by only John Walker and Wm. Downing; the codicil by all three of the witnesses. The codicil recited that Benjamin Thatcher, one of the original witnesses, had died. A copy of the will is set out herein because of its importance in getting the lineage started correctly.

In ye name of God, Amen; I, Wm. Apr Term 1679 He served as a Juror (Bk 1 22-24).
He first appears in the records of Christ Church Parish, Middlesex Co., VA in the parish Register as follows: Richard, son of William and Ischabed Daniel, born 30 Sep 1672. Mary, daughter of William and Ischabed Daniel, died 12 Sep 1672. Agatha, daughter of William and Ischabed Daniel, bap 09 Mar 1683-4.

- The Vestry Book of the Church shows he was elected a member of the Church Vestry and attended his first meeting 02 Jan 1676. His attendance is shown at almost every meeting of the Vestry from the date of his election.

Abstracts From The Records of Middlesex Co. [illegible]: Deed of Richard Robinson and Anne his wife, dated 1680 to their daughter Anne, wife of George [illegible] and her heirs, and for want of such heirs to Richard Robinson her brother and his heirs, and for want of such heirs to John curtis and his heirs, and for want of such heirs to Anne Robinson, daughter of Christopher and Agatha Robinson. Witnesses: Robert Smith, Oswald Cary, John Whitham and William Daniel.

- He was made Church Warden of the Lower Church in the Middle Parish 05 Jan 1683 and served until succeeded by Oswald CARY in 1687.

- Hayden claims William Daniel ceased serving as a member of the Vestry in 1692, but this is not true. The last entry shows him in attendance at the meeting of 10 Nov 1696.

- He first appears as Captain William Daniel at the meeting of 12 Nov 1682 and all subsequent entries, except three, refer to him as Captain William Daniel.
As Church Warden, William Daniel was ordered to take possession of 100 acres of land devised by one William Gordon. This was recorded at the Vestry meeting of 05 Jan 1685. The land was to be applied toward the use of schools. The following year, 06 Dec 1686, he was paid 200 pounds of tobacco for railing in the communion table. This was the only time when he was referred to as William Daniel, Senior. He was serving as a Justice in Middlesex Co., 02 Jun 1684, and aided in taking the Military Census of that Co., 21 Dec 1686.

- He was a witness to the will of [illegible] in Middlesex Co. The will was made 30 Jul 1682, proved 06 Oct 1684 (Ref 11). His name is shown as [illegible] DANIELL.

- He was a witness to the will of Christ. Robinson, made 27 Jan 1692; proved 06 Mar 1693. Robinson had married the widow of Major Robert Beverley, and the will Robinson designates him as his 'loving friend Captain William Daniell and bequeathes him a ring and designates him as one of the executors. He (Robinson) refers, also, to his 'loving God daughters, Agatha and Katherine Daniel, daughters of Captain William Daniel,' bequeathing them each Cow and one calf each.
The fact that he ceased his Church, Military and Political activities abt 1696, and that he did not appear as a witness to other Robinson's will lends support to the belief that he may have become physically inactive about that time. His will was made 08 Oct 1696, in it he styles himself William Daniel, Senior (name spelled Daniell). The original was witnessed by William Sadler, John Walker, Benjamin Thatcher, Thomas Wask and William Downing. Later (date not known) a codicil was added witnessed by Wm. Brooks, Wm. Lyell and Arthur Dunock. The will was brought into Court 03 Oct 1698. The original was proved by only John Walker and Wm. Downing; the codicil by all three of the witnesses. The council notes that Benjamin Thatcher, one of the original witnesses, had died. A copy of the will is set out herein because of its importance in getting the lineage started correctly.

- Will of Captain William Daniel, made 08 Oct. 1696, proved 03 Oct 1698. Recorded in Middlesex Co, VA. Bk 1, Pg 128-1.

(Signed) Will Daniell, Wm. Brooks (X his mark), Wm. Lyall (X his mark), Arthur Hancock. At a Court held for the county of Middlesex the 3rd day of Oct 1698, William Brooks, William Lyall, Arthur Hancock upon their oaths say they saw William Daniel, above named, sign, seal and declare the codisall to be his act and deed and that he was in perfect sense and memory. (Teste) Edwin Thacker, Cl. Cur. (Endorsed on Back) This is the last will and Testament of Captain William Daniell Senr. Return of the inventory of his estate were made by Richard and James Daniel in Oct 1715.
The family name of his wife is unknown at the present time. Some claim she was a Smith, but nothing conclusive has been submitted in support of this. His will names 4 sons and 3 daughters, and the old Register of Christ Church Parish in Middlesex Co., Va, names a daughter Mary and a son John who died young. Some claim Jocebed was his second wife and cite his will as their authority. They draw this inference from the fact that in the original will his sons William and Robert, alleged to be from his first marriage, were not named as executors or overseers; and that the will refers to the other children as ^{3}our dear children,^{2} and this list does not include either William or Robert. It is to be noted that the Codicil made after Jocebed^{1}s death does name both William and Robert as overseers with John Smith. It is obvious that Captain William was married years before the first record of his activities in Christ Church appears, for his sons William and Robert, were married before his last child was born.
The old Parish Register of Christ Church as printed is in no sense a complete one. Its age and mutilated condition might explain the absence of many records of births, deaths, and marriages. In some cases these may be proved by other records; in others we must rely on deductions. Captain William DANIEL had:

- William DANIEL, born before 1664, died 29 May 1723. - Will of John Vaus, dated Sept. 8, 1691: Names William Daniel the son of my sister Constance (by William Daniel b. 1664),

* Robert DANIEL, born bef 1666, died 27 Dec 1720.

* Mary DANIEL, died 12 Sep 1678, unmarried.

* James DANIEL, born abt 1680, died 1748.

* John DANIEL, born, chr and died 20 Sep 1686.

* Agatha DANIEL, bap 06 Mar 1684, died 22 Aug 1721, married Marvel MOSELEY, 30 Aug 1704. He was the son of Marvell and Sarah MOSELEY. Their marriage and other records are found in the Parish Register of Christ Church, Middlesex Co., VA.

* Katherine DANIEL, married Robert PERROTT, 25 Mar 1706. He was born 25 Oct 1685, son of Richard PerrotT, who was the first male child born of English parents in the Rappahannock River Section (Ref 1). He died 13 Dec 1737.

* Elizabeth DANIEL, died 10 Dec 1720, m.George CHOWNING, 06 Feb 1714-5 (Ref 1). He died 18 Jan 1726.

* Ann DANIEL, died 16 Nov 1739, married Curtis PERROTT, 03 Sep 1714. He was born 19 Aug 1698.

DANIEL Genealogy Notes

Generation No. 1

NOTE: Some of this report was taken from the Ancestry.com file on-line. No proof was offered for the Ancestry data, but it was copied here for research purposes only. None of this material should be judged as truth until you prove it for yourself. A recent E-mail from Thomas R. Daniel, who has researched the Cheshire, England DANIELL family for years, indicates that some of this material is NOT correct. However, since I am presenting this line here for corrections/updates, I wanted to share some of the material he sent to me, along with the orignial LDS/Ancestry files. I am seeking the connection between the DANIEL and SHELTON families of Virginia. See more notes below, listed with Generation No. 4. If you have proof to offer for any of this material, or corrections, please do write to me.

Another researcher of this DANIEL line, Payne Daniel sent E-mail dated Jan. 29, 2000 with very helpful updated information and this URL. Clicking on the underline URL will take you to this very well researched, documented website, certainly worth several hours of reading. Payne Daniel refutes some of the data I have presented below (Ancestry.com GEDCOM), and his website offers researchers an enormous amount of DANIEL data. Thank you Mr. Daniel for sending this information.

1. PIERS^1 DANIELS was born 1464. He married JULIA NEWTON.
Notes for PIERS DANIELS:
CAUTION: the source here was the LDS Ancestral File (1996). None of the first few generations have been verified with sources other than the LDS entries. Use for research purposes only.

Child of PIERS DANIELS and JULIA NEWTON is:
2. i. THOMAS DANIEL^2 DE ANYERS, b. 1492; d. 1550.

Generation No. 2

2. THOMAS DANIEL^2 DE ANYERS (PIERS ^{1} DANIELS) was born 1492, and died 1550. He married MARGARET WILBRAHAM, daughter of WILLIAM WILBRAHAM and HELENA EGERTON.

Child of THOMAS DE ANYERS and MARGARET WILBRAHAM is:
3. i. THOMAS^3 DANIELS, b. 1524; d. August 09, 1574, Tabley, England.

Generation No. 3

3. THOMAS^3 DANIELS (THOMAS DANIEL ^{2} DE ANYERS, PIERS ^{1} DANIELS) was born 1524, and died August 09, 1574 in Tabley, England. He married ALICE DUTTON, daughter of FAULK DUTTON.

Child of THOMAS DANIELS and ALICE DUTTON is:
4. i. PETER^4 DANIELS, b. 1554.

Generation No. 4

4. PETER^4 DANIELS (THOMAS ^{3}, THOMAS DANIEL ^{2} DE ANYERS, PIERS ^{1} DANIELS) was born 1554. He married ANNA MANWARING Abt. 1576 in England, daughter of HENRY MANWARING and MARY VENERABLES.

Child of PETER DANIELS and ANNA MANWARING is:
5. i. PETER^5 DANIELL, b. 1584, Tabley, England; d. April 18, 1652, England.

The following notes are from Thomas R. Daniel, Oct. 1999. We can be thankful that people like Mr. Daniel take the time to offer this valuable data. His source was George Ormerods "History of the County Palatine and City of Chester", 2nd Edition, published 1882 (Part of page 475 Volume I of III). This work used original manuscripts of Sir

Peter Leicester of Nether Tabley. The Leicester family were neighbors of the Daniells of Over Tabley for a few hundred years. Daniel of Over Tabley's line has been traced back to 1291, but became extinct in 1726 on the death of Sir Samuel Daniell without male issue. The book notes came from the year 1666:

X. Peter Daniell of Over Tabley, esquire, son and heir of Thomas and Alice, married Anne, daughter of Henry Manwaring of Carincham in Cheshire, esquire, 1574 and had issue Peter, son and heir, six years old when his father died; Richard Daniell, second son, died without issue; Frances, married Edward Littleton, younger son of Littleton of Pillaton in Staffordshire, near Pancridge; Anne, second daughter, died without issue; Mary, third daughter, married John Woodnot of Shenton in Cheshire; after to John King of Salmondley in Lincolnshire; Jane, fourth daughter died without issue. This Peter died 3 die Augusti, 1590, ...aged 29 years. Anne his widow afterwards married Thomas Ashold parson of Swetenham in Cheshire; and she died 29 Julii, 1633, and had the wardship of her son...

XI. Peter Daniell of Over Tabley, esq., son and heir of Peter and Anne, married Christian, daughter of Richard Grosvenour of Eaton-boat, in cheshsire, esquire, and had issue Peter, eldest son; Henry; second son, married Anne duaghter of sir John Dorell of Wesstwoody, in Berkshire, but had no issue; John Daniell, third son, was an apprentice in London, and married, but died also without issue; William, fourth son, married Dorothy Forth of Wigan in Lancashire; Thomas, fifth son, slain at the battle of Brainford, near London, 1642. Margaret, eldest daughter, married Richard Green of Congleton in Cheshire, gentleman; Christian, second daughter, married George Davenport of Calveley, esq.; Mary, third daughter, married one Colonel Finch, 1651, an officer for the parliament-party against the king, and are both now living in Ireland (1666). Elizabeth, fourth daughter, died unmarried; Anne, the youngest daughter, married Robert Sanford of Sanford, in Shropshire, esquire, 1648. This Peter Daniell was on of the knights of this county for the parliament 1625, and died 18th day of April 1652, aged 68 years, and was buried at Great Budworth. Christian his wife survived, and died 1663. (Page 842 Vol. II of III: Christian, born Nov. 4, 1587, wife of Peter Daniel of Tabley, esq., married at Eccleston, Sept. 5, 1601). So, you can see that it is unlikely that the below William, listed in generation No. 6, is the William, son of Peter and Christian Grosvenor, as listed in the LDS Ancestry file. Mr. Thomas R. Daniel, of England, wrote that the William who married Dorothy Forth of Wigan, and was the son of Peter, is most likely the William Daniell listed in 1664 the 'College of Arms' granted arms to 'William Daniel of Wigan' on the basis of his descent from the Daniel family of Tabley. There were several men named William Daniel with wills listed in the Cheshire Record Office: Wm Daniel of Knutsford (2 miles max from Tabley) - 1684; Wm Daniel of Great Budworth (4 miles max. from Tabley) - 1685; Wm Daniel of Knutsford - 1686; Wm Daniel of Wigan (approx. 20 miles from Tabley in Lancashire) - 1695. The IGI files from the LDS Family History Center also show these births: Wm Daniell to Peter Daniell and Christian Grosvenor about 1616 Tabley; Wm Daniell to William Daniell and Dorothy Forth about 1645 Tabley (3 separate film sources); and Dorothy Daniell to William Daniell and Dorothy Forth about 1647.

Generation No. 5

5. PETER^{5} DANIELL (PETER ^{4} DANIELS, THOMAS ^{3}, THOMAS DANIEL ^{2} DE ANYERS, PIERS ^{1} DANIELS) was born 1584 in Tabley, England, and died April 18, 1652 in England. He married CHRISTINA GROSVENOR.
Notes for PETER DANIELL: LDS Ancestral File (1996).

Child of PETER DANIELL and CHRISTINA GROSVENOR is:

6. i. WILLIAM^{6} DANIELL, b. April 08, 1625, Essex, England; d. August 26, 1678, Middlesex Co., VA.

John, eldest son of Admiral Sir Richard Hawkins, was baptized March 16th, 1604, at St. Andrew's, Plymouth. In 1627, the year his mother died, he was at sea; at her death he inherited the manor of Poole, in Slapton, with the Plymouth estates. In 1637-8 he appears to have parted with his Plymouth property; for in the Receiver's Accounts for that year we find:

Itm for a present given Mr Risdon [Thomas Risdon, of Sandwell, who had married Mary Hawkins, his father's first cousin] to procure out of his hands such writings as concerned Vauter's Fee lately bought by the Town of Mr John Hawkyns and a man and two horses two journeys to fetch the said writings vli iiijs.

John Hawkins resided at Poole until he sold it, or the manor went, to the Luttrells. They sold the estates to Mr. Nicholas Paige, the daughter of whose son, William Paige, married Mr. Bastard.

ARMS OF HAWKINS, IMPALING RICHARDS.

John Hawkins, of Slapton, married Hester Richards, of Dartmouth, in 1636, by whom he had-

Judith, baptized June 27th, 1639.

All baptized at Slapton as the children of John Hawkins, Esq., and Mrs. Hester his wife. Their other children were Robert, Mary, Thomas, and Nicholas.

Hester, the wife of John Hawkins, was buried at Slapton, July 23rd, 1660.

Dave Clarke has extracted the below from the book 'Manx Worthies' by A. W. Moore (1901):

Popularly known as 'Illiam Dhone', (Brown William), he was the son of Deemster Ewan Christian of Milntown. Nothing is known of his early life. He was a steward of the Abbey Lands in 1640 and a member of the House of Keys (Manx Parliament) in 1643. In the same year his farther presented him with the property of Ronaldsway, which he agreed to hold from the Earl of Derby on a lease for three lives instead of by the old straw tenure. He and his family were consequently received into favour, and he was appointed to the then high office of 'receiver'.

William Christian must have thoroughly gained the earls confidence, since, when Lord Derby left the Island in August 1651 to join the Royalist forces, he not only put him in command of the insular militia, but committed his countess, the famous Charlotte de la Tremoille, to his care. It is exceedingly difficult to ascertain precisely what part William Christian played in the subsequent transactions, since the only statements that remain are conflicting and obscure. We know that the countess, on hearing that her husband was a prisoner, made proposals to Parliament for the surrender of the Isle of Man in the hope of saving his life. It is known also that William Christian and some of the most influential Manxmen suspected she had done so, and they then excited their countrymen against her by declaring that the countess intended to save herself by sacrificing them.

This being so, it is of no surprise to learn that on the night on which the bearer of these proposals sailed, insular militia, under William Christian's command, rose and attempted to seize all the forts, but failed to take Rushen and Peel. Burton, Governor Musgrove's biographer, remarked that they plundered the earl's property and ill used all the English that fell into their hands. This statement, however, is uncorroborated. Musgrave demanded an explanation of the rising from Christian who replied that it was to procure the redress of certain grievance; and he added that the countess had sold the country into the hands of the Parliament. These grievances are known to have been connected with the 7th earl's action in depriving the people of their old system of land tenure, and there were also complaints of the free quarterage of troops upon them.

It is said that an agreement was then entered into between William Christian and the governor to defend the Isle of Man until satisfactory terms could be obtained, but, as both parties were negotiating with the Parliament, whose troops were now mustering for its capture, the agreement was, in reality, a mere pretence for the sake of gaining time. These troops arrived on the 20th October, but, being delayed by storms they did not land until the 28th. They had been assured by William Christian that they would not be opposed by the soldiers under his command.

On the 3rd of November, the countess, finding that she could not rely upon the fidelity of her soldiers, surrendered the castles of Rushen and Peel, and soon afterwards she left the Island. In December, William Christian and his brother John, the Deemster, who were described in the Journals of the House of Commons as "two of the ablest and honest gentlemen in the Island" , were summoned to London to be consulted about the Manx Laws and other matters. He was continued in his office of receiver under Lord Fairfax, and, between 1656 and 1658, he also held the office of governor. In the latter year, James Chaloner, who had then been appointed governor, ordered his arrest on the charge of having misappropriated the revenues of the sequestrated bishopric, which Fairfax intended to be used for the support of the Grammar Schools, and for the augmentation of the stipends of the poor clergy. The accusation does not seem to have been proved, and William Christian, through his son George, produced statements showing the substantial accuracy of his accounts. However, it is curious that he should have fled to England without attempting to defend himself personally..

It is not known where he spent the interval years between 1658 and 1660. In the latter year he went to London with many others to have a sight of the King. His visit however was an unfortunate one, for he was arrested for a debt of £20,000, and put into the Fleet prison, where he was kept for nearly a year until he was able to find bail. Some months after his release, being assured that the 'Act of Indemnity' secured him against all the legal consequences of his political actions, he rashly returned to the Isle of Man. His advisors forgot that his offences were not against the Crown, but against the Lord of Man, who, in September 1662 issued a mandate to his officers to proceed against him "for all his illegal actions and rebellions" in 1651, or before that year. He was thereupon imprisoned in Castle Rushen.

At the trial which followed, William Christian refused to plea. This was a fatal mistake, because he thereby subjected himself to the same judgement as if he had pleaded guilty, or had been found guilty by a jury. In consequence of this, no evidence was taken on his behalf, so that he was virtually condemned without a trial. His sentence was to be "hanged, drawn and quartered", but this was commuted by an order of the deputy-governor that he be "shot to death". This was accordingly carried out on the 2nd January 1663. An entry relating to his execution in the Parish Register of Malew states that "he died most penitently and most curragiously, made a good end, preyed earnestly, made a good speech, and next day was buried in the chancel of Kirk Malew".

According to his dying speech he protested against the charge of treason brought against him by "a prompted and threatened jury, a pretended Court of Justice, of which the greater part were by no means qualified". He appealed to those present to bear witness how unjust the accusation against him was, and he declared that "the rising of the people" in which he had engaged, "did not at all, or in the least degree, intend the prejudice or ruin of the Derby family". During William Christian's imprisonment in Castle Rushen, he had addressed a petition to the King and Council, pleading that the proceedings taken against him by the Earl of Derby were a violation of the Act of Indemnity, and praying that his case might be heard before them, but it did not reach London until a week after his execution.

In ignorance of this event, orders were sent to Lord Derby to produce his prisoner. Illiam Dhone's sons, George and Ewan, presented petitions for redress, and , after some delay, the earl, the deemsters, and three other members of 'the pretended court of justice' were brought before the King in Council, who decided that "the Act of General Pardon and Indemnity did and ought to be understood to extend to the Isle of Man".

William Christian has been variously represented as a perjured traitor, or as the patriotic victim of a judicial murder, according to the sympathies of the writer. Whatever his faults, William Christian undoubtedly suffered for the part he took in endeavoring to protect his country men's laws and liberties. It is this that has enlisted their sympathies in his favour, while the plaintive ballad Baase Illiam Dhone "Brown William's Death" has invested his memory with the halo of a martyr.

Final Speech of Iliam Dhone: (source unknown)

Gentleman, and the rest of you who have accompanied me this day to the gate of death, I know you expect I should say something at my departure; and indeed I am in some measure willing to satisfy you, having not had the least libery, since my imprisonment, to acquaint any with the sadness of my sufferings, which flesh and blood could not have endured without the power and assistance of my most gracious and good God, into whose hands I do now commit my poor soul, not doubting but that I shall very quickly be in the arms of His mercy.

I am, as you now see, hurried hither by the power of a pretended court justice, the members whereof, as at least the greatest part of them, are by no means qualified, but very ill befitting their new places. The reasons you may give yourselves.

The cause for which I am brought hither, as the prompted and threatened jury has delivered, is high treason against the Countess Dowager of Derby; for that I did, as they say, in the year fifty-one, raise a force against her for the suppressing and rooting out that family. How unjust the accusation is, very few of you that hear me this day but can witness, and that the then rising of the people, in which afterwards I came to be engaged, did not at all, or in the least degree, intend the prejudice or ruin of that family; the chief whereof being, as you well remember, dead eight days, for thereabout, before that action happened. But the true cause of that rising, as the jury did twice bring in, was to present grievances to our honorable lady; which was done by me, and afterwards approved by her ladyship, under the hand of her since secretary, M. Trevach, who is yet living, which agreement hath send, to my own ruin and my poor family's endless sorrow, been forced from me. The Lord God forgive them the injustice of their dealings with me, and I wish from my heart it may not be laid to their charge another day!

You now see me here a sacrifice ready to be offered for that which was the preservation of your lives and fortunes, which was then in hazard, but that I stood between you and your (then all appearance) utter ruin. I wish is still may, as hitherto, enjoy the sweet benefit and blessing of peace, though from that minute until now I have still been prosecuted and persecuted, nor had I ever since found a place to rest myself in. The my God be forever blessed and praised, who hath as given me so large a measure of patience!

What services I have done for that noble family, by whose power I am now to take my latest breath, I dare appeal to themselves, whether I have not deserved better things from them then the sentence of my bodily destruction, and seizure of the poor estate of my son ought to enjoy, being purchased and left him by his grandfather. It might have een much better had I not spent it in the service of my honorable Lord of Derby and his family; these things I need not mention to you, for that most of you are witnesses to it. I shall now beg your patience while I tell you here, in the presence of God, that I never in all my life acted anything with intention to prejudice my sovereign Lord the King, nor the late Earl of Derby, nor the next earl; yet not withstanding, being in England at the time of his sacred Majesty's happy restoration, I went to London, with many others, to have a sight of my gracious King, whom God preserve, and whom, until then, I never had seen. But I was not long there when I was arrested upon an action of twenty thousand pounds, and clapped up in the Fleet; unto which action I, being a stranger, could give no bail, but was there kept nearly a whole year. How I suffered, God He knows; but at last, having gained my liberty, I thought good to advise with several gentlemen concerning his majesty's gracious Act of Idemnity that was then set forth, in which I thought myself concerned; unto which they told me there was no doubt to be made but that all actions committed in the Isle of Man, relating in any kind to the war, were pardoned by the Act of Indemnity, and all other places within his Majesty's dominion and countries. Whereupon, and having been forced to absent myself from my poor wife and children near three years, being under persecution, I did with great content and satisfaction return into this island, hoping then to receive the comfort and sweet enjoyment of my friends and poor family. But, alas! I have fallen into the snare of the fowler; but my God shall ever be praised; though He kill me, yet will I trust in Him.

I made justly say no man in this island knows better than myself the power the Lord Derby hath in this island, subordinate to his sacred Majesty, of which I have given a full account in my declaration presented to my judges, which I much fear will never see the light, which is no small trouble to me.

It was his Majesty's most gracious Act of Indemnity gave me the confidence and assurance of my safety; on which, and an appeal I made to his sacred Majesty and privy council, from the unjustness of the proceedings had against me, I did much rely, being his Majesty's subject here, and a denizen of England both by birth and fortune. And in regard I have disobeyed the power of my Lord of Derby's Act of Indemnity, which you now look up on, and his Majesty's Act cast out as being of no force, I have with greater violence been persecuted; yet, nevertheless, I do declare, that no subject whatever can or ought to take upon them Acts of Indemnity but his sacred Majesty only, with the confirmation of Parliament.

It is very fit I should say something as to my education and religion. I think I need not inform you, for you all know, I was brought up a son of the Church of England, which was at that time in her splendor and glory; and to my endless comfort I have ever since continued a faithful member, witness several of my actions in the late times of liberty. And as for government, I was never against monarchy, which now, to my soul's great satisfaction, I have lived to see is settled and established. I am well assured that men of upright life and conversation may have the favorable countenance of our gracious King, under whose happy government God of his infinite mercy long continue these his kingdoms and dominions. And now I do most heartily thank my good God that I have had so much liberty and time to disburden myself of several things that have laid heavy upon me all this time of my imprisonment, in which I have not had time or liberty to speak or write any of my thoughts; and from my soul I wish all animosity made after my death be quite laid aside, and my death by none be called in question, for I do freely forgive all that have had any hand in my persecution; and may our God preserve you all in peace and quiet the remainder of your days!

Be ye all of you his Majesty's liege people, loyal and faithful to his sacred Majesty; and, according to your both the faith and fealty to my honorable Lord of Derby, you likewise, in all just and unlawful ways, observe his commands; and know that you must one day give an account of all your deeds. And now the blessing of Almighty God be with you all, and preserve you from violent death, and keep you in peace of conscience all your days!

I will now hasten, for my flesh is willing to be dissolved, and my spirit to be with God, who hath given my full assurance of His mercy and pardon for all my sins, of which His unspeakable goodness and loving kindness my poor soul is exceedingly satisfied.

(Here he fell upon his knees, and pased some time in prayer; then rising exceedingly cheerful, he addessed the soldiers appointed for his execution saying -)

Now for you, who are appointed by lot my executioners, I do freely forgive you.

(He requested them and all present to pray for him, adding-)

There is but a thin veil between me and death; once more I request your prayers, for now I take my last farewell.

(The soldiers wished to bind him to the spots on which he stood. He said -)

Trouble not yourselves or me; for I, that dare face in whatever form he comes, will not start at your fire and bullets; nor can the power you have deprive me of my courage.

(At his desire a piece of white paper was given him, which with the utmost composure he pinned to his breast, to direct them where to aim; and after a short prayer addressed to the soldiers thus -)

Hit this, and you do your own and my work.

(And presently after, stretching forth his arms, which was the signal he gave them, he was shot through the heart and fell.)

Ballad of Iliam Dhone: (source unknown, English translation from Manx, anyone have the Manx original?)

In so shifting a scene, who would confidence place
In family, youth, power, or personal grace?
No character's proof against enemy foul;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

You are Derby's receiver of patriot zeal,
Replete with good sense, and reputed genteel,
Your justice applauded by the young and the old;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

A kind, able patron both to church and state
What roused their resentment but talents so great?
No character's proof against enmity foul;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

Thy pardon, 'tis rumour'd, came over the main
Nor late, but conceal'd by villian in grain;
'Twas fear forced the jury to a sentence so foul;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

Triumphant stood Calcott, he wish'd for no more,
When the pride of the Christians lay welt'ring in gore,
To malice a victim, though steady and bold;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

With adultery stain'd, and polluted with gore,
He Ronaldsway eyed, as Lough Molly before,
'Twas land sought the culprit, like Ahab of old;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

Proceed to the once famed abode of the nuns,
Call the Calcotts aloud, till you torture your lung,
Their short triumph's ended, extinct are the whole;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

For years cruel Robert lay crippled in bed,
Nor knew the world peace while he held up his head,
The neighbourhood's scourge in iniquity old;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

No one's heard to grieve, seek the country all through;
Nor lament for the name that Bemaccon once knew;
The poor rather load it with curses untold;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

Ballalough and the Creggans mark strongly their sin,
Not a soul of the name's there to welcome you in;
In the power of the strangers is entered the whole;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

The opulent Scarlet on which the sea flows,
Is piecemeal disposed of to whom the Lord knows,
It's heirs without bread or defence from the cold;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

They assert then in vain, that the law sought thy blood,
For all aiding the massacre never did good;
Like the rooted up golding deprived of its mould,
They languish'd, were blasted, grew rotten and cold.

When the shoots of a tree so corrupted remain,
Like the brier or thistle, they goad us with pain;
Deep, dark, undermining, they mimic the mole;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

Round the infamous wretches who spilt Cesar's blood,
Dead spectres and conscience in sad array stood,
Not a man of the gang reach'd life's utmost goal,
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

Perdition, too, seized them who caused thee to bleed;
To decay fell their houses; their lands and their seed
Disappear'd like the vapour when morn's flushed with gold;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

From grief all corroding to hope I'll repair,
That a branch of the Christians will soon grace the chair,
With royal instructions his foes to control;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

With a rock for my pillow, I dreamt as I lay
That a branch of the Christians would hold Ronaldsway;
His conquest his topic with friends o'er a bowl;
And thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

And now for a wish at concluding my song -
May th' Almighty withhold us from doing what's wrong;
Protect every mortal from enmity foul,
For thy fate, Iliam Dhone, sickens my soul.

Cousin Edgar's second wife Lelia Spotswood was his first wife's half-sister's daughter. Katie Willis remembers Cousin Edgar with a bushy white moustache and wearing a straw boater in summer.

Cousin Edgar was president of the Second National Bank of Culpeper which Katie Willis describes as a Willis Bank. Her father Turpin, brother Turpin and Uncle Gordon were all on the board at one time or another.

At one time Cousin Edgar and his second wife Lelia lived in Culpeper on one corner while Edgar Jr. and Anna lived across the street on another corner and Florence Willis White and family lived on a third corner.

ISABEL GRAHAM LACY

Stepdaughter of Nellie Virginia Willis and daughter of John Churchill Lacy

By Lacy Willis Sale (1992)

B – July 22, 1902, Ottawa, Canada
M – March 19, 1932 Wilbur Evans Sale
R – Ottawa, Canada, Culpeper, Orange County, and Richmond
D – August 16, 1973
B – Forest Lawn Cemetery, Richmond, Virginia

After the death of her mother, Bertha Rhodes Lacy, in Ottawa, Isabel's father, John Churchill Lacy, brought his two daughters to Culpeper County by train.

John Lacy married Nellie Virginia Willis (1874-1915) in 1910. It was hard for young Isabel to accept her stepmother.

After Dr. Lacy's death Nellie and young Isabel remained in the Culpeper area until the death of Nellie.

Isabel led a very sad life during her early years. Her mother died in 1905, her sister in 1908, her father in 1911 and her stepmother in 1915.

Addison Gordon Willis Sr. of Culpeper County was appointed guardian of Isabel. The winters of 1921 and 1922 she spent at "Orange Springs" in Orange County, Virginia, and the summers were spent at "Quiet Shade" in Culpeper County, Virginia.

After spending a year at Averett College, Isabel felt she had to help care for her aunt, Isabella Herndon Willis and this she did until Aunt Bella's death in 1930. (Aunt Bella: b. October 15, 1840; d. July 30, 1930.)

Isabel went into nurses' training in Salem. She also attended the Johnston Willis Hospital Nurses Training School and received her RN degree, still caring for Aunt Bella at her small apartment on Park Avenue and employing a black woman named Dallas to help care for Aunt Bella when she attended classes.

After Aunt Bella's death, she went to live with Isabel Rowe until she married Wilbur Evans Sale on March 19, 1932 at the home of Isabel Rowe.

SARAH RHODES LACY

Stepdaughter of Nellie Virginia Willis and daughter of John Churchill Lacy

by Lacy Willis Sale (1992)

B – March 24, 1903, Ottawa, Canada
R – Culpeper County, Virginia
D – March 23, 1908
B – Lael Baptist Church Cemetery, Lignum, Virginia

Sarah (Sunny) died after an illness that lasted several months. Her death was very hard on her sister Isabel and therefore she never would talk about her to her children or close friends. A newspaper clipping was found and I quote: (Special to the Culpeper Exponent)

"Batna, March 31—The grim monster has been busy in our midst with his relentless scythe cutting down the buds that grow between; on Tuesday March 23 the youngest daughter of Dr. John Lacy, familiarly known as "Sunny" (so called from her bright cheery little face) was taken to her heavenly home, after months of anxious watching. Medical skill and loving care could not restore her. She was laid to rest in the cemetery at Lignum. Rev. G. W. Hurt, officiating. How rapidly the "city of the dead" is being filled; only a short while ago it was set aside for this purpose. Thus we are forcibly reminded of the fact that we must all go hence to that bourn from whence no traveller returns. We extend to Dr. Lacy and her Aunts our heartfelt sympathy."

Lacy family history as noted by Elizabeth Garnett in 1978:

Major J. Horace Lacy m. Betty Jones
  Issue: William Jones Lacy of Chatham and Fredericksburg, Virginia
    m. Nora Fry Willis (Nov. 29, 1852-June 15, 1878 , daughter of Larkin and Mary Gordon Willis of the "21")
    Issue: John Churchill Lacy (May 14,1876-December 17, 1911)
      m. Bertha Alta Rhodes (February 22, 1875-April 26, 1905)
        on September 4, 1910
      Issue: First marriage
        1. Isabel Graham Lacy
        2. Sarah Rhodes Lacy (Sunny)

Bertha Alta Rhodes was the daughter of Joseph Hackney Rhodes and Sarah Jane Casebolt. She was a cousin of Cecil Rhodes. Some of Bertha Lacy's friends said, "She was like a candle that burned so brightly she couldn't last long."

John Churchill Lacy attended the University of Virginia Medical School but studied osteopathy at Kirksville, Missouri, where he met Bertha Rhodes who was in the same class. They married and went to Ottawa on their honeymoon and stayed.

I know that Henry WILLIS (14 Sept. 1691 in Va. - 14 Sept. 1740 in Fredricksburg) was one of the founders of Fredricksburg. I have just uncovered a bit of data on Anne Alexander, wife of Henry (Harry) Willis. She was the widow of John Smith - had one son with him, John Smith, b 1712. She married Henry Willis, 1714. Anne was the daughter of David Alexander and Anne Morgan and granddaughter of Anne Alexander.

The earliest record of Philip Sherwood is a notation in the Old Rappahannock Co., Virginia order Book 1, (1683-1686), pp. 173-174, 4 September 1685: Whereas Philip Sherwood late of this County dyed seized and possessed in Fee of a certain tract of Land lying and being on the north side of [the] Rappahannock River in the freshes therof which said land doth now lawfully come and Vest in Mary, Martha, Sarah, and Ann the four daughters & coheirs of the said Philip Sherwood and whereas Thomas Marshall who marryed Sarah one of the said coheirs did in right of his wife bring this action in this Court against Francis James who marryed Mary the Eldest of the said daughters and shows that the sd. James did marry contrary to law and without the mutual consent of the said Sisters and coheirs make division of the Land aforesaid. But it evidently made appear that Mary and Martha the two eldest daughters of the sd Philip Sherwood were of full age and did Consent to the division of the land and seriously weighing the matter have ordered that the division of the sd land already made to continue good and firme untill such time as the youngest Sister daughter of the sd Philip Sherwood shall move for a new division thereof.
